1,100 MILLION IN U. S. BONDS GO ON MARKET

Interest Rates to Be 3 and 1⅛ Pct.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—New government securities aggregating one billion, 100 million dollars were placed on the market today by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon as a part of the country's fall financing program.

ANDREW MELLON.

An eight hundred million dollar offering of 1 to 24 year treasury bonds made the list of government securities offered to the public. These bonds, carrying 3 per cent interest establish a new low interest record on long time government obligations marketed since the war.

In addition the treasury offers for subscription 300 million dollars' worth of one year treasury certificates of indebtedness. The certificates will bear interest at the rate of 1¼ per cent, a new low certificate interest rate.

Will Help Retire Other Bonds.

Part of the funds obtained by the new government borrowing will be utilized to retire 634 millions of certificates of indebtedness which mature on Sept. 15. No figures were given concerning the increase in the gross public debt that will be necessitated by the new financing, but it is expected to boost the debt figures at least temporarily by half a billion dollars. The extra funds, above those needed for retiring due obligations and interest will go to aid in financing the general operations of the treasury.

The circumstance that the treasury is offering 20 year instead of shorter term bonds was viewed as an optimistic business sign in financial circles. In these quarters it was argued that the treasury, feeling that the interest rate has about dropped to its low point, has decided to take advantage of the situation and do its financing while money rates are lower than they may be for many years to come.

Interest Rate Lowered.

The billion one hundred million dollar offering of government securities today marked the first major financing by the treasury for the current fiscal year. Its last issue of bonds was marketed in June. At that time the millions of from 15 to 18 year securities were offered for subscription. The fact that this issue was oversubscribed eight times oversubscribed, including a strong demand for government obligations, may have played a part in Mr. Mellon's decision to place a low interest rate on this latest issue. The June bonds bore interest at the rate of 3¼ per cent.

The new financial operations will have the effect of decreasing the government's short term debt by 334 millions and increasing the long term debt by that amount. The long term debt is now in excess of 14 billions, while the short term obligations of the government aggregate $2,543,969,000. With the retirement of 634 millions of certificates and the acquisition of 300 millions more at a lower interest rate the short term debt will be brought down to about $2,200,000,000.

See Decline in Income Taxes.

The size of the offerings made today compared with the cash needs of the government at this time was taken as an indication that the treasury expects a big drop in income tax receipts during the current fiscal year. The deficit in revenues plus increased expenditures have made it necessary to increase the public debt or raise taxes. Thus far the government has adopted the plan of increasing the debt. Some plan for future taxation is suggested to be formulated by Mr. Mellon for future submission to congress. Such a plan would not contemplate any change in tax rates which would affect receipts during the current fiscal year ending June 30.

Indications now are that income tax receipts will fall at least 300 millions below receipts last year, when a new rate was established. Revenues from income taxes have shown an increase during the year. It is expected that total revenues will increase the public debt seven or eight hundred millions this year. Last year the debt increased 61[illegible] millions.

14 States Fight 15% Rate Increase.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Final presentation of evidence on the petition of the railroad executives of the country for a 15 per cent horizontal increase in freight rates will begin before the interstate commerce commission at the Hotel Sherman this morning.

R. H. AISHTON. [Russell Photo.]

Fourteen western state commerce commissions, opposing the increase, will present witnesses to show that it would put an additional burden on the farmers of $102,000,000 annually, one-fourth of the entire sum the railroads expect to realize if the petition is granted.

Evidence of agricultural associations, fruit growers, live stock, poultry, and dairy men, canned goods and packing house interests, metal, lumber, coal, and sugar producers also will be heard. The central and western states are particularly aroused over this move of the railroads and so many witnesses are clamoring to be heard that the hearings are expected to last three weeks.

Expect Decision in October.

When this is over the commission will hear oral arguments in Washington and in view of the emergency plea of the railroads a decision is expected in October.

This decision is one of the most difficult and important which the commission has had to make since the federal government took over the regulation of the railroads. It will set the policy for the future as to whether in times of depression the railroad revenue can be increased by such a method, and it is certain to have a political reaction in the presidential campaign.

The railroad presidents, at a session in Chicago last June, set this $400,000,000 project in motion, and the commission has held ten meetings in various parts of the country since July 15.

Present Carriers' Case.

The case in chief for the carriers has been presented by Dr. J. H. Parmalee of the bureau of railway economics and R. H. Aishton, president of the American Railway association. It has been shown that for the railroads as a whole there is urgent need of more revenue. For the western roads, it was testified by H. A. Scandrett, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific, that for the first four months of 1931 the return was on a basis of only 1.76 per cent of the property investment, the lowest in thirty years.

Although all the shippers are not in agreement as to their opposition to this increase, a wide and deep protest has gone up from Florida to Oregon. Granting that the railroads need the increased revenue, these witnesses have testified that the manufacturing and agricultural interests which they represent cannot stand the new burden at this time. The argument has been made that the proposed method of increasing revenue will not produce results, that it will drive the shippers to the motor truck and water routes, and to many unseen methods of evasion.

Wage Question Involved.

The matter of railroad labor wages is deeply, although not immediately, involved, for the railroads have not taken any steps in the direction of cutting wages as yet. This question may be considered seriously at a later stage, obviously depending upon the decision. Railroad labor, therefore, supports the proposal for the rate increase.

The plea of the railroads is that, while in times of prosperity their returns are meager, kept down by government regulation, in times of depression the government should guarantee them a "fair return." Under the famous section 15-A of the commerce act a return of 5¾ per cent is set down as a fair goal. Even if the petition is granted, the railroads contend, their return will not be more than 4 per cent.

Farmers Oppose Increase.

"We can't stand it," L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange, told the commission, as he explained the serious feeling on this matter that exists among the farmers.

"The farmer serves notice emphat-

Fire Forests to Get Jobs; Troops Called

Boise, Idaho, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Troops today patrolled four Idaho counties to halt incendiarism in forests which Gov. C. Ben Ross attributed to unemployed men seeking jobs as fire fighters.

Fear that fire fighters, discharged as blazes were controlled, would light other fires to give them employment led Gov. Ross to declare martial law last night. Sixty men were discharged from fire fighting crews in the Placerville-Grimes Pass area when foresters predicted the fire line would hold. The entire line was completed except for a short section of backfiring near Grimes creek. This was finished late today.

May Extend Martial Law.

The governor said martial law might be extended to other counties, including Lemhi, Custer and Adams, all heavily timbered, where it was feared "firebugs" would operate. In the counties being watched fires have razed two towns, destroyed timber, cabins and mines.

Gov. Ross, commenting on the necessity for calling out troops to save the forests from incendiary fires, said:

"It is a vicious practice some of the men have fallen into. It has hindered control of the fire. Hardly is one fire under control than another is started. Somebody is doing it. We know their reasons, of course, are to keep themselves employed. My sympathy goes out to any man out of work, but there certainly will be none shown to those who would sacrifice the rich timber, burn up our towns and endanger our people in order to provide themselves with wages. We will hunt them out."

Difficult to Catch Fire Bugs.

Foresters agree there is very clear indication many disastrous blazes are man set. They add, however, it is extremely difficult to catch fire bugs in the act or to gather evidence that would stand test of courts.

Suspicion of man set fires has been rampant all summer. Many were certain fire which destroyed Quartzburg, $500,000 mining town, was incendiary. Same blaze spread over 55,000 acres, burning several mines and taking two lives. While fighting the main fire other fires would spring up behind fire lines. The new fires were usually in isolated regions where no campers possibly could have been.

Only two arrests have been made and in both cases evidence was meager. Once a man was arrested after he was seen sneaking into the forest. Shortly after his apprehension a fire broke out in a region where he was supposed to have gone.

Martial law in the four counties went into effect early today and all roads leading into the timber region were closed except to persons with permits from military authorities.

Loot Home of Evanston Lawyer; Get Gems, Liquor

The home of Paul O'Donnell, attorney and former special assistant corporation counsel, 1522 Lincoln street, Evanston, was robbed over the weekend of $5,000 worth of jewelry and clothing, it was learned last night. Three bottles of whisky and several bottles of champaign were taken from the basement. The O'Donnells discovered the burglary when they returned home after a trip.

ORDERS HIS FUNERAL SERVICE HELD WHILE HE'S ALIVE TO LISTEN

Benton, Ill., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Surrounded by relatives and friends, Stephen R. Patton of Valier today heard the Rev. John B. Maulding of McLeansboro deliver his funeral oration. Flowers were there in profusion.

Patton, sitting by his brother, John Patton, 84, of Lenaburg, Ill., heard Maulding take for his text: "I am in a strait betwixt two, having a desire to depart and be with Christ which is far better." Three other ministers took part in the services, George Creed, Benton; J. R. McDuffy, Ewing, and Mal Keene, Pinckneyville.

The service was held in connection with Patton's eightieth birthday. At its conclusion there was a basket dinner. Mr. Patton suggested the idea to his close relatives some time ago when he learned they were planning a celebration of his birthday.

Patton married Mary Prediger 58 years ago last January. They have one son, five daughters, twenty-three grandchildren, sixteen great-grandchildren, all present today.

FRANCE READY TO PUT ARMY IN LEAGUE'S HANDS

PARIS, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Joseph Paul-Boncour, chairman of the committee for foreign affairs of the French chamber, and acknowledged as France's greatest authority on disarmament, told the Associated Press today that France was ready in the interests of universal peace to place her permanent army, naval and air forces under the control of the League of Nations.

"When the disarmament conference agrees upon the actual figures of the defense strength of each country," he said, "our idea is that these forces should cease to be forces left entirely to the disposition of these countries and that there should be an international mortgage upon them.

"I mean that the council of the League of Nations, when face to face with a case of proved war of aggression, should be empowered under article 16 of the league covenant to make use of them to settle a war crisis.

"Are other nations like us ready? Are they willing to put their permanent air, naval and land forces under the control of and at the disposition of the League of Nations? By this gesture the problem of parity might be solved."

A mother yesterday killed her 4 year old son with chloroform and then leaped from a window of her room on the second floor of the Clayton hotel at 2026 North Clark street. She struck the sidewalk as scores of persons were passing the hotel.

At the Augustana hospital she identified herself as Mrs. Helen Lynch, 25 years old, of 2318 North 7th street, Milwaukee, a stenographer out of work. She suffered a broken neck and a spinal fracture, which hospital attendants said would probably prove fatal. She had registered as Mrs. Martin Lind of Milwaukee She recently filed suit for divorce.

Tom Gets Into Tight Spot at U. of Chicago

Out at the University of Chicago they expect to complete the new men's dormitory in 60th street, between Greenwood and Ellis avenues, in time for the dedication Nov. 1 if Tom will let them.

Tom has been creating all sorts of trouble on the job. It is not just exactly sabotage, but it ties up the work and makes the contractors pull their hair. Tom gave them no end of worry yesterday.

Tom at It Again.

Fred Hart, the watchman at the building, heard a scratching noise behind a fine carved oak panel on the landing between the first and second floors in the southeast corner of the building. He listened intently and decided it was Tom. He called Jack Moseley, foreman of construction. Jack listened, too. Then the office of Bulley & Andrews, contractors, was called. A carpenter arrived in a taxicab.

At first it was thought that the expensive panel would have to be destroyed to liberate Tom, but the carpenter decided to remove the baseboard. With the baseboard out, there still stood a wall of hollow tile in front of Tom. A pick was brought into play and a section of tiling removed. Out walked Tom.

He Laps Up the Milk.

He refused a pan of water, but greedily devoured a hot dog purchased at a stand near by and lapped up a pint of milk supplied from the same source.

A little more than a month ago workmen were forced to tear down a large section of a wall in the same building to set Tom free. How he gets himself into such tight places no one knows, but at any moment out there they are ready now for another emergency call to rescue Tom.

But the workmen won't hear of getting rid of Tom. He's their pet, and they like cats.

GRAF, ON WAY TO BRAZIL, SPEEDS OVER ATLANTIC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Aug. 31.—The Graf Zeppelin, which is making a nonstop flight from Germany to Pernambuco, Brazil, at 1:20 a. m. [Chicago daylight time], today passed over the Canary islands, according to a radio dispatch to the Zeppelin works. It was making an average speed of 70 miles an hour. The weather was fair. The ship continued its flight in the direction of the Cape Verde islands.

Yesterday afternoon the Zeppelin fought strong winds over the Mediterranean, but managed to maintain its speed, and passed Gibraltar at a high rate of speed.

Grocer Shot When He Resists Pair of Bandits

Biagio Termini, 35 years old, a grocer at 7606 Belmont avenue, was shot and seriously wounded shortly after he opened his store this morning, when he resisted two robbers who attempted to hold him up. One of the men ordered an article behind the counter, and as Termini turned to get it he was commanded to "stick 'em up." He whirled and grabbed the bandit's pistol and was shot in the mouth. He was taken to Belmont hospital unconscious.

REFUSES TO SAY SHE WILL PAY FOR MATE'S DEFENSE

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Harry F. Powers, the man who wooed other men's widows for their money, gave his own wife exactly $12 during their four years of married life. And made her like it.

For tonight Mrs. Luella Strother Powers, a pretty faced, red headed woman, half bewildered and half awfully smart, stood up in the house to which Powers took her as a bride, but which she owned herself, and said: "I sure do love that kid."

But a few minutes later, when Chief of Police Clarence O. Duckworth asked her if she'd pay for his defense and stand by him, she went into one of her brown studies and finally said:

"Now, 'aint that a hard question to ask a person? I can't say."

"You mean you wouldn't pay the money?" the chief queries.

"Suppose I didn't have the money?" she parried. Only a few minutes before she had explained that she'd given her husband $750 to build his fantastically fateful garage without a thought about it.

An Interview Under Guard.

The chief, by the way, was present at the interview because earlier in the d[illegible] this lady, who claims she is too ill to step out of the house, had grabbed a gun and threatened to shoot anybody who questioned her.

"Sure I gave my husband money," she said. Then she flared up. "And don't I know a lot of men who get married and don't do a lick of work afterwards? My husband worked around the garden, even did the dishes, worked around the yard, just the way my paw used to. I'd give him enough of clothes at Christmas time to last him. We had good food. And many little things, even cigarets and chewing gum, we had over at the store me and my sister run.

"Why I treated him like a mother as well as a wife. In the morning I'd bring him a nice drink of soda from the store. He'd smile up at me and say, 'O. K., honey.' At night, if it was hot, I'd go into his room with the electric fan and leave it with him. But then, he was nice to me."

He Tells Her Nothing.

"You know, Mr. Chief, he wasn't never much of a talker," she said.

"But you must have talked about something?" she was asked.

"Yes, he loves to talk about good things to eat."

And whenever they asked about her husband she'd look out of her watery blue eyes and muse, "I never asked him nothing about himself."

What she chose to tell about him was brief and sketchy. Her aunt used to "keep company" with his father, one Jim Powers of West Virginia. But the aunt married Jim's brother; Jim married, went to Cedar Rapids, has two children, Harry and Grace, who is married to "some one" and lives "somewhere" in Cedar Rapids.

Talks About Relatives.

Harry grew up on a farm in Iowa, went to grammar school, high school, and took a course in "what you call it, architecture or building or something at Kansas City, Mo."

There was an Ohio interlude when he is supposed to have done contracting work for a railroad. Then came the world war.

Killer Gives Details of Murders.

By GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Harry F. Powers, confessed murderer of the five whose bodies have been dug up from their ditch-water grave out near his fantastic murder garage, insists that they'll only find five bodies out there.

And when the day of official digging had stopped tonight no more evidence had been brought up out of the slime. But tomorrow Sheriff Wilford B. Grimm plans to send a gang of prisoners out to the deserted dell once more and to dispatch another gang to near-by Fairmont, the tiny town to which Powers refers so glibly.

It is to Fairmont he insists that Mrs. Asta Buick Eicher, the Park Ridge widow and her three children went from Chicago. He refuses to remember just where they stayed while there and police officials are waiting until early tomorrow to subject him to a questioning which they expect to reveal some names and locations in Fairmont.

Powers told officers they might as well stop digging in the ditch where the bodies were found.

Time Wasted, He Says.

"It's just a waste of their time," he explained, as he sat in his cell and amplified the details of his confession. "They found five bodies. That's all they're going to find there."

He smiled when he said that word "there," but he refused to say anything more about that.

Search in the trench ended tonight, but further digging may be done into a number of apparently freshly turned mounds in the rear of the garage.

Another spot to be searched is an abandoned well in which sheriff's deputies reported they found several feet of newly dumped stone. A creek that runs through the property will be explored.

The digging will be resumed at dawn if the terrific rain which started tonight ends by that time.

Prisoner Fights for Delay.

Throughout today Powers capitalized every moment of delay, used every subterfuge of lost memory and blurred details in filling in the details of his earlier confession. He doesn't remember what date he did the killings, he doesn't recall where he kept the victims until he did kill them, and today officials let him get all the satisfaction he could out of this evasion, for tomorrow they plan a lengthy questioning.

Only one thing Powers insisted he was clear on, and that was the thing the officers are sure is a lie, that he killed Mrs. Dorothy Lemke, the fifth victim dug out of the ditch, at the same time that he killed Mrs. Eicher and her children.

The coroner insists that the body of Mrs. Lemke has been in the ground a much less time than that of Mrs. Eicher. Authorities doubt even that he killed Mrs. Eicher with her children. They think she was strangled first, the children a week later, and Mrs. Lemke several weeks after that. In spite of that, Powers maintains suavely, "I killed them all this same night."

"Met Them in Fairmont."

His today's story claims that he got the Eicher family in Fairmont, some 25 miles from Clarksburg, about the middle of July.

"Then I went to Northboro, Mass.," he recollects. "Oh, I guess it was about July 28. I went to the house of Mrs. Lemke's sister, a Mrs. Fleming, and took Mrs. Lemke to a hotel in some Pennsylvania town. I think it was Uniontown. I left her there that night."

He gets indignant at the suggestion that he was ever anything but a gentleman in his affairs with these women.

"The next day I called for her," he added, "and drove her to Fairmont. I met the Eichers in Fairmont, near the depot. It was in the middle of the afternoon. We drove to Clarksburg."

All Five in Car, He Says.

Reminded that his car had no rumble seat, he was disturbed for only a moment. Then he said quickly: "My car has a big back well for tools and things. I packed the three kids in there; the women squeezed in front with me."

At the garage, he says, he separated them, Anabel and Harry in one of the four dungeon rooms, Mrs. Eicher in one, Greta alone, and Mrs. Lemke in the fourth one.

"That's all wrong about my starving them," he declares, referring to the coroner's statement that food had not been in their stomachs for five days before their death.

"I wouldn't do a thing like that. I brought food down to them. Of course, I don't know whether or not they ate.

Kills Mrs. Eicher First.

"Late that night I did it. Killed Mrs. Eicher first, then the two younger kids. There was no fight."

At one point Powers said he was letting "little Harry Eicher watch the killing of his mother and the others, but in the middle of it he let out an awful scream. I was worried the neighbors would hear him so I picked up a hammer and let him have it."

Next came the killing of the other woman, although the authorities here believe this killing did not take place that night. And, last of all, 12 year old Harry, whose feeble fighting brought down on him two blows with the monkey wrench. Harry had to be carried upstairs. That accounts for the blood trickling down when he was carried downstairs to the cot which is so clotted with blood.

"Sure, I stayed with the bodies a while. Then went out and buried them."

This calm recital together with the whole twisted pattern of his activities with women, led police to believe that his motive was something far more sinister than money. The bodies are in too great a state of decomposition for the coroner to determine whether or not they had been mistreated either before or after death. But the bodies of the three children and of Mrs. Lemke were fully clothed when dug up out of their rotted burlap bags.

The body of Mrs. Eicher, however, was clothed only in a thin undership.

Any remnant of soggy burlap found around the murder garage brought joy this Sabbath day to the thousands of curious who carried their babies and helped their grandmothers through the mud to see "those terrible rooms, where he ought to be locked up and just tortured and starved to death."

More Letters for Powers.

F. N. T., 1615 Wallace street, Philadelphia, Pa.; Van Boskirk, Walnut Grove street, Wichita, Kan.; Camp Walton, Fla.,; Burlington, N. C.; 601 Martin street, Clearfield, Pa.; S. B. E., 7342 Vermont avenue, St. Louis, Mo.; 205 Folone street, Burlington, N. C.; 1010 Woronaca avenue, Ocean View, Va.; Jacksonburg, W. Va., and 116 North Clinton street, Olean, N. Y.

The last letter was from Bessie Storrs, who expected Powers, or Pierson as she knew him, to come to her tomorrow and marry her.

This letter, which begins, "Connie dear," tells "Connie Pierson" how delighted she is at the prospect of seeing him so soon, and how all the nervous tension she has gone through during the course of their mail order wooing, has disappeared now that she knows she'll see him so soon.

Planned Busy Fortnight.

Powers' letters to this and other eager ladies reveal that he had mapped out for himself a fortnight or so of adventure, perhaps of murder.

That very night he was to have left for Olean to meet Bessie. Next week, according to his passionate phrases of promise, he was to go to Hagerstown, Md., to meet and she thought to marry Virginia D. Bell of 54 Winter street.

And ten days or so later he wrote he couldn't be quite positive of the date he hoped to be in Detroit luring Pearl D. Simpson away with him.

But instead of pursuing his curious career of travel and probable murder Powers is in his cell, kept there by his confession and by the opinion of Dr. Edwin Marvin, Pittsburgh psychiatrist, who visited him today and pronounced him sane.

Early tomorrow Park Ridge's chief of police, Harold A. Johnson, is taking the bodies of the Eicher family to Pittsburgh for cremation, after which the remains will be taken to Park Ridge, to be buried there at the village's expense.

She Tells of Proposal.

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Hay Schlotmauer, owner of the Pennsylvania hotel, said today she believes a man who proposed to her two years ago after a five minute courtship was Harry F. Powers, Clarksburg, W. Va., Bluebeard. She said the man resembled pictures of Powers.

"A man who resembled my late husband entered the hotel one day and said he represented a Detroit firm which wished to buy my hotel. After five minutes he asked me to marry him," she said.

"I laughed, but he went on to tell how much he liked Lancaster and how he needed some affection and companionship. His talk sounded just like Powers' letters in the newspapers. He was very smooth and polite."

Mrs. Lemke Lived in St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Dorothy A. Lemke, slain by Harry F. Powers, confessed killer of five persons, formerly was a resident of St. Paul.

Her former husband, Albert O. Lemke, a bricklayer, lives here. He said tonight they were married in 1914 and lived together here for nearly 10 years. Then, according to Lemke, his wife left him and went to live with a sister in Boston. That was in 1923. Lemke later obtained a divorce on grounds of desertion. He had not seen Mrs. Lemke since she left St. Paul, he said.

About a year ago, Lemke said, a relative, returning from Chicago, reported he had seen Mrs. Lemke in that city with a man named Pierson.

No Iowa Record of Powers.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Aug. 30.—(AP)—A thorough three-day search of city tax reports, birth certificates, and other records has failed to reveal any information here on the birth of Harry F. Powers, confessed Clarksburg, W. Va., killer of five persons, or the 640-acre farm he is supposed to own near here.

Search of birth records has revealed no Harry F. Powers or C. O. Pierson, tax records have given no information on land held in either name, and a check of farm residents in this vicinity has failed to uncover any person who remembers the family or land holdings in that name.

Bluebeard's Ad Appears in Paper for the Lonely

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Although the literature of the American Friendship society pictures ladies and gentlemen embracing one another, and shouts "Marry?" in print at its prospective customers, Albert B. Plater of this city, and his wife, who run the business, affirm that it is not a matrimonial bureau, but a "correspondence society for lonely people."

Harry F. Powers, the West Virginia bluebeard, claims that he met some of the women he wooed through this society.

The Platers received permission in 1926 at the county clerk's office here to do business under the assumed name of American Friendship society. Since then the company has been investigated several times by postal inspectors.

Listed as Physician.

Plater is listed in the telephone directory here as a physician and in the city directory as the operator of a toilet preparation business under the name of the Lovlitone company. Mrs. Plater signs all the letters sent out by the bureau and, in them, admits that, sometimes, the acquaintances brought about result in matrimony, but says that she and her husband are not in the marrying business.

However, the publications of the society would seem to leave no doubt as to its object. As an example, take the ad answered by Mrs. Edith Simpson, which started her correspondence with Powers, the confessed slayer of five persons. He was known to her as Cornelius O. Pierson.

He's "Wealthy Widower."

"Wealthy widower worth $150,000. Has income from $400 to $3,000 a month. Is a civil engineer and a very fine looking man of 38. Writes 'My business enterprises prevent me from making many social friends. I am therefore unable to make the acquaintances of the right kind of ladies. As my properties are located through the middle west, I believe I will settle there when married, so I do not care where a lady lives, just so she will be willing to settle with me there. Am an Elk and a Mason. Own a beautiful ten room brick home, completely furnished with everything that would make a good woman happy.

"My wife would have her own car and plenty of spending money. Would have nothing to do but enjoy herself, but she must be strictly a one-man woman. I could not tolerate infidelity. Am now living in West Virginia."

Sent in Plain Envelopes.

Prospective members of a shy nature are assured that all correspondence will be sent in plain envelopes. The fee for women is $1.95 and for men $4.95 a year. This price includes a thirty word advertisement in the society's lists and copies of the list for one year. Members are instructed to send a stamped envelop for each month's list and if they send their money in personal checks they must be certified and 10 cents must be added "for exchange."

Application blanks call for a full description of the applicant's person and property, as well as a description of the type of the opposite sex preferred. Ladies are especially asked to signify whether they possess dimples.

Quote "Home Sweet Home."

Lists of "testimonials" accompany each sales letter, and the society announces that it has posted a $1,000 as deposit "in a local bank" as a guarantee that every testimonial is genuine and unsolicited.

2 MEN, ADRIFT ON LAKE, FOODLESS 4 DAYS, RESCUED

Mackinac Island, Mich., Aug. 30.—[By radio.]—Two men, adrift for four days without food in their small fishing boat on Lake Huron, were rescued late today by the steamship, Tionesta. They are Henry Le Plant and John Lancewicz, both of Cheboygan, Mich.

The disabled craft was sighted about seven miles east by north from the Bois Blanc lighthouse by the steamer, Eastern State. Efforts to succor the fishermen were futile, and the Eastern State put in here and notified the coast guard. Meanwhile, however, the Tionesta, commanded by Capt. Alfred W. Hayden, reached the fishing boat, and succeeded in attaching a tow line. Later the coast guard appeared, and completed the towing in of the fishing boat.

Le Plant and Lancewicz were on the verge of complete exhaustion. For four days and nights they battled huge seas, and drifted helplessly during that time. Added to the peril of the seas was the lack of provisions.

Chicago Address Found in Bluebeard Notebook

Inquiry at 3204 Maypole avenue, a six flat rooming house, disclosed no one whose initials were "J. P.," or who knew or corresponded with Powers. The landlady said no mail that she had seen had been postmarked from West Virginia.

CRIMINAL TRAITS OF KILLER HIDDEN BY OBSCURE LIFE

Community Knew Him as Nonentity.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Harry F. Powers, known today throughout the nation for his abnormal atrocities, lived such a commonplace life here these last four years that the town recalls him merely as a flabby faced, well dressed man who apparently minded his own business and expected the world to do the same.

Once he was sued by a vacuum cleaner concern for which he was salesman for having brought cleaners from Pennsylvania without having paid for them. But he won the suit, and in addition, it is reported, won a $600 judgment for false arrest, charging that the shock of the arrest was so great to his wife that it caused the still birth of her baby.

Once he grew furious when a crowd of farmers came up to him as he was building his garage with its queer dungeon rooms and told him that was a crazy way to build a garage.

"This is my building," he told them. "I'll make it any damn way I please. clear out, all of you."

They cleared.

Loves Life of Obscurity.

But beyond those two incidents, Powers lived a life of obscurity since the first of June, 1927, when he came here from Cedar Rapids, Ia., to marry Luella Strother. Her aunt had married his uncle.

"We had been keeping company, through the mails, for 17 years," she explains, "then he came here and married me. No, he wasn't any more ornery than most men. No, sir, he never beat me; no man could do that to me, no, sir. He always treated me right.

Jack of All Trades.

Powers' business in this town when he was here was dabbling a little in real estate, selling eggs and bread across the counter of his wife's grocery store once in a while, and peddling vacuum cleaners throughout the county. This last job, of course, brought him into contact with women in their homes; but there is no report of him ever having been offensive to any woman around here.

He belonged to no clubs; he claims to have fought overseas for 28 months with the Rainbow division. But he never had anything to do with the American Legion here; his stories of his division fights are fumbling and fugitive, and veterans here insist that he did not see service. He had no friends and erected a wall of silence around himself. Even the local photographer, who last February made 115 pictures of him in one week, didn't feel inclined to query him about the pictures.

There was but one man in the town with whom he ever got chummy during these four years. That was Stamatas Sfikdas, a shoe shiner, who formed an acquaintance with Powers when he purchased a vacuum cleaner from him. And Sfikdas disappeared last June with considerable cash and a $100 Liberty bond in his pockets.

Only Friend Disappears.

Possibility that his adventures with women might have had at least one local angle developed when a Mrs. Essie Lillian Watkins of Fairmont, some twenty-five miles away, rushed to police headquarters yesterday insistent that Powers was the man she had married a year ago under the name of George Michael Mathias. But her certainty of identification waned even as she sat in the sheriff's office waiting to see the prisoner.

"No, I guess that isn't the man," she said, and fled before going into the cell.

"I am Mrs. Powers number one," she said, as she tossed her head of bright red hair. "And I'll always be Mrs. Powers number one." But she was so mad about this slight sidelight to the gruesome story that she refused to speak to her husband. Later she repented, washed out some shirts for him and sent over a package of laundry to the jail.

Absence of Truck Door Saves Milkman in Fire

Marinette, Wis., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Al Hartfield of the Peshtigo Dairy company probably owes his life to that fact that there is no door in the milk truck he drives. The motor backfired, setting the truck on fire, and Hartfield barely had time to leap through the opening.

WIFE TELLS OF BLUEBEARD'S LIFE

tell nobody about it," she said. "No, he never mentioned to me. I read it in the paper that he said he was in it, so it must be true."

Then he came east and married his cousin by marriage the first of June, 1927; went to live in her house, and took a job with a vacuum cleaner concern. That job lasted less than a year; ended in litigation.

Since then, Mrs. Powers admitted, "he hasn't had a job."

"Would it surprise you, then," Chief of Detectives Carl Southern put in, "to know that he had $2,000 in his purse when he was arrested?"

"It sure would," Mrs. Powers replied, as if perhaps she really were surprised.

Asked About Garage.

When they got her to the subject of the crazy garage, built a mile from anywhere, she grew indignant.

"No, there wasn't nothing strange in that. That was our family property."

"Yes, but a garage that far away?"

"Well, that 'aint funny. Later he was going to built a nice cottage and maybe we was going to live there."

She tripped herself up several times when talking about this garage. She'd never seen it, she said, and knew nothing about it; but she knew that it has four rooms and that he was going to use those dark, damp basement rooms to work on his blueprints. "Had to use a lot of acid, you know."

"And you gave him $750 or more to build a crazy garage you've never seen?"

Her Face Expressionless.

Her face was so expressionless, her attitude so baffling, that presently an official said directly:

"Mrs. Powers, what effect did this news of the murders have on you?"

"It nearly killed me." She said the proper words, but they were said with the monotone lifelessness of an automaton.

Over by the dresser, Mrs. Powers' sister, Eva Belle Strother, fiddled with the tattered lace scarf and whispered to the woman next to her, "O, ain't it pitiful about those people that got killed? I could stand most anything, but murdering that little boy, ugh." And her shoulders shivered.

Across the room Mrs. Powers was saying: "Why, I never suspected a thing. I trusted him like I trust my sister."

"You mean you did trust him," somebody put it.

But the remark was too subtle for her. She looked sincerely bewildered this time, and said:

"Well, he certainly treated me all right. I didn't try to mind his business. What I didn't know didn't hurt me."

EICHER MURDERS RECALL OTHER CRIMES OF GREED

New Bluebeard on Roll of Killers for Gain.

In the annals of crime, wholesale murder for profit, as in the Eicher killings, is rare. The turn of the century swung three figures in the Chicago area—two men and a woman—into international discussion. The names of Dr. H. H. Holmes, Johann Hoch, and Belle Gunness survive through their cold blooded murders. Harry Powers, the squat Bluebeard of Quiet Dell, W. Va., has bid for equal ranking with this notorious trio.

BELLE GUNNESS.

Holmes was the first and possibly the most infamous of the group. An intelligent youth, he took up murder as a business while he was still a student in college and at the height of his crime career he constructed a carefully designed slaughter house for the disposal of his victims in a building known as the Holmes castle on 63d street. The number of his crimes has never been determined. He was suspected of a dozen murders.

A Criminal in College.

Holmes, whose real name was Herman Mudgett, took a medical course in a college at Burlington, Vt., but used his knowledge only in the interest of crime. While he studied he began a body switching insurance racket. He obtained the body of a man who resembled his best friend, a fellow student, and collected $10,000 in insurance taken out on his chum. At this time Holmes was 21 years old. It was suspected of having murdered an unknown man.

Holmes married frequently and was suspected of having slain several wives. He was trapped in operating one of his swindles. Police dug in the cellar, which housed his drug store, and found bones buried in quicklime. Among victims attributed to Holmes were his stenographer and the wife and daughter of his drug clerk. He was convicted for the murder of Howard Pitezel, victim of an insurance swindle, and hanged on May 7, 1896. As he stood on the scaffold Holmes pronounced a curse on all minions of police.

The Murders of Hoch.

Hoch walked to the gallows in 1932. He was convicted of the murder by slow poison of one of his bigamous wives, estimated to number from 11 to 23. Hoch had studied drugs and medicines in Vienna. He came to Chicago in 1892. He was suspected of having murdered at least six of the bigamous brides. As early as 1904 one of his wives, on her death bed, charged Hoch with poisoning her. He disappeared after the funeral.

Three of the wives who survived him told of his deserting them after a lusty marriage and after taking what money they possessed. He was exhumed when analysis revealed arsenic in the body of his last wife, Mrs. Nellie Fisher. In the press of the day Hoch was described as a Jekyll and Hyde character, being personable in appearance and without conscience in murder.

Case of Belle Gunness.

While Hoch was administering his slow poison Mrs. Belle Gunness, mother of three children, lured men into her farmhouse near La Porte, Ind., to take their funds through marriage and kill them when a new victim appeared. Her crimes were discovered in April of 1908, when her home burned. Authorities in digging for evidence as to the cause of the fire came across the bodies of several men. Later a privatae cemetery was discovered. In all, thirteen victims were found.

Ray Lamphere, her hired man, was arrested and convicted of complicity in the murders. He died in prison. Mrs. Gunness was at first believed to have died in the fire. As the months passed reports began to circulate that she was still alive. She was reported seen and captured a score of times—once a year ago—but the stories never materialized. At the time of the fire she was 49 years old, which would make her age today 72.

Landru, Bluebeard of France.

Perhaps the most famous wholesale murderer of more recent times was Henri Landru, the French Bluebeard, whose career is believed to have been a model for Powers. Landru was accused of making love to nearly 300 women and to have lured ten of them to his villa to kill them for their property. His eleventh and last victim was the son of one of the widows he was charged with killing.

Landru's trial was unique in criminal annals in that none of the bodies of his victims were ever recovered. His conviction was based on overwhelming circumstantial evidence. He was executed on the guillotine on Feb. 25, 1924.

Hoch, Holmes and Mrs. Gunness stand out in the history of wholesale murder, not only by the number of their crimes but through the complete absence of passion and hate in their crimes. They killed in greed for what little property their victims possessed.

Among the less prominent of this class of murderers is Tillie Klimek, who is serving a life term at Joliet prison for the murder of one of four husbands by poison here in 1922. She was suspected of having murdered three other husbands, who died suddenly, but she was not charged with these deaths. In addition to her greed Mrs. Klimek derived pleasure from watching her victims die.

SISTER OF POWERS' FIFTH VICTIM WILL GO TO CLARKSBURG

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Charles Fleming of Northboro said today she would go to Clarksburg, W. Va., to identify the body of her sister, Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke, fifth victim of Harry F. Powers, confessed killer of two women and three children.

Letters ostensibly written by Mrs. Lemke shortly after she left with Powers will be sent to Clarksburg authorities. Police believe Powers wrote the letters after he had killed Mrs. Lemke.

Mr. Fleming today described Powers, who came to his Northboro home July 27 and left next day with Mrs. Lemke, as "courteous," adding that "you couldn't help liking him."

"He seemed quite attached to her," he said, "but she was a bit reserved with him. She wanted to see the Iowa farm he was talking about before she committed herself. The next day she packed her linen and silver and went away with him."

When the time lock on a safe in the Mechanics Savings bank releases the bank's records tomorrow morning the police will go over Mrs. Lemke's accounts for the Clarksburg authorities. A report from there said a partly destroyed bank book showing deposits of $1,200 in her name had been found.

FARMER DROWNED IN LAKE.

Belleville, Ill., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Arthur J. Biehl Sr., 31, a farmer, was drowned in St. Clair Park lake, near here, early today, where he and two companions had been wading.

POWERS WRITES GRETA HE HOPES TO BE HER DADDY

A letter, written by "Bluebeard" Powers to Greta Eicher, his 14 year old murder victim, was found by the Park Ridge police in the slain widow Eicher's abandoned home yesterday. The letter, written in Clarksburg, W. Va., on May 1, addressing Greta as "My Dear Grethe," follows:

"You do not mind for me to address you by your given name? You see, your mother has told me so many lovely things about you that it would seem so distant for me to be calling you by the formal title of Miss Eicher—and then we are not strangers—are we, dear?

"Your mother always has so many lovely things to tell me about you—what you do and how well you are getting along at school—that really, dear, I just know that you are a sweet and darling little girl, and I love you, dear, because I believe you are all that your mother tells me you are.

"I would be very proud to have you as my own girl. Tell me—would you like to have me as your daddy—you could then have ever so many lovely things and we would have lots of fun together—wouldn't we, dear?

"Will you send me a copy of your grades at school—and also your schedule? I am very anxious to see how well you are doing and by your schedule I would know exactly what you are doing at any time during school hours—and write me today some time, dear, with love."

The letter was signed C. O. Pierson, the alias used by Powers in luring Mrs. Eicher and her three children to their deaths.

HUNT OAK PARK WIDOW BELIEVED WOOED BY KILLER

Name of "Mrs. Bailey" Is Found on Envelope.

Search was begun here yesterday for an Oak Park widow whom Harry F. Powers, Bluebeard murderer, is believed to have been wooing by mail as a potential murder victim. The search was prompted by the discovery of an envelope addressed to Mrs. A. D. Bailey of Oak Park among the effects of Powers at Clarksburg, W. Va.

The envelope bore no street address and contained no letter. Oak Park police were unable to locate the woman. She is not listed in the suburb's directory. Chicago and police of other suburbs were asked to join the hunt, on the possibility she may have been an earlier victim of Powers.

Postal Inquiry to Start.

Police here were informed that Powers had refused to tell of his relations with Mrs. Bailey. On the theory the name of Mrs. Bailey may have been used as an alias by an Oak Park woman, police are to confer with postal authorities in Oak Park today to determine whether a box has been rented in that name.

The report that the fifth victim of Powers was a Chicago woman and friend of Mrs. Asta Eicher prompted a hunt to determine her identity Powers had told Clarksburg police that the body was that of a friend of Mrs. Eicher.

Mayor William McKee of Park Ridge asked police of Chicago and all suburbs to work on the case. He questioned Mrs. Elizabeth Abernathy, nurse and friend of the Eicher family who had charge of the children when Mrs. Eicher left her home in company with Powers, then known as Cornelius Pierson, on June 25. She was discharged by Powers July 2 when he returned to the home to take the three children to Clarksburg.

Saw No Second Woman.

Mrs. Abernathy said she was positive a second woman did not accompany Powers on either trip. When he left with Mrs. Eicher, she said, the coupe was jammed with luggage and when he left with the children the automobile was again crowded.

As the investigation was pressed Clarksburg police notified Mayor McKee that Powers had changed his story. He named the woman as Dorothy Lemke of Northboro, Mass.

During the afternoon Park Ridge police located Mrs. Sarah Jennie Larsen, aunt and only relative of Mrs. Eicher, at 7674 La Jolla boulevard, La Jolla, Cal. Police learned of her whereabouts through Christian Nelson of Denver, Colo., who was believed to have been a relative of the family. He wired that he was only a friend of the family and gave Mrs. Larsen's address.

Ask Consent for Cremation.

Mrs. Larsen was unable to hear clearly over long distance telephone, but promised to forward information concerning the slain woman. She is to be asked to consent to cremation of Mrs. Eicher's body and those of the three children. The ashes are to be brought to Park Ridge after release at the inquest, which may be held today.

Services are to be conducted by the Rev. Walter D. Spangler of St. Luke's English Lutheran church in Park Ridge. The three children attended Sunday school in the church. A special memorial service is to be attended by playmates of the children in the church Sunday.

Police guard was placed at the Park Ridge home of the Eichers. Hundreds of persons came to look at the frame house and walk into the alley to view the garage where Powers had stored its furniture.

CHINESE EXODUS FROM SONORA CROWDS TRAINS

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Reports from Mazatlan, Sinaloa, today said that an exodus of Chinese from Sonora has begun in response to orders from the local authorities to leave the state by Sept. 1.

Trains arriving at Mazatlan today from Sonora were crowded with Chinese merchants and farmers who have been obliged to liquidate their businesses as a consequence of an anti-Chinese campaign, against which the Chinese minister here, Sam Young, has made urgent protests.

Mazatlan dispatches today said state authorities in Sinaloa, which borders on Sonora and where an anti-Chinese campaign also is in progress, have requested Nationalist committees in charge of the campaign not to carry out a Chinese boycott.

FRENCH REGARD LOAN TO BRITAIN A POLITICAL COUP

Insist London Must Now "Court" Paris.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 30.—Having coöperated "fifty-fifty" with the United States for a second time within a space of a few weeks in propping Great Britain's tottering finances, the French public for perhaps the first time in recent history refrains from exultation over the other fellow's plight.

A tough, hard headed, practical people, the French have sense enough to know that a bankrupt Great Britain would do them no good. They are not forgetting that they have something like $1,000,000,000 in credit sunk in British banks and industry, which they do not dare risk losing, not to mention Great Britain as a healthy customer and her huge contribution to the invisible income provided by tourists, now one of France's big sources of revenue.

After all, Great Britain pours more travelers into France every summer than even the United States.

No Political Strings.

For the first time since the war France is granting a big loan without political strings tied to it. But that emphatically does not imply altruism, since under the circumstances no strings are necessary, it is pointed out. Great Britain, it is argued here, must henceforth court French good will politically. One conservative daily remarks brutally:

"The loan impresses our French press as having the most important consequences, since it must bring Great Britain around to close collaboration with us, not only economically but also politically."

As the French see it, their newly won financial advantage over their erstwhile financial superior to the north puts a end to the irritating frustration of their attempts in recent years to build up domination of Europe.

The Case of Austria.

Austria is an excellent case in point. When the Kredit Anstalt was threatened with a crash last May and the Viennese republic desperately needed money to save herself from ruin, France was hopeful of providing the amount necessary in return for Austria's abandonment of that thorn in French flesh, the proposed Austro-German customs union. The British stepped in and extended the Austrians the needed short term credit, and the French were once more compelled to bite their nails in rage.

Now it is apparent that the British will be unable to renew the loan when it comes due. The only other sources of the imperative new loan are France and the United States. The United States has no political interest in Austria and probably would not lend money as a purely financial operation because Austria's condition is believed to be insecure.

Austria Ready to Scrap Union.

France, it is believed, will grant the loan and Austria will then abandon the customs union. In fact, it is already whispered in the French press that Johann Schober, foreign minister, has given informal assurance to the French envoy at Vienna that even though the customs union is approved by The Hague court—which seems likely—Austria is prepared to drope the whole business. For similar reasons the British hold on Germany will diminish and France's will increase unless the United States chooses to exercise her superior financial power.

Sees Monroe Doctrine "Scrapped."

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Aug. 30.—The formidable expansion of American investments abroad has definitely terminated America's 145 year old policy of freedom from foreign entanglements, in the opinion of Victor Henry Berenger, former French ambassador to Washington and one of the leaders of the French senate.

In a lengthy explanation of what he regards as America's new position in world affairs, the co-author of the Mellon-Berenger debt funding agreement maintains in effect that recent events culminating in the full official participation of Secretaries Stimson and Mellon in the vitally important European negotiations have brought to a close that long period of American isolation first enjoined by George Washington and later embodied in the famous doctrine of President Monroe.

Berenger has pointed out that without actually forming a part of the American constitution the declarations of Washington and Monroe on foreign policy have remained, until recently, the arch of the temple—the substance of America's attitude regarding foreign relations.

Wilson and Hoover Policies.

In an effort to change this long fixed idea, Berenger continues, the late President Wilson paid with his popularity, then his health, and finally his life, and since then America has sent only "official observers" to Europe.

"Then President Hoover issues his messages to the world and sends his secretary of the treasury and his secretary of state to negotiate with European ministers," continues Berenger.

"This came after the launching of the presidential message of June 20, which to all intents and purposes was more of a message of entanglement than one of isolation.

"What has taken place on the other side of the Atlantic to make such a marked derogation of the doctrines of Washington and Monroe possible and even popular? For seven years American bankers have been engaged in entangling the United States with Europe. Investments of American money in the European continent alone now exceed $4,000,000,000, while the annual interest return from this money, including interest from war debts, is more than $5,000,000,000.

Network of U. S. Steel and Gold.

"America has flooded Europe with ships, motion pictures, factories, and every description of machine, electrical equipment and radios. In addition, Americans have associated themselves with Europeans in London, Paris, Berlin, Rome, Moscow, Madrid, Athens, Belgrade, Vienna, Budapest and Sofia. Indeed, the network of steel and gold that America has cast upon Europe has been so powerful that it has become clogged of its own weight.

"In Germany alone Americans have financed to the extent of $1,500,000,000. In short, a crash in Berlin is immediately felt in Washington, and every panic in Frankfort causes trembling in Wall street. And if the crisis has become worse and extended itself to the city of London, we find the United States so entangled that it remains in danger of being strangled."

BRITISH CABINET TO START CUTTING BUDGET TODAY

MacDonald to Take Plane for London.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 30.—Promptly at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon Great Britain's emergency national government will get down to actual work on the economy program. It is expected that the cabinet will meet daily in an effort to iron out the proposals for the special session of parliament which opens Sept. 8.

Today cabinet members studied the completed draft of the program, foregoing their usual week-end holiday. Prime Minister MacDonald will not return to London from his home in Lossiemouth, Scotland, tonight. He announced that he would make the trip by plane early tomorrow in order to enjoy another evening of rest at his home.

Cabinet Rushes Task.

Despite the hope of the Labor party opposition that the cabinet will not be able to get its economy legislation ready in time, it is learned that there is not the slightest indication that the Downing street government will not be prepared.

The Laborites, therefore, are confronted with the difficulty of being in two places at once, for the trades union congress opens at Bristol on the day before parliament meets. Arthur Henderson, former foreign minister, and other Labor leaders who will oppose the government's legislation, are also scheduled to participate at the trades union meeting.

But Mr. Henderson's cohorts are prepared to mass an offensive in parliament, and it is fully recognized that they will try every legislative trick to obstruct the passage of the proposed economy measures. The government is also searching its political armory for weapons. It will probably resort to the "guillotine" which will nip the opposition debate as fast as it crops up.

Dole Cut Plan Denounced.

The agenda of the trades' union congress was drawn up before the fall of Mr. MacDonald's Labor government. It includes such items as a new workers' charter, a six hour day, and benefits for the unemployed.

Several hundred trades union and Labor branch meetings were held throughout the country today. Resolutions denouncing the government's plan to cut the dole payments for unemployed by 10 per cent were adopted.

INVESTMENTS IN U. S. MASSED TO BACK UP BRITAIN'S NEW LOAN

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Aug. 30.—British securities amounting to $500,000,000 which were secretly mobilized abroad last week, are reported tonight to have played a decisive part when the new National government obtained its $400,000,000 credit from American and French b nks.

The prime mover in this action, says the Labor Daily Herald, was the wealthy London Prudential Assurance company which, upon hearing of the government's plight and the fact that the Bank of England's recently granted $250,000,000 credit was almost exhausted, immediately offered its investments in the United States to the government to bolster up the pound sterling.

Other insurance companies and large investment houses are said to have followed, with the result that in a few hours there were ample dollar securities available to back any credit the British government might require.

ATTEMPTS TO ROB A CONSTABLE AT SHERIFF'S PICNIC

The second annual sheriffs' picnic, sponsored by Sheriff Lester Tiffany of Lake county, was held yesterday on the Public Service company's model farm at Mundelein. The large crowd that attended included many deputies, bailiffs, policemen, and constables. During a series of thrilling sports events Constable John Knox of Newport township felt a tug at his rear pocket. He seized Thomas Chrissman, 17 year old, of 2115 Cornelia avenue, Chicago, and recovered a wallet containing $200.

Constable Knox marched his prisoner through the assembled thousands to the platform where sat Sheriff Tiffany. Tiffany ordered Chrissman taken to the Lake Forest jail where he was booked for larceny.

"Picking on a constable at a sheriffs' picnic is poor business," said the sheriff.

FIRE DAMAGES FAMOUS CHURCH AT WASHINGTON

The Rev. George W. Atkinson, rector of the church, thrice entered the flaming structure to remove ecclesiastical valuables from the altar.

Patients in the Casualty hospital, which adjoins the church, remained in their wards, but officials were prepared to evacuate them if it had become necessary.

Deck Streets in Flags for Ocean Flyers.

TOKIO, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Waving flags took the place of Broadway's traditional ticker tape swirl for heroes in this municipality's official reception today for Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh. Through five long blocks the flying colonel and his wife rode in a flower decked open automobile, with Mayor Hidejiro Nagata and American Ambassador W. Cameron Forbes, followed by a flag waving crowd.

Specially made Japanese and American flags were supplied the populace by city authorities. The climax of the reception came at the open air auditorium at Hibiya park, where 6,000 men and women arose with shouts of "Banzai!" and much flag waving as the famous pair walked down an aisle to the stage.

Guests of Americans at Tea.

The Lindberghs first were guests at a tea given by the American association at the Imperial hotel. Afterward Mayor Nagata called for them in a car, the body of which was a mass of fresh greenery. Tokio's coat of arms, on either side of the machine, was outlined with yellow asters and white chrysanthemums, while at the car's four corners were posts of ferns.

Headed by several companies of Boy Scouts and the Scout brass band, they were driven to the auditorium, where Mayor Nagata welcomed Col. Lindbergh and his wife in the name of Tokio and the 90,000,000 people of Japan. After mentioning the colonel's Atlantic flight and landing and their flight here from the United States he paid tribute to Anne for "her bravery, courage, and gentleness in all that she has done in assisting her husband."

In response, Col. Lindbergh thanked the government and people for their cordial welcome and added that he and his wife were "looking forward to the time when you will be visiting us in America via airplanes, as we came to visit you in Japan."

Anne Given Bouquet.

At the conclusion of the reception Anne was presented with a huge bouquet as a gift of the mayor, and with many "Banzais!" and much flag waving from the crowd they left the auditorium, going to the home of Baron Hachiremon Mitsui, where they were dinner guests.

Ambassador Forbes and other members of the American embassy were among the 46 guests.

Spectacular Accident at Cleveland.

Cleveland Municipal Airport, Aug. 31.—[Special.]—Two marine flyers collided in the air while executing a maneuver in a formation of nine Curtis Hawks this afternoon just after the opening of the national air race session and both automatically became members of the Caterpillar club when they escaped death by jumping with their parachutes. The collision was witnessed by sixty thousand spectators in the grandstand.

Lieut. L. H. "Sandy" Sanderson, commanding officer of Marine squadron 9 from the marine training base at Quantico, Va., crashed into the left side of the fuselage of a Hawk piloted by Lieut. W. O. Brice at an altitude of about 1,500 feet as the squadron swung upward in a climbing turn. Lieut. Brice was thrown forward in his cockpit, his head hit the cowling and he nearly lost consciousness, but recovered quickly to switch off his gas line and jump out. He was followed immediately by Lieut. Sanderson, who also switched off his gas line.

Planes Falls Close to Crowd.

The two marines landed without injury, but both planes fell in tight spins. Lieut. Brice's crashed into the side of a schoolhouse immediately east of the airport and Lieut. Sanderson's just outside the airport near a road jammed with automobiles and pedestrians en route to the races. No one was injured and neither plane caught fire.

The jumps were the first made by the two marines. They were brought to the speakers' stand and introduced by Henry Wacker of Akron, who became the first member of the Caterpillar club, composed of all pilots who save their lives by bailing out with chutes. Wacker jumped in Chicago in 1923 when a Goodyear blimp caught fire and fell, killing 13.

Typical of the service, Marines Sanderson and Brice will fly tonight in the only two marine planes at the race equipped for night flying. The two officers were flying the two other planes equipped for night flying when they collided.

Hopes to Better Records.

Early Tuesday six entries in the Vincennes trophy speed race from Los Angeles to Cleveland will roar away on what may be for one of them a new record transcontinental flight, unless the trophy race conditions do not specify the planes must land here; all they have to do is flash across the finish line and speed on toward New York. Prizes totaling $15,000 will be awarded in the race.

Maj. James H. Doolittle, former army crack pilot, who left Chicago Friday in his Laird biplane, a "Speedwing Solution" by a 530 horse power Wasp Jr., which is supercharged on a 10 to 1 ratio, for Los Angeles, has told race officials he believes he will be able to better the record time of Capt. Frank Hawks of 12 hours 25 minutes and 3 seconds for the coast to coast flight. Maj. Doolittle of St. Louis is an entry of the Cleveland Speed foundation.

Maj. Doolittle's biggest handicap will be hay fever. When he left Chicago his baggage consisted of one shirt and sixty handkerchiefs.

Lee Shoenhair, piloting the only other Laird "Speedwing Solution" entered in the trophy race, in which he had a Wright J. P. motor supercharged to 500 horse power, cracked up on landing at St. Louis en route to Los Angeles Saturday, when a brake bearing froze, reducing the number of contestants to six.

Harold S. Johnson of Chicago, flying a Lockheed Orion, powered by a Wasp motor, entered by Continental Airways, Inc., is another contestant. Two Lockheed Altairs will be flown in the dash by Capt. Ira C. Eaker of Bolling field, Washington, D. C., and Lou Reichers of Arlington, N. J. Capt. Eaker's Lockheed is powered by a Wasp, series E, while Reichers' Lockheed, entered by Bernarr MacFadden, publisher, is powered by a Wright Cyclone motor supercharged to an estimated 700 horsepower.

Endurance Flyer in Race.

Walter J. Hunter of the Hunter brothers, who set a refueling endurance record at Chicago last year, will fly a Travelair Mystery S plane powered by a Wright J. P. motor. Hunter has incorporated some new power and streamlining features in his plane.

A dark horse is the "Wee Wink," to be flown by James R. Weddel of Paterson, La., for the designer, Harry Williams, sportsman pilot. The "Wee Wink" is a low wing monoplane powered by a Wasp Jr. motor and Williams claims it is capable of 286 miles an hour.

Fifty-one Finish Sweepstakes.

Fifty-one of the 52 starters in the crosscountry sweepstakes finished this afternoon, establishing a high degree of reliability for the many types of planes contesting. One woman pilot dropped out of the race.

Phoebe Omlie of Memphis, flying a Warner powered monocoupe in the Tronscontinental Sweepstakes handicap air Derby, stands to win $10,000 in prize money for taking first place in the women's division, according to official computations of race officials tonight. She also won first place in the combined sweepstakes of men and women pilots, according to incomplete but semi-official figures.

Second place in the women's division was won by Martie Bowman and third by Moe Haizlip. The records were computed from fifteen control points along the route from Santa Monica, Cal., to Cleveland. Fifty-one of the 52 planes starting in the Derby landed at Cleveland municipal airport late today, ending a week's flight from the west coast.

Livingston Wins Prize.

Men in the sweepstakes were rated: D. C. Warren, Alemada, Cal., who flew a D. H. Moth, Gypsy powered; Lee W. Brusse, Glendale, Cal., in a Waco F, Kinner B-5 powered, and Eldon Cessna, Wichita, Kas., whose Cessna AW, Warner Scarib powered, was first to cross the finish line.

John R. Livingston of Aurora, Ill., veteran race pilot, won first place in the men's dead stick landing contest and a prize of $100, in his Warner powered monocoupe by stopping only 1 foot 9 inches from the marker. W. C. Hartley of South Bend, Ind., won first place in a parachute jumping contest and a prize of $100, reaching the ground only 80 feet 11 inches from the center of the circle.

PASSENGER DIES, PILOT INJURED AS PLANE FALLS

Brothers Crash in Field Near Hammond.

Clarence Hanson, 27 years old of Gary was instantly killed and his brother, James L. Hanson, 26 years old, 8137 Kingston avenue, was seriously injured yesterday when a plane piloted by the latter crashed in a cornfield near the village of St. John, Ind., fifteen miles south of Hammond.

Witnesses said that the plane, flying a few hundred feet above the ground, went into a tailspin. James Hanson was taken to St. Margaret's hospital in Hammond, where it was said he will probably recover.

Information Is Refused.

The brothers bought the plane, a States biplane, from the States Aircraft company of Chicago Heights a few weeks ago. When he learned of the accident, Melvin M. Farmer, president of the company, conducted a group of employés to the scene and took possession of the cornfield, barring all spectators. Farmer refused to give any information regarding the crash.

James Hanson, a real estate broker, received his private pilot's license three weeks ago. He and his brother had kept their plane at the Ford airport at Lansing, and had taken flights almost daily since that time, attaches of the field said.

Start on Short Flight.

The Hansons took the plane up yesterday noon, saying that they were going for a short flight. The accident took place half an hour later.

Both men were married. Clarence Hanson was manager of the Sears, Roebuck store in Gary.

FORMER RAIL GROUP HEAD DIES.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Michael Schirk, 75, former president of the Burlington Railroad Veterans association, died here today of injuries suffered last Wednesday night when he was struck by an automobile.

WE KNOW
SHORT CUTS
that would cheapen this chair
...but we did not use one of them

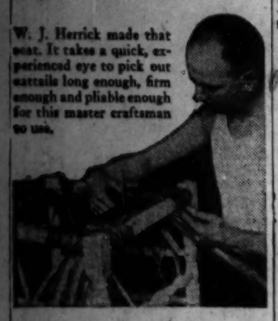
WE know them because we have seen how mass production furniture can be turned out. In this sturdy and beautiful Windsor Chair, copied from a fine museum piece—the ancient name of which is the "Toper's Chair"—the seat is one wide piece of richly grained wood. It is easier to glue smaller pieces together—but it would be neither so satisfying to look at nor so staunch to sit on.

The tenons of the posts come clear through the seat, and are wedged from the top—tight wood-to-wood joinery. It would be easier to stick them in shallow holes on the under side, only without wedges—but that would make it easier to get them out again, too.

The spindles are of hickory, hand-split to insure grace and strength—not simply sawed out, regardless of grain, and turned down on an automatic lathe.

We know all the detours of easy-going methods—know them to abhor them. And our colony of 300 craftsmen build the honest, sincere way with surprising deftness and speed resulting in the lowest prices that can possibly be achieved for essential joinery.

Here's another chair, with an interesting ladder back with correct mushroom arms—a graceful assembly of mellow maple lines or warm walnut. The seat is a single continuous strand of rush.



W. J. Herrick made that seat. It takes a quick, experienced eye to pick out cattails long enough, firm enough and pliable enough for this master craftsman to use.

If you could watch W. J. Herrick weave the rushes in and out, with sure, flying fingers, you would know why we feel certain that not three men in America can weave a seat like his. An endless rhythmic coil—built for beauty and built for wear. Mass production copies are made of twisted paper. That is the only way a lower price can be offered.

Every Danersk piece is like that. We would be willing to let our reputation stand or fall on the character, the fidelity of design, the honesty of craftsmanship of any one of the hundreds of interesting pieces we shall be happy to show you at any time in our showrooms.

All possible savings in present costs of labor and materials are passed on to the purchaser in our prices.

WEATHER BUREAU TO ADD TO DATA GIVEN AIR LINES

Summaries Will Be Made Every Three Hours.

Additional service to aviation will be inaugurated by the Chicago weather bureau in October, C. A. Donnel, principal meteorologist, announced yesterday in discussing what the government does to keep pilots acquainted with flying conditions. One-third of the annual appropriation of about $5,000,000 is expended by the weather bureau in supplying data to flyers, Mr. Donnel said.

The new service will consist of summaries every three hours of "the weather now and soon to be" along the main air routes. These summaries, which will be available to all pilots at the Chicago airport, will give conditions along the routes, visibility, ceiling height, wind direction and velocity, etc., and forecast what may be expected during the next three hours. This service already is supplied by the weather bureaus of Cleveland, Omaha, Oakland, Salt Lake City, Atlanta, and Dallas.

Provide Complete Service.

With the adoption of this supplemental service, Mr. Donnel said, the flyer will be provided with all the weather information he could possibly desire. At present the Chicago bureau issues route forecasts, which are used for planning flights and as a basis for subsequent trip forecasts every twelve hours, at 9 a. m. and 9 p. m.

The following routes are covered by the Chicago forecasts: Chicago-Omaha, Chicago-Kansas City, Omaha-Cheyenne, Kansas City-Denver, Kansas City-Amarillo, Kansas City-Dallas, Omaha-St. Louis, Chicago-Twin Cities, Chicago-Cleveland, Chicago-Detroit, Chicago-St. Louis, Chicago-Evansville, Chicago-Cincinnati, St. Louis-Columbus, St. Louis-Tulsa, and Twin Cities-Pembina (N. D.).

In addition to the route forecast, the weather bureau officials stationed day and night at the airport issue trip forecasts at any time any pilot desires such information. These forecasts are based both on the last route forecast and on reports coming in every hour from every station along the air lines over teletype wires leased by the department of commerce.

Make Special Broadcasts.

Special radio broadcasts are made every hour for principal lines by the department of commerce, the weather bureau officials supplying the information. The weather is broadcast as follows: Chicago to Iowa City on the hour, with conditions at all stations along the line, plus the Omaha weather; Chicago to Helmar, Ind., plus Cleveland and Detroit, at a quarter after; Chicago to Nashville, plus Cincinnati and Indianapolis, at five minutes after; Chicago to St. Louis at 35 minutes after; Chicago to Kansas City at 45 minutes after, and Chicago to the Twin Cities at 50 minutes after.

Ceiling heights and visibility are the principal data desired by pilots, Mr. Donnel said. The ceiling height is ascertained by a new instrument called the clinometer, which employs a powerful light beam. In the daytime the ceiling height is learned by sending up toy balloons filled with hydrogen gas. The speed of these balloons is known, so that by observing when they disappear from view the height of the ceiling may be computed. Visibility is computed by observing fixed objects, the distance between which is known.

AERO EXPLORERS OF ANCIENT INCA COUNTRY RETURN

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Robert Shippee and his co-worker, George R. [Tuck] Johnson and their three companions of the Shippee-Johnson Peruvian expedition will land home Tuesday on the Grace liner Santa Clara which docks in Brooklyn. In tribute to their months of archaeological research from the air and peaks of the Peruvian Andes the expedition will be met at the dock by a delegation of the American Geographical society, headed by Dr. John F. Finley, president.

Shippee, a resident of Red Bank, N. J., and who is but 20 years old, is bringing with him the curious animal, "Pibe," which he calls a Peruvian llama hound. The animal is in addition to the long beard which Shippee has grown in airplanes, on boats, in secluded mountain camps and in the fashionable patios of Lima, Peru, during his absence from the United States.

GERMS HIDE In the Crypts of Your MOUTH!

... Flush Them Out!

Look at these highly magnified pictures of a tongue and gland. In your mouth are thousands and thousands of tiny microscopic crypts like these. Look how some of these crypts actually come together at their openings. Within their folds bacteria hide securely. No antiseptic, no mouth wash that merely touches the surface of the tissues, no matter how strong, can possibly reach these safely hidden germs.

New Tooth Cleanser EXPELS Bacteria

Ora-Noid is a mixture of salts. Combined with the saliva, it exerts a high osmotic force. (Ask any physician about the law of osmosis.) This force draws out excess fluids from within the tissues. As these fluids are drawn into the Ora-Noid solution, bacteria hidden away in the tissue crypts are flushed out and carried away.

Complete Oral Prophylactic

Ora-Noid, like other dentifrices, is a most efficient tooth cleanser. It keeps the teeth sparkling white. But it does much more!

It cleans the mouth; keeps the gums in condition; strengthens all the tissues of the mouth, including the tongue, the palate, the throat and the mucous membrane on the inside of the cheeks. Thus Ora-Noid is a complete oral prophylactic in itself.

NOT An Antiseptic

Ora-Noid in itself is not at all an antiseptic. It does not attack any tissues nor destroy anything inside nor outside the membranes of the mouth. It neutralizes acids. It relieves inflammation wherever it is present. It helps nature to make repairs.

Keeps Teeth and Mouth Healthy

If your teeth are sound, keep them so by the use of Ora-Noid. No antiseptic, no tooth paste needed. If you already have the slightest touch of pyorrhea, loose teeth, receding or bleeding gums, you need Ora-Noid—at once!

Walgreen's unhesitatingly offer Ora-Noid Mouth Powder on a binding money-back guarantee. Get a $1.00 can and if you do not find that it does all that is claimed for it, your money is cheerfully refunded.

Call for special Ora-Noid pamphlet on "Care of the Teeth"—It contains information of the highest value to those who want sound, beautiful teeth and a healthy mouth. It is given free to those who call.

SHREWD OWNERS MAKING ILLINOIS FARMS PROSPER

BY PAUL POTTER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Princeton, Ill., Aug. 30.—[Special.] Despite the fact that it is taking a bushel of oats or nearly a bushel of corn to buy Illinois farmers a shoe these days, a few of the abler farmers who have developed live stock feeding as an outlet for their grain and hay may be found in nearly every county of the state making money this year.

In each of such counties as Bureau, Lee, La Salle, and McLean there are from 50 to 100 farmers who are head and shoulders above their neighbors last year and this because they found a winning combination that would make their farms pay in lean years as well as fat ones.

Shrewd Alone Make Money.

A survey of the general farming conditions of the state, completed this week, showed decidedly the plight of the majority of farmers where the cash market for field crops is the main source of revenue. In addition, the survey indicated that even dairy and poultry incomes of most farmers depending upon nation-wide markets took place all but the shrewd minority "into the red."

"The cattle we sold in Chicago last year brought us 82 cents a bushel for our corn," asserted a La Salle county farmer whom most farmers in his community are envying because of his "luck." Yet he and two others were the only ones in the township that didn't sell out during the low prices of June and July.

Another veteran owner of 240 acres, admitting that he expected to end the year with a substantial bank balance, has his pigs and baby beef calves, with them ten months to a year, and continues he has continued to show a profit each year since the war.

Land Fertility Increased.

His land has been built up in fertility, by adding 60 to 100 loads of manure each year, until his corn yields even in last year's drought averaged 4 bushels to the acre. The heavily fertilized land not only produced extra money per acre, but prevented the sign of burned corn in his fields.

Most of the farms that are found to be paying in these times are owned by the men who work them.

The delinquency of farm credit this year, showing the majority of farmers who might want to turn to live stock feeding, is hailed by these veteran operators as a benefit to keep the brakes on overproduction of meat and dairy products. Their main concern, it develops, is that cheap wheat in the western range states may cause more dumping of cattle out of the corn belt.

One Man Farms Prosperous.

Of outstanding interest in the last ten years in Illinois farming, the survey showed, has been the increase in number of one-man farms, where the operator attempts to minimize labor costs and to establish a diversified source of income as well as year round use for his time. This, farmers reported, caused the purchase of tractors and farm machinery in previous years, which would be impossible under present differences between farm and equipment prices.

"What do you regard as necessary for a farm to pay in 1931?" was asked several successful farmers in Lasalle, Bureau and Knox counties.

Most of the answers placed freedom from indebtedness for land, buildings and equipment first. Next came the need for having live stock to which the grain could be fed.

BETTER OFF THAN CITY FOLK, LEGGE SHOWS FARMERS

Kankakee, Ill., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Agriculture has withstood the economic depression better than many other major American industries, Alexander Legge, former chairman of the federal farm board, said today in an address before a soil and crop association rally.

ALEXANDER LEGGE.

Legge pointed to department of agriculture statistics showing that the estimated $43,000,000,000 invested in farm realty has a mortgage debt of only 22 per cent. In comparison, he said, railroads are bonded to the limit of their borrowing capacity and other industries are deeply in debt.

Farmers as a class were said by Legge to be in better financial condition than city workers or small business men. Big business, he said, also had "pulled up its belt to the last notch."

"It is indeed a bad situation when farmers can't sell their products for enough to meet the cost of raising them," Legge said, "but consider the millions of workers who can find nothing to do.

"They can only apply for charity. The farmer, on the other hand, at least has a roof over his head and nourishing food produced on his own soil whereby to keep body and soul together."

RECOVERING FROM ROBBERY BEATING.

LOUISIANA FAZED FOR SUBSTITUTE TO COTTON CROP

Planters and Help Know No Other Farming.

New Orleans, La., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Gov. Huey P. Long's plan to prohibit the growing of a cotton crop in 1932 has placed the planters of that commodity in a quandary.

His action came so suddenly that few have given thought to its portent and consequences. Few, however, believe that other states will join Louisiana in sufficient numbers to make the law become effective.

If denied the right to grow cotton for one year a good many farmers say they would not be prepared to substitute other crops. For generations they have grown cotton and all of their equipment and facilities have been organized for the growing of this staple. Every plantation has its mules, its machinery for growing cotton. Many planters claim that if they changed to other crops a large part of this equipment would be useless.

Know Cotton Raising Only.

Nearly every cotton plantation has quarters for housing its colored workers. These Negroes know only how to grow cotton. The planters themselves know only how to grow cotton. They have thought of cotton for years. Many of them say that as no cotton crop law would only be effective for a year it would not pay them to change to other crops.

The cotton belt of north Louisiana, central Louisiana and some of the river parishes are not suitable for growing wheat or other small grains. The planter would have to resort to corn or all kinds of vegetables, the growing of which they are unfamiliar.

Some of those who are in favor of Gov. Long's plan and are hoping for its adoption by other states say that it will do the land good to take a rest and that there will be no sub crops.

They claim that they will get more by holding their cotton than by growing another crop and selling it at a low price. They see 20 cent cotton through the vision of Gov. Long. They say that they would rather grow one crop at 20 cents than two crops at 5 to 8 cents a pound.

Little Money in Vegetables.

They admit that with the markets crowded with sweet potatoes, cabbage, peas, and other so-called truck that they would have little chance in one year of making any money from those crops. They admit that their Negro laborers don't know how to grow anything but cotton. They admit that the taking care of these hundreds and thousands of Negroes in the state will become a problem.

New Orleans ships more cotton as a usual thing than any other port in the world. The Mississippi river is lined with cotton warehouses. Its docks are crowded with cotton carrying ships. Hundreds of men make their living by handling cotton. Shipping interests with all of their ramifications depend upon cotton for an income, even riches.

With only one crop to handle, Orleanians who have thought over the matter wonder what is to take its place. In the cold gray dawn of the morning after, when the shouting has been stilled, when airplanes Texas bound have landed, thoughtful business men of New Orleans are beginning to wonder if this one crop plan is not an economic dream.

FARM BOARD HAS 150 MILLIONS TIED UP WITH COTTON

Huge Loss from Low Price in Sight.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—The anxiety being displayed by farm board members and other government officials over the fate of this year's bumper cotton crop has behind it another motive in addition to concern over the southern farmer's well being.

Through its policy of assisting agriculture, the United States government has more than 150 millions tied up in the fate of the cotton market.

On July 1, the farm board had loans outstanding on cotton to the tune of 117 million dollars. Since then some of this amount has been repaid but since then also, the board has committed itself to furnish loans on this year's crop which may total between 15 and 20 millions.

In addition to the farm board loans, the department of agriculture has feed, seed and fertilizer loans totaling $36,000,000 which are secured by liens on the cotton harvest.

Hangs Head Downward for Nearly 12 Hours; Rescued

Annisquam, Mass., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Caught by her hair in a clump of bushes half way down the face of a 75 foot cliff at the base of Squam rock, Miss Miriam Coe, 50, formerly of New York, hung head downward for nearly twelve hours before two passersby heard her screams and rescued her.

HOODLUMS SHOOT A BROOKLYN GIRL, PERIL CHILDREN

Fire Into Street as Auto Speeds Away.

The girl was Jennie Ballantino. She was standing with a group of friends at a street intersection when the gunmen opened fire on an enemy standing one block away. One of the wildly fired bullets struck her in the wrist.

Hundreds of women and children scurried to cover as the big car with drawn curtains sped away. Detectives in the Hamilton avenue station two blocks away heard the shots and found Joseph Santora emerging from a doorway into which he had ducked when the shooting started.

Santora, a former boss longshoreman and the father of twelve children, admitted that he probably was the target of the gunmen and agreed to go to the police station to give the police what help he could in capturing his would-be assailants. He had been to the police station earlier in the day, it was said, to complain against racketeers who had tried to extort money from him.

The Brooklyn shooting occurred while police were congratulating themselves for having rounded up a gang they held responsible for two murders and a long list of robberies, and for having nipped a possible murder in the making.

Ernest Soricelli, a former henchman of "Dutch" Schultz, Bronx beer runner, made no secret of the fact that he was gunning for Vincent Coll, a rival racketeer, to avenge the death of his brother, John, a former beer truck driver for Schultz.

TWO MARKSMEN OFFER TO AID N. Y. IN GANG WARFARE

Flagstaff, Me., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Two veteran Maine hunting guides, Allie W. Deming and Fred York, both crack rifle shots, will leave tomorrow for New York City where they have offered their services to Police Commissioner Mulrooney to help clean up the gangsters.

Incensed at the killing of children, Deming conceived the idea that he and York could render valuable assistance to the police if they could accompany the officers in their raids on gangster strongholds.

"From what I can gather," Deming declared, "it seems the New York police are afraid to shoot if the man they're aiming at is running in a crowd. They're afraid they'll hit the wrong man. Now, York and I have shot at running deer and other game all our lives—we're snap shots like most other guides and we generally hit what we aim at, even if it's on the run and only a flicker."

PROSECUTORS TO PLUG HOLES IN BOND CASES

Doubt Power of Police to Act.

Prosecutors yesterday planned action to block one of the loopholes through which, they say, corrupt professional bondsmen have been enabled to schedule worthless property as bail in the Municipal court.

The loophole in procedure was discovered by Assistant State's Attorneys Julius Skrydlewsky and Justus Mosart, when they set out to obtain indictments on perjury charges against a dozen bondsmen for filing false oaths through which they scheduled valueless or insufficient real estate for bail bonds.

The prosecutors found that there is serious doubt as to the power of police officials to administer oaths. A case in which this power is tested is now pending in the Appellate court. If the police sergeants and lieutenants are powerless to administer oaths then the false statements of bondsmen concerning their property schedules cannot be considered as perjury.

Want Police to Be Notaries.

In order to prevent a recurrence of such a situation the assistant state's attorney said they would ask Chief Justice Sonsteby of the Municipal court to order that all police officials who take bonds be sworn in as notaries public. They then would be empowered to certify sworn statements and falsehoods told under oath before them would be considered as perjury.

Although the pending decision of the Appellate court will affect vitally the cases against a dozen bondsmen who recently have been investigated, the prosecutors said that indictments against the men would be sought next week.

"We will go ahead with our work," Prosecutor Skrydlewsky said. "I am going to ask the indictments. Then we will let the matter rest until the higher court has reached its decision."

Test In Appellate Court.

The test case now in the Appellate court is that of James Goodman, a professional bondsman, who was sentenced for perjury. In the testimony given during his trial it was disclosed that he had purchased a vacant lot at 55th and Wallace streets for a price of $900. With this as surety he had posted a number of bonds. In a single night, it was learned, Goodman used this same lot for as many as ten bonds, aggregating a total of $15,000.

In his appeal Goodman, through Attorney Frank McDonald, charged that the desk sergeants to whom he had given sworn statements as to the value of his property were not empowered to administer oaths.

Five Day Week Is Asked of New York Legislature

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—In a letter sent today to legislative leaders at Albany, the state socialist organization, through Norman Thomas and former Assemblyman Louis D. Wladman, urged that the unemployment relief program include the extension of the 5 day week to general industry, the enactment of unemployment insurance laws, and the launching of an extensive housing construction program in "slum" areas.

Tries to Enter Argentine President's Home; Wounds 3

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 30.—(AP)—A bricklayer today wounded three soldiers with a knife and was himself badly wounded when he attempted to enter the government house. An official communication issued afterward said the man, Juan Masiello, was insane. Officials denied the attack was an attempt on the life of President Uriburu, who had just left the building.

ROOSEVELT JOB AID PLAN COMES FIRST IN SPECIAL SESSION

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Gov. Roosevelt's unemployment relief commission had the right of way for the second week of the special session of the New York state legislature as the senators and assemblymen returned to Albany tonight.

Senator George R. Fearon, Republican majority leader, announced at Syracuse that the state's relief measures would be pushed through as speedily as possible.

"Other issues can wait," he said. He pointed out that home relief in 20 cities must be aided by outside help this winter, and "the only place they can get it is from the state."

"The governor and legislature are in agreement on that proposition."

The administration phase of the relief plan seems to be the only point of difference between Gov. Roosevelt and the Republican legislative majority. The governor, in his message last week, proposed that a committee of three to serve without pay be appointed to supervise the distribution of the $20,000,000 fund to be raised. The Republican leaders have expressed their opinion that it can be handled through the existing state welfare agency and its county and city sub-divisions. All seem in accord with the plan to raise the money by a 50 per cent increase in the state income tax.

All interested groups will be given the opportunity to voice their opinions on the relief measures, the leaders of both parties have agreed, before they come before the senate and assembly for vote.

14 States to Fight Rate Increase.

ically that he is not to be crucified to maintain a high rate of wages and salaries."

South Dakota, Iowa, Minnesota, Kansas, Nebraska, and North Dakota have joined in a motion for the dismissal of the petition. This will be argued at the close of the case.

The Chicago Association of Commerce and similar organizations in Cleveland and Buffalo have passed resolutions favoring the increase. The Chicago live stock and packing interests, however, have not indorsed it.

S. J. Willson, president of the American Paper and Pulp association, has testified that a canvass of paper shippers has shown "an almost unanimous protest against an increase, which would mean $20,000,000 to the paper industry."

Others Join in Protest.

Tennessee manufacturers, Florida fruit growers, California growers, Oregon and Washington sheep and fruit men, have joined in the protest.

Frank S. Carey of Chicago, president of the National Retail Coal association, told the commission that any increase would be reflected in an increase of price of coal to the consumer. The increase in the use of natural gas, he said, had displaced 50 million tons of coal, which made a reduction in traffic returns to the railroads of $100,000,000. An adjustment in the coal and coke rates to preserve present differentials is included in the railroad petition.

Security holders have been represented at the hearings by Edward D. Duffield of the Prudential Life, and Fairman R. Dick of Roosevelt & Sons, New York. Their interest is to keep railroad earnings to a point where the stocks and bonds are a safe investment for insurance companies and savings banks. Only 37 railroads can now comply with the New York law on savings bank investments, Mr Dick said.

Commissioner B. M. Meyer will be in charge of the hearings.

HOUSE WRECKING IN U. S. BECOMES SKILLED CRAFT

Is One of Results of Ever Changing World.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Destruction has become one of the skilled crafts, and today the wrecker is a sort of mortician of the building industry, his earnings comparing favorably with those of his brothers who build up what he tears down.

Ever changing cities like New York and Chicago, a new technique of destruction, and the increasing demand for speed in the removal of one edifice and the erection of another is responsible, according to leaders in the industry.

Investigation into the house wrecking business reveals:

That these agents of destruction used to pay for the right to tear down a building and depend on salvage for their profits, if any. Now, however, they bid for the job like any other contractor and charge plenty. The salvage is just so much more profit.

That the wreckers used to begin at the top and work down, but that now they begin at the bottom and wreck their way skyward.

That a lot of the granite shafts and marble pillars in the cemeteries of the wealthy were once stairways and walls in the palaces of the nineties.

Newer Are Easily Wrecked.

That present day buildings are built for decades and not centuries and that it is harder to tear down an old fashioned mansion than it is a twenty year old steel skyscraper.

This city's most recent extensive wrecking job—the destruction of 105 buildings and their removal from the site to be occupied by the $250,000,000 Radio city—has directed public attention to the new wrecking technique.

Fourteen smaller buildings were demolished for each one of the ten skyscrapers that are to replace them. The job was figured in weeks instead of months, for the pinch bar and steam shovel have been taught a thing or two about their task.

The Older the Harder

The older the skyscraper the harder it falls, says Mr. Volk, pointing out the trouble encountered in demolishing the Hanover building, built thirty years ago to stand for 250 years. Mr. Volk's house wreckers begin by clearing out of the basement all bulky and valuable objects such as boilers and furnaces, vaults or machinery. Then they work upward, gathering all loose material.

As they climb they cut their way through each floor until they reach the roof—then the fun begins. They start tearing down and as they tear they throw the material into the well cut through the middle of the skyscraper. Steam shovels and trucks nibble at the débris as it piles up in the basement, but they can hardly keep up with the descending demolishers.

When they reach, say, the sixth story in a twenty story job, they find themselves on top of their job. In other words, the pile of chopped up material has grown up from the basement to that height.

"Growlers" Begin.

The "growlers," great steam hammers, go to work smashing bricks and stone, a little dynamite is administered with considerable care, steam shovels swing back and forth tirelessly. Meanwhile, workers with acetylene torches are cutting steel girders into cordwood size lengths and a string of trucks shuttles back and forth. Finally the site is cleared and usually ahead of schedule.

Here is what happens to the material. The wrecking company uses a lot of the wood in building a protecting wall around the tumbling building. Plumbing fixtures and pipes are sold to second hand dealers, steel girders and heavy beams often find a place in subway construction and the rest of the material is loaded on barges and dumped at sea.

The price of labor is too high, the wrecking companies say, to give time to salvaging such things as brick, wires, boards, etc. Plate glass when it can be removed in large segments makes valuable salvage, but window panes are just so much material for the sledge hammer.

WANT TO SWAP YOUR RADIO FOR A RINGTAIL MONKEY?

AN UNUSUAL offer—but it illustrates the possibilities of the Barter & Exchange column of the Tribune Want Ad Section.

Men have swapped with neighbors since tribal days. Then sea shells and war clubs were principal articles of exchange. Now men offer monkeys for radios—pop-corn machines for real estate—birds' eggs and fish for what have you—carnival concessions for a poultry farm—an exercising machine for a shot-gun—and an almost endless variety of articles, no longer useful to them but possessing value for their neighbors.

What have you to exchange? What articles would be acceptable in exchange? Perhaps someone in Chicago will be willing to accept your set of books for the type-writer you need? Try it! You will never know until you do, what things your offer in the Barter & Exchange column of the Tribune can bring you!

REALTY DEALER HITS WASTE AS HIGH TAX CAUSE

Cites 278% Increase in Local Expenditures.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

John J. Mangan, 9114 South Ashland avenue, a real estate operator, issued a 20 page pamphlet yesterday calling "How to Cut Your Tax Bill."

"The records show," he writes, "that Chicago's total tax jumped from $9,541,563 in 1915 to $225,534,460 in 1930, while the population increased from 2,442,494 to only 3,376,438. Thus taxes have increased seven times as fast as population.

"The number of residences to be served by the local governments has increased 38 per cent, while the taxes piled upward 278 per cent. The school board and the city government had 21,250 names on the pay roll in 1910, while in 1929 the army of job holders had increased to 41,000."

Charges Waste Caused Boost.

Regarding the causes for the present high taxes, Mr. Mangan says:

"For a period of 10 years the men whom we elected to office took no steps to stop the open extravagance and waste of the real estate owners' money, who pay 85 per cent of the bills.

"These men became more bold and brazen from year to year, thereby increasing the total tax necessary to run our government to an unbelievable figure."

Under the subtitle of "The Evolution of the Summer Estate" the pamphlet continues:

"This period was marked with waste, extravagance, grafting, raising of contract prices, padding of pay rolls, and the creation of a thousand unnecessary jobs, all of which was charged to the real estate taxpayer.

"Spenders Have Their Fun."

"These spenders of the real estate taxpayers' money certainly had their fun. Gay parties, summer homes, golf memberships, trips to New York and trips to Florida, and a summer estate. 'These summer estates read like a fairy tale and it was like magic the speed with which the modern conveniences were installed."

Mr. Mangan asserts that high taxes have ruined the building industry, keeping 125,000 mechanics from work and denying employment to 100,000 men who are allied with the building industry.

"Chicago building last May totaled $3,06[illegible],700," Mr. Mangan says, "and is the smallest amount of building in any month during the last 25 years. "High taxes are driving a great many builders out of business. New building is at a standstill because high taxes have destroyed all possibility of any building enterprise yielding a reasonable profit."

Mr. Mangan's remedy is to pass a law limiting the taxes on improved property to 1 per cent and on unimproved property to one-half of 1 per cent.

A RECORD PAY ROLL

The board of assessors plans to add 170 jobs to their pay roll this week, with an average salary rate of $2,000 a year, if they can persuade Chairman Whelan of the county board not to pass the $115,000 appropriation made by the board last Wednesday for that purpose.

Without the prospective 172 added men, the board of assessors now has the largest pay roll in its history, according to J. Louis Jacobs, efficiency expert, who yesterday released comparative figures for the last 18 years. The board's annual budget provides for 273 employés. With the additional allowance, it can have the equivalent of 445 employés, as compared with 195 for the last quadrennial assessment year, and 184 for the previous quadrennial.

With the added $115,000 the board will have this year $787,000 for salaries, as compared with $456,300 in the last quadrennial year, $414,900 in the preceding quadrennial and $406,900 in the next previous quadrennial, according to Mr. Jacobs.

Mr. Jacobs declares that the board was given sufficient pay roll appropriations with which to do the work at the beginning of the year. Hayden Bell, county attorney, has advised the county commissioners that if the money has been wasted the members of the board of assessors can be held liable.

M. J. O'Connor of the county controller's office has charged that the ten county commissioners who voted the $115,000 extra did so illegally, because they violated the new budgetary law requiring income to be set up before an appropriation is made. President Whealan has until next Thursday to act on the added appropriation.

Mayor Cermak has complained that it is useless for the city to save if other local governments increase their expenses.

Taking a Walk, He Finds His Bandit of a Year Ago

Walter Servin, 3447 North Springfield avenue, a driver for the Welland Dairy company, was robbed by a gunman a year ago. Yesterday, taking a Sunday afternoon stroll, he recognized a man working on the tire of an automobile in front of 4169 Cornelia avenue as the one who robbed him. Police went to that address and arrested Ned Gescke, 38 years old, a former milkman. Gescke confessed and was identified by four other Welland drivers whom he had robbed.

200,000 KILLED IN NEW CHINESE FLOOD DISASTER

6,000,000 Made Homeless in Yangchow.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

SHANGHAI, Aug. 30.—While the Hankow situation is improving, reports from Yangchow, at the junction of the Grand canal and the Yangtze river, describe a flood calamity exceeding in casualties the Hankow disaster. Following a typhoon last week, fifteen sections of the Grand canal dykes burst, resulting in the inundation of the thickly populated district north of Yangchow.

Chinese officials estimate that an area of hundreds of miles has been flooded, 200,000 people drowned, and from 6,000,000 to 7,000,000 made homeless.

200 Miles Under Water.

Over a large area only the roofs and city walls, thickly crowded with people, are visible. A missionary returning from the district reports a distance of 200 miles, nearly reaching to the sea, is under water. Following the typhoon, the dykes, which were badly in need of repair, quickly collapsed.

Shaopo, which borders the lake, was most damaged. The lake waters broke embankments and flooded the city, trapping hundreds.

The catastrophe could possibly have been minimized, but it was found impossible to utilize precautionary measures, owing to the people's objections.

At Taichow, north of Yangchow, an emergency canal was dug to carry off flood waters, but Taichow inhabitants, fearing local floods, seized arms and guarded the bank, preventing any attempt to reduce the canal water level. At Kaoyu convicts revolted at the local jail, causing street fighting which prevented the inhabitants from repairing the breach in the embankment.

CHICAGO MOTOR SHIP SINKS OFF CANADA; 8 SAVED

SOUTHAMPTON, Ont., Aug. 30.—(AP)—After wallowing helplessly for three days in a storm, the motor ship Francis P. Ritchie of Chicago was smashed to pieces and sank on Chantry reef near here last night. Five of her crew came ashore in the only lifeboat, the remaining three having been taken off the vessel by a lifeboat crew headed by Angus McRitchie, captain of the local government lifeboat station.

With the sinking of the Ritchie went the fortune of Matthew and Al Pella, brothers, of Chicago, who had hoped to sail to Miami, Fla., to establish an oil line between that port and Mexican cities. There was no insurance on the vessel.

The Ritchie made good progress, the crew said, until she arrived alongside the treacherous Manitoulin island shore, where engine trouble developed. Here the winds blew them about until she pounded to pieces.

The five men were taken to a local hotel and fed and clothed by residents of the town.

News of the wreck did not reach Southampton until the first few to be rescued reached shore.

Chantry reef is a quarter of a mile off Southampton. There have been several wrecks there.

HOTEL IN WHICH WASHINGTON STAYED RAIDED

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Queens policemen raided the Prince homestead in Flushing today and confiscated seven pints of alleged liquor. The raid was made on the charge that the mansion was being used as a restaurant without a license, but the bartender, Samuel Glazer, was arrested on the charge of possessing liquor.

The homestead has seen better days. Tradition has it that George Washington stayed there in the pre-revolutionary days, while selecting plum trees from the famous Prince nurseries to send back to his Virginia estate.

One of the last of the Prince family, the late Le Byron Bradford Prince, served with distinction as first governor of New Mexico, and his name also lent luster to the old house. In recent years it has declined from its one time glory to physical dilapidation and the status of a boarding house.

RETAIL INDUSTRY WORKERS PAID 5 BILLIONS A YEAR

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—(AP)—The grocery clerk, the soda dispenser, the butcher's boy, and their fellow employés in the retail trade have been found by the census bureau to receive a wage of over five billion dollars annually.

Making public the first complete study of employment and wages in the industry, the bureau today revealed that in 1929, 3,769,000 employed men and women devoted their entire time to working in retail stores. Their pay totaled $5,134,000,000.

The figure does not include 1,470,000 proprietors and 799,000 part time employés.

The average salary of full time retail employés was about $25 a week. Part time workers averaged $292 a year.

BISHOP CANNON STRIKES BACK AT SENATE PROBERS

Says Investigation Is a "Fishing Trip."

LONDON, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Bishop James Cannon Jr. of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in a statement issued here today, charged the senate campaign expenditures investigating committee with "deliberately" deciding to hold its recent hearings in his absence.

The bishop also charged that the committee, which is investigating expenditures in the national campaign of 1928, was conducting "a fishing expedition to secure, if possible, some evidence of criminal conduct on my part."

He added that he had never opposed a grand jury investigation but had insisted "and shall continue to insist that my rights as a citizen are infringed upon by the senate committee."

Charges Unfair Tactics.

The bishop's statement was, in part, as follows:

"First, the adjournment of the senate investigating committee until October flatly contradicts the previous statement made by the committee that the statute of limitations made an August committee meeting necessary. It is now evident it could have been deferred until my return.

"Second, the testimony given before the committee clearly indicates it was not for the purpose of remedial legislation . . . but was a fishing expedition to secure, if possible, some evidence of criminal conduct on my part.

"Third, all money expended by anti-Smith committees, or by myself personally, was to defeat the Smith presidential electors, who, the Supreme court has declared, are state officials, hence the provision concerning same in the federal corrupt practices act is unconstitutional and congress has no jurisdiction over such expenditures. Not one dollar was spent for the election of congressmen or senators.

"Fourth, all money not reported . . . which passed through my hands was expended in the Virginia state campaign exclusively to defeat the Smith presidential electors and concerning such state expenditures.

Does Not Recall Conversation.

"Fifth, I cannot recall any correspondence or conversation with Chairman Huston concerning the transmission of a check to the North Carolina anti-Smith Democrats. I did write Chairman Frank McNinch and sent $5,000, with the agreement it would be refunded later, if possible. When it was not refunded it was recorded in the supplementary report . . . to the clerk of the house.

"Sixth, I must emphasize again I have never opposed a grand jury investigation . . . but I have insisted, and shall continue to insist, that my rights as a citizen are infringed upon by the senate committee, which has no jurisdiction over the election of presidential electors, but which can introduce entirely irrelevant testimonies concerning my private affairs, with no power to protect my rights such as regular court procedure would guarantee."

MOVIE LICENSE WRIT HEARING TO BE HELD TODAY

Dissolution of a temporary injunction restraining the city department of gas and electricity from interference in the dispute between movie operators and theater owners will be sought today from Superior Judge Ross C. Hall. He imposed the injunction a week ago.

Should the corporation counsel's office succeed in having the injunction lifted 137 movie operators, already unemployed because of the theater owners' use of imported substitutes, are liable to lose their licenses as well, it is said.

Assistant State's Attorney Charles E. Lounsbury has recommended revocation of the licenses, claiming the men secured them fraudulently by payment of a weekly salary commission to Thomas Maloy, indicted business agent of the union. W. A. Jackson, commissioner of gas and electricity, has pledged revocation of the licenses if the injunction is dissolved.

FIND ARTIST MISSING 77 HRS. UNCONSCIOUS AND NUDE ON BEACH

Portland, Me., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Authorities waited today to learn from Robert C. Verrier, 29 year old French artist-tutor, what intervened between the time he pushed off in a boat from the Prout's Neck shore until he was found, 77 hours later, nude and unconscious on the sands of Willard beach here.

Airplanes, water craft and posses had sought Verrier since he dropped from sight while sketching the shore of Prout's Neck colony from the boat.

Verrier was taken to a local hospital, where Dr. Reginald C. Lombard said he was not in a serious condition, but showed indications of amnesia.

Verrier came to this country after the world war, in which he fought in the French army.

MISSISSIPPI IS STILL SETTING NEW LOW MARKS

Quincy, Ill., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—The Mississippi river continues to make August low records. For the last fifteen days it has averaged one foot below low watermark. The lowest previous average was August, 1910, when the average was .517 above low watermark. The river at St. Louis is the lowest it has been for seventy years. All up and down the river from St. Louis to St. Paul new low marks are being recorded.

Notwithstanding the lowest stage of the river in history, Quincy will not suffer for water as many other cities are in Illinois. The city owns its own water works.

Charges Chicago Men Take Huge Profits.

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Four Chicagoans are accused of making huge profits from the Fifth Avenue Coach company through "a system of parasitic holding companies" in a report of the city affairs committee protesting against the granting of bus route extensions to the company. The report, made public today, names John Hertz, Attorney E. N. d'Ancona, Harold E. Foreman Sr., and Charles A. McCulloch, all directors of the Omnibus corporation, holding concern for the bus company.

A copy of the report was sent to the board of estimate. The company's application for extensions was recently referred to Controller Charles M. Berry for investigation. The report assails the alleged policy of the Walker administration of recklessly giving away rights in public streets without examination of the company's profits.

Charge 950% Profit a Year.

The city affairs committee opposes the grant of additional franchises on allegations that the coach company has paid an average annual profit of 950 per cent for the last eight years. The report says that committee found the coach company invested only $50,000 on which $3,600,000 in profits was said to have been paid in the eight-year period. Most of the profits have been invested in the coach line expansion, it was said.

"The company is controlled by four Chicago business men who milk the corporation through a hierarchy of parasitic holding companies which render the public no necessary service and which escape the supervision of the New York transit commission because they are not domestic operating companies," says the report. "The company has no legal right to operate on 71 per cent of the lines which it now controls."

The report declares that the Chicagoans by unanimous vote can dominate the board of directors of the holding company, which has seven members. The other three members are New Yorkers.

RIDICULOUS, SAYS HERTZ.

John Hertz at his home near Cary, Ill., last night characterized the reports of the city affairs committee of New York as ridiculous and held it to be a political move to discredit the political camp of Mayor Walker.

"The report is absurd," Mr. Hertz said. "The matter is extremely complicated and one which has been seized upon because of its ramifications which could be twisted to serve political purposes. The report undoubtedly has been drafted by one political faction to throw mud at the opposing faction. I doubt that anything further will come of it.

"The coach company was organized on a low capital stock. It has never paid a nickle on common stock in the eight or nine years I have held it. If the gentlemen desire some of this stock—and I have a good share of it—I will sell it to them cheap. The charge that the company has no right to operate on 71 per cent of its lines is utterly false. The franchises are in excellent condition."

Kilgore, Tex., Aug. 30.—(AP)—National Guardsmen enforcing an arbitrary martial law shutdown in the giant east Texas oil field were instructed to "shoot at the waistline" following a fresh outbreak of incendiarism today in Kilgore.

A combination rooming house and morgue and a grain warehouse were damaged slightly. The "shoot to kill" orders were issued by Brig. Gen. Jacob F. Wolters.

A similar outbreak of incendiarism last Sunday destroyed Kilgore's two churches and damaged several other buildings. Gen. Wolters characterthe fire attempts as the work of "Reds."

Both fires were started today within a 30 minute period despite a guard of Texas Rangers and city police.

Blazing bundles of gasoline soaked rags were hauled from each of the burning buildings before the great damage occurred. Fires last Sunday were started with the same type rag bundle.

Construction Progresses on Ogden Avenue Span

After six months' work, the $4,395,000 viaduct and bridges to carry Ogden avenue over Goose island are gaining shape. The improvement will probably be completed next summer. When finished there will be a broad pavement from Lincoln park southwest to Union park, where Ogden avenue runs into a bottleneck at Randolph street. The project is being built by the board of local improvements.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—Sir Thomas Stanton, 68, one of Great Britain's leading consulting engineers who was recently engaged in the restoration of St. Paul's cathedral, was found drowned today in Pevensy bay, near Eastbourne, where he had been staying with his wife and family. The body, dressed in pajamas, was washed ashore. His death is believed to be another tragedy of a man whose brain failed after he had suddenly relinquished an active life.

"Dear Peggy

I'm almost too excited to write, and there's so much to see, both inside the plane and out. We've left Washington behind now, and I've just had a Chesterfield in the smoking compartment—they serve them on every ship.

"Among the eighteen passengers there's a senator and a foreign diplomat, and I'm surprised at the number of women. The trip is two hundred miles and the meter in the cabin reads two miles a minute, think of that.

"For me, the Chesterfields were the nicest touch of all. I was just dying for a smoke, and when the hostess passed them (and my favorite cigarette at that) everyone else seemed as tickled as I was. And my—they did taste good!"

Chesterfields are served in the smoking compartments of all these planes—the largest and most luxurious in the East. With the fast growth of air travel, Chesterfield makes many new friends each day, here as in city streets and country homes—wherever good taste counts.

CROSS-CONTINENT RECORD SHATTERED BY NEW PLYMOUTH

San Francisco to New York and return in 132 hours and 9 minutes

FROM New York to San Francisco and back again in 132 hours and 9 minutes.

In a New Plymouth—with Floating Power and Free Wheeling!

Smashing the existing two-way transcontinental mark, established over the shorter Los Angeles-New York route, by 9½ hours.

Both marks established by cars costing several times the Plymouth price.

By this perfectly amazing achievement the New Plymouth establishes itself beyond all dispute among the world leaders in performance and stamina.

Mr. L. B. Miller of San Francisco, not a professional race driver but a Chrysler Motors salesman 57 years of age, accompanied by a relief driver, started from that city in a Plymouth Sedan—standard in every detail—and reached New York in 65 hours and 33 minutes. An hour and a quarter later he was on his way back and arrived in San Francisco in 65 hours and 24 minutes.

AVERAGE 1140 MILES A DAY

On this record-shattering trip the New Plymouth travelled 6287 miles in five and a half days.

The trip eastward was made in 65 hours and 33 minutes.

The return home was made in 65 hours and 24 minutes.

The entire trip was clocked by Western Union officials.

"I have made many cross-country trips in bigger and more expensive cars," L. B. Miller wired Plymouth factory officials upon the completion of his record-breaking run, "but never have I seen the equal of the New Plymouth in rugged performance. With every additional mile came a greater appreciation of the results which Chrysler Motors engineers have achieved with the development of Floating Power.

"To attain an average of 47.52 miles an hour for 132 hours we held the Plymouth at speeds of 65 to 70 miles for long stretches. The smoothness with which the engine delivered this speed lessened the physical strain and made our task easier.

"The fast second-speed gear of Plymouth's Easy-Shift Transmission helped us cut 12 to 15 hours off our time. Not only in congested traffic when we wanted quick acceleration, but on steep mountain grades which we climbed at speeds of 40 to 50 miles an hour, this gear proved invaluable.

"The Double-Drop Frame was still another helpful factor. The Plymouth is so low it enabled us to take turns at high speeds with safety."

There can be no greater example of the astounding ruggedness, endurance and stamina of the New Plymouth; of its smoothness of performance, its power, its handling facility, its safety, its comfort.

There can be no more convincing proof than this supreme test of the quality and value which the New Plymouth now makes available in the lowest-priced field.

ANYWAY, IT'S GETTING JOLLIER.

Gov. Huey P. Long's scheme to stop cotton planting by legislation depends especially upon its adoption by other states than his own, especially Texas. Texas may conclude that if Louisiana planting is stopped there will be a market for another Texas crop and may make another mistake. It seems to be the human bent to take a chance, but Texas joined Oklahoma in stopping oil and might join Louisiana in stopping cotton. If Texas refuses to coöperate there are two obvious courses for Louisiana, each with moral precedent. Gov. Long's legislature may pass an act prohibiting the planting of cotton in Gov. Sterling's state and send the Louisiana militia over to see that it is not planted. Texas maintains the right to determine what manner of life New York shall lead. The sanctions are indubitable. Or Louisiana may appeal to congress. If the treasury department can close bridges to keep Texans from losing their money in Mexican gambling games, why, as Gifford Pinchot would say, can't congress pass a law to prevent Louisiana planters from losing their money in Texas cotton fields?

It is to be preferred that Louisiana chooses the former course to get Texan consent to Louisiana demands. It probably would result in a war and the United States could declare its neutrality and sell supplies to both sides. It would make a desirable item of business in these times and might bring the country up smiling. Merry Christmas.

It is to be feared, however, that Louisiana will ask the federal government to prohibit the growing of cotton in Texas, and if in Texas why not in the other cotton planting states? The precedents are notable. A dry goods Volstead act.

There seems to be no apparent reason why such a federal intervention in cotton should not lead the way to similar action in wheat. It would be much more sensible than anything that has been done thus far by the farm board. All it has contrived to do with a half billion dollars is to increase the surplus and get itself in the coffee business. The next cup of coffee will come from Uncle Sam. What an uncle! The old boy will be at the back door next for the old clothes and have you any bottles or junk?

Congress will prohibit the growing of wheat. It might be done experimentally in Kansas, good old prohibition state. If some of the western dry states were taken out of production by their favorite method of prohibition it would make a very good year for Wisconsin.

Then and thus everything will be set in the right direction. The federal government will cease its irresolute application of sound doctrines and will set out to go the route with them. The citizen will get his assignments, be judged by his report card, punch the clock, draw his blankets and rations and be as the Indian wards, except, lo, much taxed.

MR. HULL PAYS CABLE TOLLS.

Congressman W. E. Hull of Peoria cables from Europe that unless the Republicans embrace beer and wine in the national platform next June all will be lost. Mr. Hull has been investigating various systems of liquor control abroad. He could not wait to tell his findings to the ship reporters in New York harbor. He put them on the cable.

That was a reasonable precaution, all things considered. When Brother Hull, fresh from Illinois college, went to Peoria it was as a government gauger. It is our understanding that he did not gauge the depth of the river, but the content of certain barrels in distillery warehouses. Eventually, as his political opponents have pointed out on occasion, he became, among other things, a distiller. It seemed a fair presumption that he was a wet. However, Mr. Hull found it possible to vote for the Jones 5 and 10 act. Having modified the Volstead act in the direction of greater severity, he now proposes to modify it out of existence.

Brother Hull has a way of changing his mind about alcoholic refreshment on rather short notice. However, it seems improbable, all things considered, that this time he had to get himself on record by cable lest he change his mind while crossing the ocean. There is plenty of reason to believe that the corn growers in the Peoria sector know what they want. Certainly the townsfolk know what they want. Their declaration in the recent referendum was not ambiguous and it must be growing increasingly clear to any Peoria statesman that the chances of a dry in any subsequent election are going to be pretty slim. This time it looks as if Brother Hull is going to stay hitched. Only the other day he let it be known that he drank six bottles of Swedish beer on an empty stomach and all was right as right could be.

Mr. Hull may be regarded somewhat as a barometer, but with this difference, that as his glass rises, so to say, wet weather may be safely forecast. Mr. Hull has been among the most competent pursuers of political expediency on the wet and dry question in congress. If he now finds it expedient to turn against Volstead, it is reasonable to believe that a good many of the other hitherto dry brethren in congress will also see the light. For Mr. Hull and his similarly minded colleagues it must be said that it is not discreditable to change one's opinions for the better.

PAY FOR SERVICE.

Plenty of money for dry agents and as little as possible for soldiers and sailors. The average dry agent receives $2,500 salary and $5 a day expense account while away from his post on official duty. What extra allowances there may be for booze and entertainment for girls and other agencies of entrapment we haven't been informed. Ammunition for shooting up suspects, we assume, is free.

A first class seaman gets an annual estimated compensation of about $1,248, $648 in cash and the rest in the form of rations and quarters. The first class army man gets less, about $960 in all. The highest noncommissioned officers get about $188 less than dry law agents at the beginning of their respective services. But coast guardsmen get nothing extra for chasing rum runners. They are just coast guardsmen.

Men who are responsible for the defense of the nation and will be expected to give their lives for that defense are little worth in comparison with the enforcers of the sadist law. Leaders of prohibition are conspicuous in the organized pacifism which resists measures of national defense but they know how to get the money for dry law killers.

CHARGES AGAINST BERWYN POLICE.

Michael Brooks, a citizen of Berwyn, charges two policemen and the police chief of that town with brutal treatment. The police deny the charge, alleging that Brooks was intoxicated and violent. Brooks repels the charge and it is noted that he was not at first charged with driving while intoxicated but with driving without lights. Only a week later, after the attorney for the Motor club showed an inclination to force a showdown, was the charge against Brooks made resisting an officer and disorderly conduct. The occupant of a cell adjoining that of Brooks says he heard Brooks pleading not to be hit.

This is a situation which calls for rigid investigation. The circumstances are serious and the weight of available evidence thus far tends to support this citizen's charge. Moreover, the Brooks case has brought forward another citizen who makes affidavit that he and two friends were beaten severely last January when arrested on the charge of possessing a stolen car for which they had a bill of sale. After spending several days in jail, the affidavit asserts, the deponent and his companions were discharged.

Police brutality cannot be tolerated in this community and every reasonably plausible charge of this offense should be thoroughly investigated and if established prosecuted vigorously by the state.

ENTERING THE BIG CAMPAIGNS.

It is rumored in New York that Gov. Roosevelt as candidate for the Democratic nomination for the presidency is not unwilling to get President Hoover in bad on the St. Lawrence water power proposals and on the power issue generally and that the recent interchange of letters between the governor, the White House secretaries, and the acting secretary of state was intended to draw fire and disclose position.

It is suspected in New York that the federal government will take some advantage of New York's crime explosions and the incidental popular outcry to show up state incompetence and corruption. This might or might not explain the transfer of a Kansas dry judge into the New York City federal district to hear the dry cases and draw sad morals, extrajudicially, from the habits of the New Yorkers for the gratification of better people elsewhere.

It is also reliably reported that Gov. Roosevelt is anxious not to allow the federal unemployment relief, when and as, to get the jump or seem to get the jump on the state relief under the governor himself. From it all, there and in other parts, it would appear that the national conventions of 1932 are already all over the place and will so continue.

A primary objective in nearly every public enterprise of great import will be found in some aspect of the campaign for the nominations and afterwards. It is inevitable and unavoidable. One eye may be on a proposal or project as it is related to its ostensible purpose, but the other will be on the probable political effect either in the conventions or in the election.

In this certainty is the guaranty that the December session of congress will be the big show. From now until then and from then on until the political decisions have been made in the elections the policies of the United States will be shaped by individuals and parties preoccupied by the electoral processes of the country. This may be portent of strange phenomena to come at a time when the country will need all its reserve of sanity and wisdom derived from the common sense of people remembering their traditions of self-reliance.

Editorial of the Day

SALVATION IN WINE BRICKS.

[New York World-Telegram.]

Westchester county is ready to solve its local unemployment problem with wine bricks—if wine bricks can really solve the problem of providing alcoholic beverages within the law.

Director Charles C. Webster of the White Plains employment bureau sees almost unlimited demand for salesmen to distribute genuine wine bricks—if the latter exist. And a Westchester capitalist is said to be willing to furnish all the money needed to start wine brick distribution on a Westchester-wide scale.

Start it on a nation-wide scale, with the sanction of the law, and we verily believe unemployment might well nigh vanish. Five million salesmen would hardly be too many to supply public demand for a high grade Volstead proof wine brick. And millions of workers would be needed to grow more grapes and make the bricks.

The irony of it! Present prohibition law is supposed to represent the will of the American people. Yet so little does this law really represent their will that probably nothing would go further toward getting them out of the present economic slump than to provide them with a pseudo-legitimate, large scale means of nullifying it!

YOU'T CAN'T TELL.

"Good night, mother."

"Daughter, are you coming in or going out?"—Exchange.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE-LINE: On a Sunday in early autumn, 1858, citizens of Chicago in the neighborhood of State street beheld the unusual spectacle of a herd of 185 head of cattle being driven north through that thoroughfare. The cattle belonged to Lemuel Milk of Kankakee, and had been driven from his farm in Iroquois county to the Chicago market in charge of Henry Butzow and Simeon Sammons.

Chicago's stock market in that day was uncertain. It was before development of the famous "Yards." While Lemuel Milk combed Chicago for a buyer his men in the interim herded the stock in the open prairie south of 12th street, a tract belonging to "Long John" Wentworth. It often happened that stock could not be sold on the hoof. In such emergency the stock was slaughtered and the meat disposed of. That was what Mr. Milk had to do.

The slaughter pen was located west of State street, between Randolph street and the river. State street then was narrow, with wooden sidewalks and a roadbed of planks. The bawling, clattering herd completely filled the street and at times a portion of the sidewalks. A young man with his best girl in a single rig drawn by a spirited horse essayed to navigate State street by boring his way through the herd after having been warned not to attempt it. A little later there was an awful commotion in the vicinity of Van Buren and State. Mr. Butzow found the young man out on the ground holding his horse, and to the din of the pawing and snorting of the milling herd were added agonizing screams of his fair Dulcinea, who could scarcely be restrained from jumping out of the buggy.

At the killing bed on North State street the herd was slaughtered, the butchers taking "the fifth quarter" as pay therefor. The "fifth quarter" in this case consisted of the head, hide, a goodly portion of the neck, the four legs up to four inches above the knee joints, lights, liver, heart, etc., leaving the finished carcass for the owner. Many women visited the place, shawl-draped figures with basket on arm, in which they bore home many a tidbit absolutely gratis. Strange to say, Henry Butzow and Simeon Sammons are still alive—Mr. Butzow at 100 years and Simeon Sammons just turned 92! BURT E. BURROUGHS.

I HAVE A FRIEND.

I have a friend—
Yet with the world's great riches piled on high,
The wealth that might a king's own ransom buy,
There is no soul, not one, so rich as I—
I have a friend.

I have a friend—
Though stars may fail and darkness rule the day,
Though I may thirst and hunger come my way,
Still I have wealth no thief can steal away—

HOOSIER BILL.

WHEN THE WAKE-LINE becomes the Wake again, now imminent, and we return to our own desk in the sports department, we're going to ask Wilfrid Smith, who succeeded the late Walter Eckersall as THE TRIBUNE'S football authority, to compile and publish a gridiron primer. It would contain definition of the more common terms used and a nontechnical description of the more common plays.

"Smithy" will reply: "Why, that's A-B-C stuff. Every one knows that." But do they? We think not. Football, a game whose complex tactics and strategy are known only to a few authorities and not fully understood even by many of us so-called "experts," is one sport which can be enjoyed with scarcely a working knowledge of its rudiments. That is because progress of the ball up and down the field indicates in a general way how the game is going. So many spectators have accepted that and gone no farther.

Mr. Smith, who has played both college and pro football, is one writer who possesses the faculty of telling rules and theories in language understandable to the layman. Why, we'd like our own memory refreshed on "interference" during a forward pass play, both by offense and defense. If you favor our idea and wish to be a coconspirator just drop a line to him yourself in support of the plot.

ADVOCATING REFORM.

HTW: Can't something be done about people who say "O boy!" and at the next statement "O boy!" and again at every opportunity "O boy!" So far my supply of patience miraculously has withstood those who, emitting the very essence of sweetness, simper "Alrightie," and those frogs who croak "O. K.," but the first mentioned threaten my sanity. AMBLING ANNE.

This Wake-Line Is Conducted By Harvey T. Woodruff. Help! Help!

THIS ISSUE OF THE Wake-Line ends our tenure in these parts. R. H. L. will be back with you tomorrow. He will tell you, perhaps, of Canada and its opportunities; he will tell you, perhaps, of the fish he caught and the larger one which got away; he will have many interesting things to tell—possibly omitting the heroic rescue of Thomas Atkins, already recorded here. Welcome, one and all, to R. H. L.!

This "pinch hitter," as always, began the difficult rôle with diffidence. It would not be honest to say that we retire from these precincts with regret, but we can say with truth that there always is a little pang in leaving many new friends who have been kind to us as an "understudy."

DO YOU REMEMBER 'WAY BACK WHEN:

In our Spencerian copy books we placed advertising blotters, given free at the drug store, which were deliciously scented with German cologne, a perfume rivaling musk in popularity in that day?—Rose of La Rose, Ill.

In 1856, before streets were paved, there was a warning sign in the mud of Lake street, "No Bottom"?—Hannah Simon.

Crane Bros.' Manufacturing company's general offices were at 10 North Jefferson street in 1880 and R. T. Crane was president and C. R. Crane was vice president?—W. B., Warsaw, Ind.

Grandma related: "We did not eat tomatoes when I was a child; we just raised them for ornaments"?—C. J. M., West Liberty, Ia.

Your first pair of long trousers flapped around your shins?—O. D. Richardson.

On a Saturday when mother baked bread or coffee cake (raisins, brown sugar, and all) she tested to see if they were baked enough by taking a straw from a broom and sticking it in the loaf or cake, and if it came out "doughy" it remained in the oven—otherwise out they came, and then, O boy?—Doc. J. M. N.

If we lost the buggy whip out of the rig we could drive back several miles and find it? (Try losing anything now.)—R. H. S.

Men were slow to adopt shoes instead of boots, claiming they looked cheap and did not hold your pants leg in good shape?—H. M. S., La Moille, Ill.

Boys' caps were made to pull down over the face and had holes for eyes, nose, and mouth?—R. R. T., Freeport, Ill.

The few billboards bore pictures of attractively dressed pretty girls riding in victorias behind teams of fine horses and the advertisement was of a popular chewing tobacco?—D. M. N.

NATURAL POSITIONS OF THE BODY.

WHEN a man is asthmatic or struggling to get breath because of any condition of his lungs, he assumes the sitting position, with his body thrown forward, his elbows on a table or some other support, his head bowed, and his mouth open. He needs to take advantage of every mechanical aid and he assumes by instinct just the position for each bone, joint, and muscle that makes breathing easy.

Conversely, whenever a man assumes a position other than the one described, he adds a little to the load on his breathing apparatus. Singers, performers on wind instruments, runners, and swimmers might remember that. When a man's heart is working against great odds, and is just a shade more than equal to the task, he naturally assumes the prone position, with the head no higher than the body.

A good illustration is the man on the verge of fainting, who feels everything around him growing dark. He has had a rapid fall of blood pressure because his heart had trouble in keeping the vital centers of the train supplied with blood. He should lie flat, and no kind but officious friend should put a pillow under his head.

It occurs to some one to remark that men with heart disease and broken compensation must sleep sitting up. True enough, but that is because of the breathing rather than the circulation needs. The blood is kept in circulation easiest when there is no need of overcoming gravity.

Therefore, if the feet are swollen from dropsy; or there is congestion of them due to inflammation, ulceration, infection, or whatever may be, the best position is sitting or lying with the legs horizontal or with the feet somewhat higher than the hips. If the circulation is being barely maintained, tight shoes or garments may add an extra to the load that will serve as the straw that breaks.

In the natural upright position the shoulders sag and the body and head droop forward. A thoroughly tired man sits, stands, and walks in that attitude. To stand straight with the head up, chin in, and shoulders thrown back has advantages but it means fatigue and it calls for some reserve strength.

People vary in the amount of curve in the neck. The human animal has no standardized neck curve. The position of the head which is easiest for any given man is determined by his natural neck curve. However well he may maintain another head position when he is rested, he will take the easy position when he is greatly fatigued, or when he is strained nearly to the breaking point.

THEATERS TOO COOL.

C. C. R. writes: Could you give me any information on the danger, if any, of sitting in a refrigerated theater either with damp or dry clothing on? I went into a movie theater over a year ago on a warm day, with a dry shirt. From the start I was uncomfortable, and before the feature was through I had a positive chill, which did not stop until I got some hot coffee. I am in good health, 38 years old, and cannot understand why this should be. I have tried such places several times since then with the same result, not being able to stand the discomfort more than a few minutes. Several people have told me that they are certain to get violent headaches if they go into cooled theaters. They say that they experience a peculiar feeling of discomfort that is impossible to define.

REPLY.

I presume the theaters you visited were too cool. Frequently they are. The refrigeration is likely to be overdone. I had an article on this subject a year ago.

MUSH IN MILK.

Mrs. F. T. writes: Tell us something about cooking the baby's mush in milk. She is 3 years old and not very fond of milk, so that is one way I manage to get it down. Does long cooking deteriorate milk?

REPLY.

There is some deterioration, but it is of small importance. Keep on with the practice. The gain much more than balances the loss.

NO HARM IN LITHIA WATER.

REPLY.

No.

RESERVED FOR CRIPPLES.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—[Friend of the People.]—For the last seven or eight years we have been going to the forest preserves nearly every Sunday. The place in question is called dam No. 2. The main entrance is on River road but this particular spot is one-half mile south of Milwaukee avenue and the river. On Sunday when we visited there we could not get in this place. A man on crutches came over and said that it was reserved for cripples and a sign had been posted reading to that effect. No name of any official appeared on this sign. In the meantime five automobiles came into this place containing a number of people and only one man and one lady out of the bunch was crippled. Is this place really reserved for cripples, or is this just a trick? R. D. N.

At the request of the organization for physically handicapped in Chicago we last year set aside a small isolated area north of dam No. 2 on the Des Plaines river for crippled people. The reason was that they were subject to a great deal of curiosity and staring by crowds when they went to the usual places to picnic. They were established at this point where they can go swimming, which is one of the few sports they can enjoy, and we are now erecting a small building, a log cabin, as a shelter house for them. Whether this is being used as an excuse for family picnics in which only one is crippled is a matter which I will have to investigate.

CHARLES G. SAUERS,

JOINT TENANCY DEFINED.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Was there a change made by the last legislature or recently in the status of the title to real estate known as joint tenancy, not tenants in common? 2. Does the change necessitate the probating of property under such title? 3. Does it mean scheduling for the purpose of the inheritance tax?

C. A. P.

1. No.
2. Probate would not be necessary.
3. The property passing by survivorship has been subject to inheritance tax for a number of years. To create a joint tenancy in real estate the conveyance should expressly declare that title is to pass not in tenancy in common but in joint tenancy. (Ill. Revised Statutes, Chap. 76, Sec. 1.) If title is already in one of the parties it should be deeded to a third person, who should then deed back to the two, using a joint tenancy form, which can be secured from a stationer. To create a joint tenancy in personal property the "will or other instrument in writing" should express "an intention to create a joint tenancy . . . with the right of survivorship" (Sec. 2). Under the statute we consider it advisable not to rely on the wording of a stock certificate nor on the fact that the parties have joint access to a safety box. The intention should be expressed in writing by the owner or owners. On the death of a joint tenant the property passes to the survivor without necessity for probate and to the exclusion of the heirs or devisees of the one who dies first. The one-half that thus passes by survivorship is subject to inheritance tax.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 31, 1915.

CHICAGO.—Contents of two important telegrams sent from Gary by the Rev. Edmund A. H. Kayser to Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador at Washington, came into the possession of THE TRIBUNE last night. The messages are considered proof that Kayser was an active German spy. That the slain German pastor was an agent of an organized movement to stop the exportation of arms and ammunition to the allies is known. That he was involved in at least one plot to blow up the Aetna Powder works at Gary was intimated, but nothing developed to substantiate this as fact.

LONDON.—Yesterday and today the Germans drove blow after blow at the Russians on practically the entire length of the battle front from Riga to the line of the Ziota Lipa in Galicia, 500 miles south. According to the official German statement, the Russians are in retreat from the northern end of this immense fighting line to the southern extremity.

MURPHYSBORO, Ill.—There is no lynch spirit in Jackson county today, although yesterday armed mobs thronged the streets with the lynch spirit in their hearts. Joe Deberry was indicted for murder this morning. Within an hour he was arraigned for trial. His plea of guilty was refused. He was provided with counsel. Before nightfall he was rearraigned, found guilty of murder on his own plea by advice of counsel and sentenced, to be hanged Oct. 16.

NEW YORK.—Theodore Roosevelt has a small fortune waiting for him if he joins the English colors. George Gees, a real estate dealer living in Brooklyn, will hand over a certified check for $10,000 if T. R. will shoulder a musket and start for France. He made the offer tonight and told a reporter that other German-Americans living in Brooklyn would double the sum.

PITTSBURGH.—The Labor World, a trades union journal, came out with its front page covered with an arraignment of Theodore J. Shaffer and called on the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel, and Tin Workers to sacrifice Shaffer and save the organization which Shaffer was carrying down to ruin with him. It was declared that Shaffer had no thought of surrendering and, by humiliating himself, sparing the union humiliation and disaster.

CAMP LINCOLN, SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—"Roosevelt for President in 1904," has been the talk in Springfield all of the day. Nearly every one who could get a chance to shake the hand of the Vice President—and almost all of the population of Springfield tried to—told him how glad he would be to see him President, and Gov. Yates, in his speech after dinner this evening, spoke of Mr. Roosevelt as a man who had already broken many political precedents, and then brought his auditors to their feet cheering by prophesying he might yet break another.

LONDON.—The Pall Mall Gazette, which seven years ago announced Mr. Gladstone's retirement as prime minister, gives prominence to an article stating what has often been said of late, that the marquis of Salisbury will retire as premier after the coronation ceremonies.

CHICAGO.—An order was received from Washington requiring Assistant Postmaster Hubbard and all district superintendents and other postoffice officials except the postmaster to register their times of coming and going on the time recorder, just as do clerks and carriers.

WASHINGTON. — The President's condition, while it did not improve to any great extent yesterday, was at least as good as on the previous day. The physicians did not anticipate improvement, and were quite well satisfied that the patient held his own. There was a slight rise in the pulse, due to the incision made by Dr. Bliss in the parotid gland in order to remove the pus. The patient took his nourishment, consisting of kumiss, milk porridge and beef tea, quite freely and with apparent relish. He ate a small piece of milk toast. His stomach continues healthy and the physicians seem to be rather confident that there will be no more trouble from that source. The swollen gland presented a better appearance than on the previous day, and the condition of the wound was, on the whole, healthy.

PARIS.—The entire Radical party of the French chamber of deputies is demanding that Gambetta shall accept the premiership which, it is understood, President Grevy will offer him.

CHICAGO. — Springfield dispatches stated that a license to organize had been issued to the Calumet Horse and Dummy railroad to construct a street railway in Hyde Park, the capital of the proposed corporation being $300,000 and the incorporators Frank M. Wilson, Franklin H. Watriss, E. G. Clark, and Andrew Pekin.

HE THROWS 'EM OFF.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—I saw in yesterday's Tribune the news of two boys being killed while stealing rides on trucks. But I did not see any decrease in the number of ride stealers. What in hell is the matter? Are parents unable to impress upon children the danger connected with hooking rides? Or don't they care? And what is the matter with the traffic police? Can't they do something?

A driver cannot keep his eyes open for kids on the rear of his truck and, at the same time, operate his truck with safety in heavy traffic. Every day I am obliged to stop every few blocks and order from two to six passengers to unload. And, in some cases, it is not enough to order them off. They have to be thrown off.

Every important intersection has its flock of wild, unrestrained brats, who look as if they belong to nobody. When you stop at the traffic signal they are there with their thumbs up and back. When you refuse, they sneak back and climb on. They run after you and jump on your tail board. They even cling to the rear bumpers of passenger vehicles, which move rather swiftly over rough, uneven pavements. This is extremely dangerous and it gets on the nerves of drivers who are following.

I, for one, will not tolerate this any longer, when it comes to my truck or my car. It is against the law. It is very dangerous. In case of accident, a driver feels responsible, even if he is not at fault.

Yesterday I unloaded exactly 53 passengers in eight hours. Five of them I threw off bodily. I am only one driver and mine is only one truck.

IRATE TRUCK DRIVER.

ABOUT THE DEBTS.

Akron, O., Aug. 19.—Hammer home the fact that the loans to the allies were begged for and granted against the general credit and assets [specifically the pledged government bonds of the borrowing countries] of each allied nation.

Drive in the fact that the American taxpayer has already assumed half of Europe's burden of paying off Liberty bond holders whose funds were used.

Show him that these allied debtors have, in collusion, brazenly presumed to deny any American lien upon their individual general credits; that they have, sitting in judgment upon their common creditor, the American taxpayer, impudently asserted that the only "available" resource for repayment of our loans to all of them is whatever Germany alone can be compelled to pay out in reparations.

Explain bluntly again and again that no allied government has yet taxed its people one single cent to pay this country for the goods and services it supplied in the hour of peril on most generous terms; that they even borrowed from us to pay interest upon the delayed payments.

Let him see how our bankers through clumsiness in some cases, reckless selfishness in others, criminal neglect or fraudulent intent in still others, have been building a situation for 12 years, at fat annual profits, banking on an ultimate crisis where the American taxpayer would, sheeplike, assume Europe's war debts to lift the pressure on these vast commercial international obligations. That may be banking among some persons, but what decent men think of it is unprintable.

Make it clear how diametrically different, in origin and character, are the two things: German reparations and American war debts—one a tribute born and maintained in violence and force, collectable by the victorious from the vanquished, the other born as a series of credit agreements by virtue of which vast amounts of our wealth in goods and services were given up by us and possessed by the allies, to be paid for in the future. If reparation payments stopped now, the allies would not only lose nothing thereby, but would have been enriched by over 5,000 millions of reparations already collected; if war debt payments to America stopped now, America would have lost almost the full value of everything supplied to the allies.

Incite the American citizen to think. Ask him why, through this cancellation, he, his children and grandchildren should in effect put the allied nations on a dole; why these mendicants find it easy to enjoy great national extravagance in social insurances, vast public improvements, essentially non-productive, commercial subsidies, enormous armies and navies, fortifications and ships, and yet find it "impossible" to set aside a small fraction of it all to repay America her war loans.

Ask this man-on-the-street if it is not pure nonsense that, simply because Germany alone cannot pay out 425 millions of dollars each year in reparations, France therefore cannot pay out 80 millions, or England 160 millions, or Italy 15 millions—Germany in defeat, stripped of her colonies and areas of natural production and held down as a subject state by the treaty of Versailles since the war.

Ask him why Albert Wiggin has not advocated as "good business" a cure for our sick railroads similar in character to his cure for Europe: repudiate the senior 10 per cent of bonded indebtedness of the rails in order to save annual charges of 75 millions while wages go on at 2,800 millions and materials and supplies at 800 millions.

CHARLES DICK.

OUT OF THE DEPTHS.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—We who can do so give our money to help the poor, and this is surely proof of God's goodness among men. But would not a national turning to God in prayer seem important, too, when we know that God is the one source that can supply the intelligence, the love and ability to solve the problem? It must have been out of knowledge the Chronicler wrote: "Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the power. Both riches and honor come to thee."

A HOPEFUL READER.

CLOSING THE BEACH.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Rumor has it that the Jackson park beach will close on Sunday, Aug. 30. As a taxpayer and patron of that beach I wish to register a protest against such action. Heretofore the last week of the bathing season has been the most enjoyable as the temperature of the air and the water combine to make perfect swimming weather.

Many of Chicago's visitors from out of town who flock to the city over Labor day have enjoyed using the facilities of this beautiful beach on this holiday and it being closed on their visit would deprive them of much of the pleasure of that visit. SWIMMER.

BEHAVIOR AT THE FIGHTS.

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 24.—During the two-week encampment of the National Guard fights are held in every regimental area every night. The participants in these bouts are the boys of the 33d division, who are always trying their best.

The populace of Rockford, Ill., who turn out in good numbers at these fights, are charged no admission whatsoever, and are always welcomed to the ringside. However, it is disgusting to see them roast, razz and ridicule a boy who isn't cutting his opponent to pieces. My contempt for these ignorant, cheapskates, the people of Rockford, is enough to fill six pages.

The commanding officers should bar all except men of the 33d division at future bouts if it is impossible for them to show some good sportsmanship.

26 Nations to Attempt to Solve Ills.

GENEVA, Aug. 30.—(AP)—A vigorous attack on protective tariff systems will be renewed under league of nations auspices tomorrow when political chiefs and economic experts of 26 nations gather here as an economic coördinating committee of the commission for European union.

A direct indictment of tariff walls as one of the fundamental causes of the prevailing world depression will be placed before the Europeans in the report of economic experts who have been studying Europe's need since the last session of the commission in May.

As long as the free movement of goods is obstructed by high customs duties, the report will declare, there is no chance for an improvement in Europe's and the world's grave economic situation.

Seek to Stabilize Tariffs.

Restrictions on the international movement of capital and labor also are attacked, along with tariffs, as contributing to the world's ills.

The general assault on tariffs is stimulated by a fear felt on the continent that the British government may enact protective legislation for its industries. Under the impulse of this fear leaders of a number of continental countries are anxious to obtain some agreement for stabilizing the existing tariffs and preparing a way for lowering them.

Such action, it is felt, would strengthen the beleagured free trade sentiment in England. Continental economists have asserted that the erection of protective tariff walls by Great Britain would set loose unrestricted economic warfare throughout the world. Some political observers expressed the belief a British protective system would be a world catastrophe.

Bankers' Report Up for Study.

Another influence for general tariff reduction, which is almost certain to make itself felt on the coördinating committee's work, is a part of the Wiggin bankers' committee report. The bankers denounced artificial obstacles to commerce as an essential factor in the European and world economic dislocation.

Sir Sidney Chapman will speak for Great Britain in the economic coördination deliberations, while Viscount Cecil will be the British representative at subsequent meetings of the league.

On Tuesday the league of nations council convenes, and on its agenda are the Austro-German customs union and Poland's treatment of the German minority under the Polish flag. On Thursday the European commission itself meet with the hope of taking concrete action on the economic remedies proposed by its committee.

Annual Assembly Next Week.

The annual assembly of the league comes together the following Monday in its twelfth session, at which the economic crisis and the coming world disarmament conference will provide ample material for the deliberations of 53 national delegations. Since the United States is not participating in the assembly it is felt here that the league is not capable of solving the present world problem.

Julius Curtius, German foreign minister, arrived today with the German delegation. Maxim Litvinov, Russian commissar for foreign affairs, was expected to arrive tonight or tomorrow, as was Andre Francois-Ponset, French undersecretary for national economy, who will represent France on the coordinating committee. Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy will arrive tomorrow. Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, will attend the sessions of the league assembly, according to dispatches from Paris.

JAIL ROOMING HOUSE LANDLADY TODAY FOR MURDER IN DETROIT

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Assistant Prosecuting Attorney George M. Stutz announced tonight his intention of asking a warrant tomorrow charging Mrs. Rose Veras, 48 year old Hungarian rooming house keeper, with the murder of Steve Mak, one of her lodgers who died last week.

Stutz said more than 100 witnesses had been questioned in the inquiry to determine whether Mak fell from a ladder, as his landlady claims, or was drugged and pushed from an attic window, as neighbors who claim to have witnessed his fall, contend.

Mrs. Veras held insurance policies totaling about $6,000 on Mak's life. Seventy-five other insurance policies were found by investigators in her home, many of them on eleven other of her roomers who have died within the last eight years.

CALIFORNIA PLAN TO AID JOBLESS WIDELY FAVORED

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—(AP)—An employment stabilization program now in operation in California, a prominent feature of which is work assurance to wage earners, today drew the official endorsement of President Hoover's relief organization.

Proposals for guaranteeing work to those now employed in order to encourage spending have been advanced by the American Federation of Labor, the United States Chamber of Commerce has been studying it, and President Hoover has indicated sympathy with it.

Fred C. Croxton, assistant director of the relief organization, said active support of the plan by 450 California business firms was evidence of its worth.

POLAND REFUSES TO SIGN RUSSIAN TREATY SINGLY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Aug. 30.—Polish ministers in the Baltic states have informed these governments that Warsaw will refuse to close a nonaggression pact with Moscow unless the soviet government agrees to include in the pact Finland, Esthonia, Latvia, and Rumania, and the project recently submitted to the Moscow foreign office by Warsaw included this stipulation.

The Moscow Investia declares that the Polish proposals are a step backward in the relations of these two states and that the soviet government will continue to sign nonaggression pacts only with single countries.

Russia Needs French Credits.

Negotiations between Russia and France are being closely followed in the Baltic press, which believes that Moscow—being unable to obtain large credits from Germany—hopes to arrange credits with France, since prices obtained on chief Russian exports, including grain, timber, flax, and oil products, have reached new low levels during the past year and Moscow must double its exports to obtain the same amount of foreign currency to pay its creditors abroad.

Gold shipments from Moscow to German banks have temporarily ceased and the gold fund of the soviet state bank has reached its lowest level since the revolution. Baltic bankers believe that soviet foreign trade monopoly will be unable to pay $30,000,000 credits which mature in January.

Both the Estonian and Latvian governments announce their continued coöperation at the coming session of the league of nations, and it is expected that representatives of Sweden, Finland, Latvia, and Poland will act jointly at Geneva. Lithuania, whose unofficial war with Poland over Vilna has made her an outcast in Baltic politics, has decided to continue her alliance with Moscow, because the soviet government is the only one which recognizes her claim to the Vilna district.

Renews Soviet-Lithuanian Pact.

The Lithuanian foreign minister and the soviet minister Saturday exchanged copies of a pact of nonaggression which they agreed to prolong for another five years.

American engineers, representing automobile, tractor, agricultural and mining machinery manufacturers, who are at present on vacation in Riga, report that Russia discontinued placing orders in America in June and that the present American export orders to Russia were given last year. None believe the soviets will be able to arrange further credits in America. They state that the German banks are also withdrawing credits. The report of the economic crisis seriously affects the five year plan, which has already broken down many more industries.

Over 175 men and women, former employés, will return to work. The factory has been closed down since 1928, prior to which time the Ball Brothers glass works was one of the leading industries of Hillsboro.

AUSTRALIA LABOR PARTY CONDEMNS ECONOMY PLAN

MELBOURNE, Aug. 30.—The Australian Labor party executive committee today passed a resolution by a vote of 22 to 13 condemning the Melbourne econbmy plan, but recognizing the plan "must be accepted in the circumstances." The resolution directs the Labor members of parliament to oppose "any further reductions of wages or pensions," and condemns an attempt "to pivot national industrial recovery on balancing government budgets," budgets being balanceable, it is argued, only by restoring employment and stimulating industry.

The resolution declares the present crisis "is monetary in character and can only be met by a policy of monetary and banking reform." The results of the conference as a whole are regarded as a victory for Premier Scullin's federal government and the state Labor governments, which adopted the Melbourne plan, and as a complete defeat for extremists like Premier Lang of New South Wales, who mustered only seven against the resolution.

During the conference the result of the latest Melbourne municipal elections was announced. The important issue was the reduction of wages of municipal employés, and Labor lost twelve seats. With 24 hours left for conversions under the commonwealth, the loan passed the $2,000,000,000 mark tonight. Securities, conversion of which is refused, do not exceed $50,000,000. Therefore success of the plan is assured.

FORD COMMERCIAL CARS SERVE NEW YORK TELEPHONE COMPANY

In almost every field of business Ford trucks and light commercial cars are helping to keep up standards and keep down costs of service. They are low in price, and records kept by many Ford fleet owners show remarkably low figures for operation and maintenance. Because of this, hundreds of truck users are standardizing on Ford units. The New York Telephone Company is but one of the many buyers that are influenced by actual experience with the Ford.

More than forty standard Ford types are now available in a choice of thirty-eight different color combinations. It is no longer necessary for you to have a special body built. Simply call on the local Ford dealer and he will furnish a complete unit—a strong, good-looking, business-building unit—exactly fitted to your needs. 3 CHICAGOANS KILLED AS AUTOS CRASH IN INDIANA

Tire Blowout Causes Fatal Accident.

A mother, daughter, and grandchild, all Chicagoans, were killed last night, and eight other persons were injured in an automobile accident on route 41, two miles north of Morocco, Ind.

Those killed were Mrs. A. L. Woods; her daughter, Mrs. Wilma Vanderberg, and Mrs. Vanderberg's son, William, 5 years old, all of 9327 Muskegon avenue. Mrs. Woods' husband, William, and another child of Mrs. Vanderberg, Ernest, were seriously injured and taken to the Jasper county hospital at Remsselaer. Six other persons from Indianapolis were slightly hurt. Mrs. Vanderberg's husband, Arthur, escaped injury.

The Woodses and Vanderbergs were driving toward Chicago at the time of the accident, full details of which were not learned. However, the crash occurred, police said, when a front tire on the car containing the Indianapolis people blew out, swerving their machine into the other car.

Third Crash Victim Dies.

A third victim died yesterday as the result of the accident Friday at 89th street and Ashland avenue when a Baltimore and Ohio train struck a money truck and killed two outright. The latest victim was William J. O'Brien, 31 years old, 6042 Wabansia avenue, driver of the ill fated truck. He died at the Little Company of Mary hospital. The two who were killed instantly were Raymond Hengels, 1811 South 15th avenue, Cicero, and James Perkins, 5317 West Monroe street.

Other Deaths of Day.

The death of O'Brien and seven others yesterday brought the auto death toll for Cook county since the first of the year to 763. The other victims:

George Worth, 48 years old, 445 West 42d place, a pressman. Fatally hurt when struck by a hit and run driver at 38th and Halsted streets as he was repairing a punctured tire. He died at Auburn Park hospital.

Mrs. Ellen Deady, aged 55, 8014 South Loomis street. Died at Little Company of Mary hospital of injuries received Aug. 2 in an accident at 79th street and Cicero avenue, Oak Lawn. John Kron, 6220 South Morgan street, driver of a car involved in the accident, is to appear today at the inquest at the hospital.

Mrs. Gladys Moss, 29 years old, colored. Fatally hurt when the car in which she was riding and which was driven by her husband, Thaddeus, struck a telephone pole at Dempster street and Shermer road, west of Evanston.

James Kennedy, a resident of Hillcrest. Fatally hurt yesterday when his automobile struck a tree as he was turning into a driveway at 17311 Ashland avenue, Homewood. He died at the Ingalls Memorial hospital in Harvey a few hours after the accident.

Kasimir Kuklinski, 43 years old, 4726 Center avenue, Lyons. Fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile driven by Max Leusch of Lyons at Center avenue and Joliet road, Lyons.

Marylin Reuss, 9 years old, 2333 Orchard street, Blue Island. Died in St. Francis hospital, Blue Island, of internal injuries she suffered when she was struck by an automobile driven by O. E. Atwood of Fremont, Mich., earlier in the day on Western avenue.

Unidentified man, between 50 and 55 years old. Killed last night at Cornelia and Ashland avenues by an automobile which did not stop. The car sped north in Ashland avenue. The victim was 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighed 190 pounds, and had gray eyes. The letter "L" was engraved on his belt buckle.

Edward Lockwood, 17 years old, 6847 Dorchester avenue, sustained a fractured skull when the steering gear of an automobile driven by his brother, Donald, 19 years old, broke and the vehicle struck a post at 95th street and Clyde avenue. He was taken to the Jackson Park hospital, where it was said that he probably will die. His brother was only slightly hurt.

A coroner's jury at Aurora, which investigated the death of Harold Thomas, aged 7, yesterday recommended that the Illinois legislature pass a law compelling all autoists to carry public liability insurance. The child was crushed between two cars which collided in Aurora. Guy W. Funk of Plainfield, and W. K. Loofburrow of Aurora, owners of the cars, carried no insurance, it was brought out at the inquest.

Girl Preacher's Path to Power Drama of Novel

Sheila Kaye-Smith Wins Wider Public.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Susan Spray," by Sheila Kaye-Smith [Harpers]. Published today.

SHEILA KAYE-SMITH has written in "Susan Spray" another of her lusty novels rooted in the soil of Sussex. To the ever increasing number of her admirers that statement would be enough to insure their rushing to the nearest bookshop. But however mathematically increasing, her admirers always have been a small and select group. That no longer will be true, for "Susan Spray" is the September choice of the Book of the Month club [one of two books—"A San Pedro" is the other]. So to a vast audience, to whom the name of Sheila Kaye-Smith was perhaps only a group of letters like any other combination of letters to form a name, the author, devoutly admired by a few, will become known.

SHEILA KAYE-SMITH.

"Susan Spray" has been called in England Miss Kaye-Smith's best novel since "Joanna Godden." It resembles that novel more than her others in the sense that it is more of a study of character than of Sussex life and customs. The others have been, in a sense, more geographical and psychological. They have been the essays of that fertile, lovely county. "Susan Spray" is, in its essence, the story of a woman. She happened to be born in Sussex and to live there most of her life. She unquestionably was a product, spiritual and psychological, of Sussex. But it is not the story of Sussex and its influence upon Susan Spray which Miss Kaye-Smith has put of Susan Spray and her influence upon Sussex.

Like Joanna Godden, Susan Spray was a determined woman, but she was determined in a day when women were expected to be less self-expressive than they were in Joanna Godden's day. Susan Spray was born in 1851. During her entire childhood starvation hammered at her body. Her mother born, in starvation, one child after another until death released her from her baby. Her father died a drunkard. She and her countless brothers and sisters were put into the workhouse. But something had happened to Susan when she was a little babe which colored the whole course of her life. She had been put out to work scaring birds from the turnip fields. During a storm she was terrified by the thunder at the age of five that instead of staying at her post she ran home. She had been brought up in a strict religious group and she felt that she had heard God's voice in the thunder and had seen him in the flash of fire. When she reached home she gave that "vision" as an excuse for her neglect of her duty. Her mother didn't believe that she had seen God, but her father was willing to accept the revelation, and he made her stand up in church the next Sunday and tell of her visitation.

A doubter questioned her and the child broke down in a fit of anger and denied her visions. When the doubter was found dead, the congregation was sure that God had smitten him for his blasphemy. So Susan became the idol of the congregation. She was sent to school. She read the Bible at home—only one other person could read, and he was laid low with disease. Susan got, at the age of seven or eight, a taste of leadership through religion which dominated her future.

Miss Kaye-Smith tells with a slow, and extremely leisurely style the story of that future. It held dramatic elements, but it had not the quality of sudden drama, for it was, except for a short interval when Susan gave up her love for a doubter, the story of Susan's inexorable ambition to make herself a power in the community through her preaching and to gain worldly comfort for herself. It included three marriages, the first to a man who adored her, petted her, spoiled her preaching with inordinate pride, and suffered infinitely more than she did when her child died, not because he loved the child so passionately but because Susan's suffering was too intense a pain for him. The second marriage was for passionate love to a gay, keen minded "gentleman" who mistook her assurances that she would one day be very wealthy for fact. Her love for him died, and neither imperceptibly nor slowly. The third marriage was a cold-blooded one of convenience to further Susan's ambitions as a preacher.

"Susan Spray" is a keen analysis of a type of selfish woman who makes herself and the world at large believe that she is grandly and almost divinely unselfish. It is ironic, and it has at times a certain dry humor, although it is in no sense either a gay novel or an amusing book. It is rich and heavy and rich and fertile with the soil of the rural England in which its events take place.

It is just as well that a great many people become acquainted with Sheila Kaye-Smith's work with "Susan Spray," for it has all of the qualities which are typically Miss Kaye-Smith's.

Good Morning!

"Sporting Blood" starts down in Kentucky on the property of Jim Rellenes, a droll character who breeds racing horses for sale; transports you with Tommy, one of his colts, to the race tracks, and shows you a heap of things.

You learn why some horses lose and some win; much about the ways of owners, jockeys, trainers, and turfmen, good and bad. You are reminded that the sort of treatment accorded beast or man is responsible for the worthy or otherwise accomplishments of same, and you see one whacking, exciting race with a new quirk to it.

The first reel or so drag some because of too much sentimental dialogue delivered with an excess of thought and punctuation by Ernest Torrence as the horse breeder who loves his animals like so many children. But after that the film picks up speed and is full of incidents that old and young horse lovers will enjoy.

Romance enters with the appearance of Clark Gable and Madge Evans, who are discovered living not as they should. That, however, is remedied by a nice, clean, satisfactory finale.

What crudities "Sporting Blood" possesses are atoned for by the beautiful, intelligent animals on display, and those engaging glimpses into the life of a horse before and after he hears the cry "THEY'RE OFF!"

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Are you looking forward to our party on Thursday, boys and girls? Inasmuch as it's the last party of the season, a most enjoyable season, I would say, too—I am sure you are just as pleased about it as I am.

The program at the Oriental is a splendid one this week with that exciting race horse picture, "Sporting Blood," and an equally entertaining stage show. The "Little Revue," as it's called, is featuring Nan Halperin, the comedienne, who is sure to please you at every turn. She sings and clowns about and puts on some of the funniest skits you've ever seen. One, in particular, which will probably be uproarious, is her imitation of a little girl all ready to have "her picture tooken."

There will be dancing by the Merriel Abbott boys and girls who number among the best in their line. And there will be the four Mullen sisters who sing and play, and soft shoe dancing by the Rio brothers. All in all, it sounds like a marvelous program and the hundred boys and girls who found their names in yesterday's TRIBUNE are destined to have a splendid afternoon.

U. S. BOOK INDUSTRY SHOWING REVIVAL, 12 PUBLISHERS SAY

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—America's book industry has begun a strong recovery from the depression, with sales during the summer showing a large increase over the same period during 1930 and with every indication pointing "to the best fall season since the beginning of hard times."

Such is the unanimous conclusion of twelve of the nation's leading publishers who have submitted their views to a survey of trends as the new book season opens with the arrival of September.

The country will be greeted this season with a list of books far superior in quality to any similar list of recent years, publishers agree. The depression has forced curtailments in the number of books, with the result that although nearly 15,000 books a year were being published twenty years ago, probably about 10,000 will be issued during 1931, according to an estimate by Frederick A. Stokes. The paring of lists which economic reasons have necessitated, has led book publishers and authors to be more discriminating than usual and only books "which represent a real definite value" are promised this fall.

Joseph M. Lippincott, president of J. B. Lippincott company of Philadelphia, goes so far as to say that "authors are now turning out some of the best books of the century."

The shock of hard times has made American book readers serious minded and publishers discern a growing popularity for books of biography, economics, philosophy, international relations and novels of "a substantial character," according to such representative firms as Harper's, Macmillan, Dutton, Doubleday-Doran, Scribner's, and Appleton. The popularity of biographies is specially strong.

German Nation Ponders Home Cash Problem

Will 4 Pfennig Piece Aid Economy?

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—Apparently hoping to assist and encourage the process of national price paring, which German citizens' reduced earnings—and buying power—make necessary, the government's ministry of finance is engaged in weighty and complex researches.

The great problem is: Shall we start coining 4 pfennig pieces?

Such a coin would be worth about .95 of a cent and would supplement, not displace, the standard 5 pfennig piece, which is in general circulation. Only a corresponding number of 5 pfennigs would be called in so as not to "inflate" the coin currency.

Of course, there already exists the little 1 pfennig copper and the not-much-bigger 2 pfennig piece; and four ones or two twos have always made four. But the finance ministry's experts seem to feel that the existence of the 4 pfennig piece would be more effective in promulgating the idea of reducing prices for small trade; merchants in the retail vegetable and produce markets, pushcarts at the curbs, house to house peddlers, "hosts" of the neighborhood beer saloons and dispensaries, and others whose business concerns the little things and little sums of life, will—it is reasoned—become pfennig conscious.

If there would be a perceptible sufficiency of the projected piece, they would charge 4 pfennigs for what used to cost 5, or 9 for what used to cost 10, and so on along the line.

The German hausfrau has to count her money in terms of individual pfennigs—count it again—before she can afford to spend any of it these day. Why shouldn't she, and the merchant, also, reckon in them, instead of rounding everying off to the nearest amount ending with five or zero?

So numbers of business and industry associations have been asked what they think of the idea—for it is only in the really big questions that the government officials feel justified in going gally ahead with a new emergency decree first and then asking afterwards.

Four pfennig pieces will not be newcomers; Prussia used a lot of them years ago when there was no Germany and the kingdom of Prussia attended to its own coinage.

J. A. PATTEN FAMILY REMODELS CHURCH NEAR BIRTHPLACE

BY KATHARINE KELLEY.

A crossroads community that sent a farm boy to the city to become a multimillionaire will pay a tribute to the late James A. Patten on next Sunday.

Around the same meeting house in which the world famous grain trader worshiped as a boy throngs will gather. The United Presbyterian church in De Kalb county, five miles south of Somonauk, has been rebuilt and will be formally dedicated as a memorial to the man who made a fortune in wheat.

Eighty-five years ago the little church was built on the site of the first log cabin in De Kalb county. Mr. Patten's grandfather was one of the founders. His father for years was an elder of the church. And now his widow and other members of his family have donated $25,000 for the rebuilding of the church, and have personally supervised the plans for the memorial.

On a farm near Freeland corners Mr. Patten was born May 8, 1852. For twenty-two years he lived in the heart of the Illinois prairies accumulating the knowledge of grains that later made him a world champion in the game of "cornering" the markets. He clerked in the country store and worked on his grandfather's farm. In 1874 he came to Chicago.

Elaborate plans have been made for the dedicatory week which opens tomorrow night and will end with the dedication on Sunday. The first event, as announced by the pastor, the Rev. W. C. Davidson, will be a concert by the Cavalier quartet of Monmouth college. Friday and Saturday home talent plays will be given by the dramatic club of the community. Saturday has been designated as homecoming day. Old timers will be back for a dinner at noon and will spend the afternoon talking over old times.

On Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock the Rev. A. J. Randles of Newcastle, Pa., who once lived in the community, will preach the dedicatory sermon. At 11:30 a memorial tablet given by the congregation in recognition of the generosity of the Patten family will be unveiled. Present will be Mr. Patten's widow, Mrs. Louise Patten, and his son, John L. Patten.

The homecoming will end with the evening service, at which former pastors will address the congregation.

To the old auditorium has been added a Sunday school recess, a new community hall and kitchen. The church was organized in the Patten home in 1846, and was built just across the creek from the farmhouse.

Newer Dances Less Erratic, Masters' View

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Quick and snappy does it on the ballroom floor this winter season. For those who aspire to trip the light fantastic a la mode, the simple life is over. The newer routine of Terpsichore is an intricate affair, involving demonstration and application—and inevitably perspiration. But it's fun!

Shades of Rudolph Valentino, Maurice Mouvet, Vernon Castle, and others—whose dancing fame rested securely on the firm basis of their way with the Spanish tango and its variations—might conceivably grow wistful watching the latest evolutions of their favorite pastime. They might be specially so this week at the Congress hotel, by stars among the membership of the Chicago Association of Dancing Masters.

Nominally a local affair, the event has drawn visitors from as far away as New York and New Orleans in anticipation of a season in which dancing is due to enjoy a popularity it hasn't known since the world war days. A different tempo in popular music has created the flurry the instructors confidently predict will grow to amazing proportions as the year grows older.

Once more the tango fathers the measures of the dance, or dances, submitted this week to the teachers at the Congress. From this perspective its most promising offspring is the rumba, the Cuban native dance Nordics found so difficult to temper to ballroom requirements that almost the only thing that now remains that is authentic is the rhythm.

Plenty of pep has been retained in the rumba, though. Mrs. Anna H. Keenen and her son, Walter F. Keenan Jr., of Philadelphia, described as the only mother and son ballroom dancing team, demonstrated their version yesterday to the directors of the organization. Tap dance steps added to the staccato bars of the rumba music create a form of exercise in which the youthful enthusiasm of collegiate circles probably will revel, but which is not recommended for the weak of heart or the heavy of foot.

Then there is the fraternity glide, danced by the Keenans to a barrage of approving comment from the sidelines. Slower, yet brisk enough, it is a graceful adaptation of the glides and slides and dips that have been out of favor in the reign of jazz. All ages will delight in the almost stately movements, which when danced to tango music become "Mi Joya," or in English, "My Jewel."

Thomas Sheehy, president of the dancing masters, and his daughter Katherine showed a few points they picked up in Los Angeles, at the national convention of dancing teachers, from which they had just returned. Instead of a man clutching his partner in a bearish embrace this fall and winter, the correct form will be the "open position," the couple separated by several inches and frequently side by side rather than face to face.

The Sheehys also showed the "tango fiesta" they originated, a variation of the tango they presented at the national gathering and which was popular there.

Illinois Kiwanis and Eastern Iowa Group Open 1931 Convention

Opening services of the fourteenth annual convention of the Kiwanis club of the Illinois and eastern Iowa district, were held last night at the University of Chicago chapel.

More than 2,000 persons attended. Henry A. Dormeyer, governor of the Illinois and eastern Iowa district, presided. Prof. T. V. Smith of the philosophy department of the university gave the principal address, his subject being: "The Service Ideal in the 20th Century." Dr. Douglas Horton, of the United church of Hyde Park, said the prayer.

The convention will last four days. At 1:30 o'clock this afternoon, Dr. Joshua L. Johns, a trustee of Kiwanis International, will lay a wreath on the Kiwanis doughboy monument in the north end of Lincoln park.

"SALT WATER."

Harrison Davis	Richard Irving

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

TAYLOR HOLMES, well known as a fidgety farceur, is now acting at the Playhouse in a simple minded and simple hearted playlet called "Salt Water." By means of jumps, jerks, spasms, and tantrums on the part of Mr. Holmes and his auxiliaries, it is stretched to a three act length; but a playlet it remains. "Salt Water" sounds as if it might have had its origin in one of those short-short stories that the magazines are printing nowadays.

This farcical comedy smacks of the nautical atmosphere that authors acquire in their summer vacations on Martha's Vineyard, or maybe Buzzards Bay. Its scene is a little old house by the ocean, and its characters talk endlessly of coasting schooners, ferry boats, blue fish, and surf bathing. Mr. Holmes appears as a candy butcher on an Albany night boat who yearns to become a deep sea sailor, like his father and grandfather before him, and who quarrels comically with his nice young wife because she has invested their savings in a ramshackle ferry. They part in a frenzy of dish smashing and picture breaking at the end of Act II, but the last chapter brings them together, when Mr. Holmes glumly decides to accept his destiny and forswears his oceanic ambitions.

For a long time I held out manfully against "Salt Water," while the frequenters of the Playhouse around me were all of a giggle. But I succumbed in the family row scene, when Mr. Holmes, with a vehemence worthy of the madness of King Lear, banishes his relatives from the house. He was especially sore at his gabby sister-in-law—one of those characters always ready with a wise come-back—and after he had jumped upon his mother-in-law's photograph he turned upon his tormenter with a fury worthy of his marine ancestors.

Plucking down grandfather's harpoon from the wall, he roared, with appropriate gestures: "Get out of here before I run wild and mistake you for a walrus!" This was quite crazy enough to stir me out of my silent opposition to "Salt Water." I was ready then to cheer for Mr. Holmes and beg him to finish off the evening with his favorite recitation of Kipling's "Boots."

This incident, moreover, is worthy of note because it calls attention to a striking fact in the natural history of the drama. "Salt Water" is the only play on record that carries its own harpoons.

Fiske O'Hara, who used to open the Chicago theatrical season in days of yore with samples of the Hibernian lyric drama, is prominent in the cast as a salty old mate who fosters Mr. Holmes' dreams of navigation. The blarney is still sweet upon his tongue, and he acts as if he would lend a willing ear to cries from the gallery for "Wild Irish Rose."

The others represent a fair journeyman cast for a play that might easily have been written for a week-end jinks at a Cape Cod summer resort.

Child Heart Sufferers to Get Two Weeks' Rest

Vacation may be drawing to a close for the majority of school children, but it only begins this morning for 144 boys and girls afflicted with heart trouble, who will be encamped for the next two weeks in portables on a tract of land adjoining the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium. Mayor Cermak and Mrs. Gertrude Howe Britton, head of the Chicago Heart association, who coöperated in getting the outing for the children, obtained the indulgence of W. J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, for the youngsters to miss the first four days of school.

Buses will pick up the small patients this morning at the Cook county hospital and the Northwestern university clinic, for the jaunt to their camp site, at 6601 North Crawford avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Everett Help the Field Museum

The Field museum yesterday announced a gift to the institution of a rare Chinese painting of the Ming period by Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Everett of Hinsdale. The painting, executed in the sixteenth century, is printed in bright colors on silk, and represents a school of carp in a pond. It will be hung with a number of others belonging to the museum, in a jade room now being prepared.

3 R's to Parade in Modern Dress in City Schools

Planning New Methods in Teaching of Pupils.

New methods in education, with especial regard for reading, writing, and arithmetic, form an important part of the program which has been planned for Chicago public schools during the coming year by Supt. William J. Bogan.

There will be no more compulsory memorization, according to the recommendations of the new reading course for grades 4, 5, and 6. The aim of the recreational reading course will be to increase the child's fondness for good literature. In the work type of reading special emphasis will be placed on skill in obtaining information from books; use of the index, table of contents, and outlining. Definite provisions will be made for study of arithmetic, geography, and history.

During the year a number of schools will be set up as experimental centers in arithmetic. The difficulties of children in attacking new operations will be analyzed according to modern methods and presented in the simplest systematic order.

"Basing our work on a study made last year by a committee of principals under the direction of Dr. G. T. Buswell of the University of Chicago, we hope," said Supt. Bogan, "to eliminate from the experience of youth the nightmare of unruly fractions."

Much of the work of the year will be based upon the theories and methods developed in the "Experimental Work and Play school" carried on for eight weeks during the summer in the Lewis-Champlin school. The purpose of this experiment, according to Supt. Bogan, is to help the Chicago school authorities, [illegible] teachers to superintendents, to discover and appreciate values in free or self-expressive programs that can be carried on in the regular public schools.

The tentative plans for the year contemplate the selection of six groups from those who are beginners in their grades. These groups will be the subject of special study by a psychologist who will make careful measurement of their progress in reading, writing, and arithmetic. The intensive health program initiated during the summer will be continued.

Groups of parents will be organized for study of home making and child care. The children's play will be supervised. A "reading clinic" will be organized for those who have specific difficulties. A closely integrated program of art and music and a special program for the groups in the industrial arts will be included. Supt. Bogan plans gradually to spread the program as worked out in the small unit throughout the entire school.

Regarding the program for the new Joyce Kilmer school, North Shore and Greenview avenues, Supt. Bogan said:

"Child study methods, which have been in operation at the Sullivan Junior High school for the last two years, and which have been indorsed by parents in the Rogers Park district, will be followed through all of the grades. Scientific technique will be used to discover individual and trait differences in mental endowment, special talents and personality.

"Difficulties in reading and arithmetic will be diagnosed and corrected before they have become fixed. The entire procedure will operate to the end that children may develop completely, freely and happily."

CINDERELLA BALLET DELIGHTS PATRONS AT THE RAVINIA THEATER

By all odds the most popular Sunday afternoon feature of the Ravinia season was the final one, turned over to ballet and ballet music. Ruth Page gave the first performance anywhere of a new ballet of which she composed the choreography and in which she took the leading part, and it ran "Peter Ibbetson" a close race in public esteem.

For several seasons past there has been reason to believe that the dance, always one of the fine arts, was rapidly becoming one of the popular arts. This performance did much to confirm the belief.

The ballet was "Cinderella," written during the spring just past by Marcel De Lannoy, one of the coming young French composers. As far as story is concerned, it follows the Cinderella tale closely, from the time that Cinderella is helping the ugly stepsisters to dress for the ball to the time that Prince Charming comes to their home and tries on the lost slipper. For practical reasons concerned with the dance the slipper was not of glass. That is about the only departure from the original.

It is a charming work, partly from Miss Page's well conceived choreography and dainty performance, partly from the De Lannoy music. De Lannoy is 33 years old, therefore rating as a contemporary, but he has a curiously old fashioned belief in good tunes.

Apparently he is acquainted with the modernistic harmonic scheme, as he showed in the bits relating to the stepsisters. But he prefers to hurry on to the melodies of the ball scene, with a minuet, a gavotte, a waltz—one must not mind anachronisms—all of delightful character.

The scenery and costumes were by Nicolas Remisoff, excellent in line and color. Miss Page was a delight, Blake Scott was the ideal of a folk-tale prince; the fairy godmother, the stepsisters, and other members of the cast came from the ballet company.

All that the piece needs now is a full orchestration. It was played by the small orchestra under the direction of Eric De LaMarter, who is wise in the lore of ballet conducting. Before this, he directed the Chicago Symphony orchestra in a concert of ballet music by Goldmark, Glazounow, and Rubinstein, altogether making up an entertainment that is worth being heard many times.

Scientist with Flyers Corrects Map of Arctic

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—Prof. Samoilovitch, chief of the scientists aboard the Graf Zeppelin on its arctic flight, has started sifting the material collected.

He says only open sea swished and swelled near Franz Joseph Land, where islands were located on all charts since 1896, when an English company, working under the difficulties of winter, was believed to have located land under the pack ice. From the Graf Zeppelin's windows, as the great ship cruised at a height of some 2,500 feet, it was possible to establish the absence of bodies of land.

Prof. Samoilovitch defined his opinion of the value of the Zeppelin as an instrument for arctic research:

"For some purposes it offers great advantages—especially geographic and cartographic work, also study of atmospheric conditions. But there are naturally scientific investigations which cannot be carried out from an airship—geologic and oceanographic, for instance.

—o—

"But," said Prof. Samoilovitch, whose own specialties are the last named branches of science, "if an airship can land in the north, those problems are solved, too. On the Graf's northern flight we proved that such a landing is possible."

He recalled with pleasure the part taken in the expedition by the two Americans, Commodore Smith and Lincoln Ellsworth. He is prouder of the fact that it was an internationally composed party that went to his arctic regions than that he was leader.

"Ellsworth is such a charming, pleasant fellow! He has asked me most urgently to be invited to take part in my next expeditions, wherever they lead," said Samoilovitch.

That next expedition, according to Samoilovitch, will probably be a mansized job: a coastal cruise of exploration and charting all the way from Archangel to Vladivostok. It is planned for early next summer and will take either half a year, or a year and a half. Why the discrepancy? Because, if the ice breaking ship doesn't get finished with its long and arduous trip by the end of the first summer, it will be allowed to freeze into the ice pack until the following spring brings thaw and clear seaways again. Whether it actually would be possible to invite smiling, amiable Ellsworth on this jaunt, Prof. Samoilovitch was unable to say yet.

Whether they are to use the Zeppelin in their work again, depends very largely on the results of a conference between the Russian arctic authorities and Eckener and other representatives of the Zeppelin company, to take place in Berlin the end of September.

Samoilovitch is more than pleased with the all-round results of the Zeppelin method of probing the frozen north.

The Zeppelin party discovered and observed a beautiful glacier mountain nearly a mile high on the almost unexplored Taimyr peninsula. Unfortunately they were prevented by exigencies of the trip from studying this natural wonder as thoroughly as they would have liked.

Let Child Resume His Activities Gradually After Grave Illness

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

An older woman who has had an opportunity to watch children growing up in a suburban community writes a letter containing a number of interesting comments. She seems to have a special understanding of the needs of children with poor physical backgrounds or nervous, keyed up temperaments.

She has noticed how often children who are convalescing from serious illnesses are rushed back into every day living, because their parents don't realize that it takes time to build up their strength.

—o—

"One child," she says, "had been up only eight days after a serious illness, and she was kept going from morning until night with games and long walks, and then was reproved and punished because she was cross at dinner time.

"So many parents just through inexperience and lack of imagination don't conserve the slowly accumulating strength that follows an illness.

She ends with this: "Also, do you think a radio tires children when it is going full blast? I am fond of some of the music and talks, but I am under the impression that when a child is studying or trying to get quiet for the night, it is sometimes disturbing to a high strung, active child.

—o—

"In many homes I find parents turn the radio on and go out in the yard to work, or go into other parts of the house, while a child does not know enough to get away from it. In this wonderful suburban section where there is plenty of fresh air and sunshine we have a great many tired wan children."

If you havent had experience in child care, you need judgment and imagination to take their place.

Gigolo Seems Only Answer to Marriage Scorning Divorcees

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Are there no men left between 35 and 45 who want companionship only?" So inquires Blond Widow.

She is a widow with a couple of children, not eager to embrace marriage again—but would like male companionship, some one to take her dancing, driving, etc.

Now, I find this problem of how to stay unmarried and still enjoy the companionship that usually leads to marriage an increasing one among widows and divorcées. The divorcées, you suspect, maybe erroneously, of enjoying the freedom their alimony provides and not wanting to jeopardize its regular income. Again, it may be that their first unfortunate marriage prejudices them against another attempt.

Anyway the problem that I find on the increase is the taste for life without having to cater to a husband's rightful part in it, with all the attentions thrown in that are associated with a companionship, the object of which is matrimony.

There's a large question in my mind that it can be done. There's a question in my mind as to whether this type of woman has the right to resent the so-called unpleasant experiences she encounters as the result of trying to retain her freedom. She carries on flirtations, she encourages male attention, she plies the arts of capture—and then she wants to maintain the relationship on a purely platonic basis.

The trouble with the arrangement is that men are not yet sufficiently advanced along modern-woman thinking lines to submit to the plan gracefully. About the only class of male available to the scheme is the gigolo type, whose interest is commercial. He has to be paid for his unemotional conduct.

A woman who is reasonably attractive, and who accentuates that attractiveness with all the tricks of the trade common to attracting males, is going to have the very mischief of a time establishing or maintaining her position as a nonmarrying kind. Men simply do not understand the species—and until they do the divorcées and widows must try to realize that they are asking the impossible.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Boy Friend Is Shy.

"Dear Miss Blake: My former friend cares for me, but is shy. How can I get him to come back?

"BOBBIE."

Arrange a little party, or a foursome for bridge, and send him an invitation. That should do the trick.

—o—

Question Her.

"Dear Miss Blake: My girl friend says she loves me, but when we go out she goes with my friend and I have to go with her sister. Please advise. JOHNNIE."

I should question her about it, Johnnie.

Dinner Guests Give Dime Each to Feed the Needy

New York, Aug. 29.—(AP)—The idea in Greenwich, Conn., is for every guest at a social dinner to put a dime in a milk bottle, the money to be used to feed undernourished children.

As explained here tonight, the idea was originated by Mrs. Sherburne Prescott, president of the Greenwich Social Service league and daughter of Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the governing board of the Chase National bank.

Mrs. Prescott says she believes her plan should result in raising at least $500 per month, estimating a dollar a month from each of 500 bottles.

Many of the socially prominent already have indicated a desire to join the plan, it was announced.

Playing With Fire

By WILLIAM MAC LEOD RAINE

SYNOPSIS.

Lee Reynolds is owner of a ranch which drought has almost ruined and starved the cattle. School friends from the east come as paying guests. Lee quarrels with her ranch foreman, Ranse Brennan, partly on account of a new hand, named Smith, she hired without his permission, and partly because she rejects his love suit. Brennan is discharged and leaves. Dunc Daggett, an old ranch helper, recognizes Smith as Jack Hadley, son of an oil man of California, whose father was murdered by outlaws. Hadley tells Daggett that he is searching for the murderer of his father. Lee leases a Mexican ranch across the herd there. Mrs. Doris Silver, a flirtatious friend of Lee's, goes on ahead to the Mexican rancho. Brennan drops in on her just before Jack Hadley, who has been sent on by Lee, arrives. Hadley drives to Palo Duro for supplies and takes Doris with him. Doris wanders off and is abducted and Hadley has to fight several natives to rescue her. A revolution breaks out. Megares, borzy man of the border is head of it.

INSTALLMENT XIII.

MEET COLONEL BRENNAN.

After they had finished checking up bills and accounts Lee and Daggett rode out to meet the herd. They drew off to one side and let the leaders pass.

"They don't look quite so much like horned skeletons," Lee told her foreman, Brennan, pleased at the appearance of the Herefords. "Surprising what three or four days of good feed will do."

At the ranch they split the herd and threw half into one pasture and half into the other. Jack Hadley was on hand to help. He and Daggett kept tally as the animals poured through the gates. The loss on the trail, the vagon, amounted to less than thirty.

While Lee sat on Nugget watching the cattle as they were driven into the second pasture a rider came up at a lope and drew up beside her. She glanced at the man.

The girl looked at him with level eyes. "That needn't worry you, Mr. Brennan," she said quietly.

"It doesn't. Not a bit. I just thought I'd like to take a look at 'em." There was a scarcely concealed triumph in his heavy mirth.

"That's twice you've taken a look at the herd and twice you've honored us with a visit at the rancho. I think that will be enough," Lee told him curtly, her gaze on a young steer starting to bolt.

A moment later Nugget was off on the jump, pounding over the ground in a half-circle to head back the three-year-old. The girl swung the loop of her rope in front of the animal and crowded it back to the herd. This done, she joined those holding the circle.

Brennan had come to gloat over her, to make covert threats that would fill her with fear. He had expected to taste the anticipatory joy of her defeat. Instead, he had been warned, like some casual tramp, to keep off her property, and had been left to digest it without being given a chance for a comeback.

Angrily he jerked at the rein, turned his horse, and rode away. He did not leave the ranch, but went to the house. He pushed through the outer door and the door opening to the patio.

"Tell her that the third time I come here it will be for business."

"Go ahead," he said sourly. "Laugh. I'll have my turn later."

"But I'm not going to laugh," she said, with her most engaging smile. "I ought to thank you for your advice. You told me to stay at the ranch. I didn't, and had the most terrible, thrilling adventure."

"So it was you. I figured it must be."

"If it hadn't been for Mr. Smith, if he hadn't been so brave, I don't know what would have happened. He saved me, so you see you're not the only man in Mexico who can."

"Smith was the fellow, eh? Well, he hasn't heard the last of that. I wonder if he can save himself."

She realized her error and attempted to remedy it by placating Brennan. "He wasn't to blame at all. Those horrible men dragged me upstairs, then he came in and fought them and rescued me. Nobody could have done it better—except maybe you, Mr. Brennan, because you are so fearless and powerful. I wouldn't have worried if you'd been there."

"You wouldn't have needed to worry. I'd have fixed it all right. Next time maybe you'll listen to me and do as I say."

"Yes," she promised meekly, her big innocent eyes raised humbly to his. "Your friend Lee Reynolds got gay with me a little while ago and practically ordered me off the place. Now I'll leave a message with you for her. Then you give it to her straight. Tell her that the third time I come here it will be for business. Can you remember that?"

The sound of voices from outside came to them. He moved closer and stood over her.

"I'll be going," he said quickly.

"Must you?" she murmured politely.

When Lee opened the door to come into the patio with her foreman Brennan was moving across the tiles to leave.

"I told you to go," Lee cried. "Get out, or I'll have you whipped off the place."

He stopped, and glared at her. "Me! Ranse Brennan! I'd sure work you over if you was a man."

Lee turned to Daggett. "Go bring three or four of the boys," she said.

Brennan did not wait. He swung to his horse and flung himself into the saddle.

Twenty-four hours later a dozen horses clattered up the road and stopped at the Costillo hacienda. From them descended ragged peons and one man dressed as a cattleman. He was an American, big and brown and rangy, clearly the leader of the expedition.

"Stay here till I come back," he gave orders in Spanish, then rang the bell at the gate.

Juan answered the ring.

"Tell your mistress," the big man said brusquely, "that Col. Brennan of the Mexican Army of Revolution wishes to see her at once."

"Si, senor," Juan replied, and vanished into the house.

Brennan did not wait for an answer. He followed the old servant. In the long living room he stopped. It was dark and cool. He sat down in a comfortable old chair, put his boots on another, and lit a cigaret.

When Lee came into the room he removed his feet from the second chair and rose to bow to her. He looked at her, malice smoldering in his eyes.

"Meet Col. Brennan, aid-de-camp to Gen. Megares, commandant of the Revolutionary army in the district of southern Sonora."

"I'm not surprised," she said, very quietly.

It was amazing how much of contempt she got into those three words. Some one knocked on the door and at Lee's invitation came into the room. It was her foreman, Dunc Daggett. She had sent for him as soon as Juan had announced the guest.

"I think you've met each other before," Lee said with an ironic smile. "But Mr. Brennan has risen in the world since you saw him last, Dunc. He is now Col. Brennan, aid-de-camp to Gen. Megares, commandant of the Revolutionary army in the district of southern Sonora."

"I've come to get the body of a fellow who claims his name is John Smith. He's wanted for raising a riot at Palo Duro and attempting to kill good Mexican citizens."

"I mean I want him dead or alive."

"He didn't raise a riot. You know that very well. He defended a woman against dishonor, a woman you say is a friend of yours." The young ranch owner's voice was still steady, but there was a rising wave of alarm in her heart. This man hated her, hated Jack Hadley.

Brennan's malicious smile was hateful. "Maybe he'll be able to prove that after I've taken him to Palo Duro. Of course he'll have a perfectly fair trial. You understand that."

"He's not going with you to Palo Duro."

"I won't give him up," Lee cried, a little wildly.

"No? You set yourself against the revolution then?" Brennan grinned. She was on the edge of a trap. Would she put her foot in it?

"I do not," she protested. "It's none of my business. I'm a foreigner and a neutral. I won't interfere in any way."

"But when an officer of the revolution comes and demands you give up a criminal you refuse. What do you call that but interference?"

"He isn't a criminal. I don't believe he is wanted by the authorities, not unless you've stirred them up. You are paying off a personal grudge. I don't know that you're an officer in the revolutionary troops."

Lee looked it over. "I don't understand Spanish very well. Maybe it is, but it's not on official stationery."

"It's signed by Megares. That makes it official enough."

She handed the paper back to him.

"I'm going to take this fellow Smith back with me. You can lay a heavy bet on that and win. That's not all I'm going to take. We're going to cut out twenty-five of your fattest steers for the army."

"Rob me of them?" she asked.

"Commandeer them."

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. James H. Ottley gave a dinner last night in the roof garden of the St. Regis for Miss Louise Scales and C. Willard Young, who will be married on Wednesday.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry James left yesterday to return to Southampton.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Thrall have returned from their wedding trip in Europe and are with Mr. Thrall's aunt, Mrs. Frank Sullivan Smith at the Plaza.

Miss Constance Hoyt, a debutante of the coming season, returned on the Ile de France after visiting in England and on the continent.

Mrs. Adelaide J. Pendergast sailed on the Berengaria to pass several weeks in France and Germany.

Memorial to Mrs. A.B. Jacobs Delights Young

BY THALIA

HAVE you heard the sweet story of the spontaneously dramatic and touching tribute accorded Sylvia Shaw Judson's "memorial to Mrs. Belle Austin Jacobs" on the occasion of its unveiling in Kosciuszko park in Milwaukee a few weeks ago?

The memorial is placed opposite the university settlement where Mrs. Jacobs worked for twenty-seven years before her death. It is a bronze seated figure of a young girl reaching out to feed a squirrel. When the coverings were removed during the dedication ceremony there was a little chorus of childish cries and a group of youngsters ran quickly up on the black granite pedestal and threw their arms around the statue.

The sculptress, her husband, Clay Judson, and their small daughter, Alice, were present for the ceremony and the juvenile demonstration of involuntary admiration. The memorial is to be the center of a group of story tellers' benches, and a flower garden to be known as the Children's garden.

Guests at the garden tea to be given for Mrs. Judson's sister, Miss Theodora Shaw, on Sept. 12 at Ragdale, Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw's Lake Forest residence, will see a small white marble replica of the Milwaukee memorial. It is being placed, I believe, in the center of the circling drive in front of the entrance to the house.

Anna Blair Holland Wed in Fourth Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. John Francis Holland of the North Shore hotel, Evanston, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Anna Blair Holland, to William Hoehle Keller of Chicago. The wedding was very small and quiet, in the chapel of the Fourth Presbyterian church at 12:30 o'clock on Saturday. Only the bride's kin, her mother, Mrs. Holland, Mrs. Henry Blair, and Miss Anita Blair, were present.

The former Miss Holland has been associated with Ross & Browne in the real estate business and has been residing at 14 East Elm street. Mr. Keller and she are to reside at that address, for a time at least, and she plans to continue her business activities. Mr. Keller is an industrial engineer. Mrs. Holland, who is first cousin to Mrs. Chauncey Keep, is going to Camden, Me., for a visit with Mrs. Keep about the middle of September, when the latter's daughters, Mrs. Robert A. Gardner and Mrs. James Hutchins, and their children will have departed.

The I. Newton Perry children did themselves proud in the events of the 10th annual gymkhana and horse show held in the Little Traverse Riding academy on Friday at Harbor Springs. Sally Perry was adjudged the best girl rider between 10 and 13 years old, and Brewster and Newton were respectively second and fourth in the class for boy riders between 11 and 16 years of age. Newton and Sally were fourth in the class for the best pair of riders. Nancy Otis, daughter of Joseph E. Otis Jr., was one of the winners in the class for girl riders between 13 and 16 years old, and Betty Offield was second in the class for young ladies over 16 years.

Chicago Women Do Well in Tennis at Charlevoix.

Summer activities at the summer resorts are winding up to the Labor day climax with numerous sports events. The annual Michigan Riviera tennis tournament was held at Charlevoix last week. Mrs. William B. McIlvaine Jr. reached the semi-finals, but was defeated by an Indianapolis girl, Miss Catherine Wolf, in 4 close fought sets, 7-5, 5-7, 6-3, 6-3.

Edward Byron Smith, the Solomon A. Smiths' son, got into the semi-finals, too, but was beaten by a former Davis Cup team star, John Hennessey, who ultimately won the championship. In the junior men's singles Ralph Ellis, son of Mrs. C. E. Pynchon, was defeated in the finals in a 3 hour match that took 55 games to decide.

The A. A. Carpenters have returned to Lake Forest after 3 weeks at the Chicago club at Charlevoix. Recent arrivals at the clubhouse include Dr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Orr, and the John Colemans. Howard Linn and W. Scott Linn arrived Friday morning to open the Linn cottage and get it ready for a Labor day house party. The Edward D. A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Must Have Typewriter.

"I am in desperate need of a typewriter. I am blind and have won a scholarship and expect to go away to college within a week. This scholarship will include only my school expenses and gives me nothing toward my living expenses. Therefore, I cannot buy a machine and I need one badly. If you could get me one through your column, I should be very grateful to you. J. W."

This letter comes to us from a blind boy in southern Illinois who, despite his handicap, is determined to continue with his education. If you can supply him with the typewriter he needs, it will mean an immense help to him.

The Belgian ambassador, Paul May, and the Argentine ambassador, Felipe Espil, were the guests of honor at the dinner given last evening by Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Atwill in their country place in the Green Spring valley for Mrs. Atwill's daughter, Miss Louise Brooks. A ball followed the dinner. Miss Brooks was presented to society in Philadelphia and in Bar Harbor last week by her maternal grandmother, Mrs. E. T. Paris Omits Sleeves from Smartest Coats

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Sleeves are the big question of the moment. Every one is asking what is going to happen to the sleeves of the fall coat. One thing already has happened to them on some of the smartest wraps being worn in Paris—they are omitted altogether, and short shoulder capes substituted for them, as illustrated by the coat sketched today.

This type of cape coat, according to the style authorities, was scheduled to just shrivel up and die out of style altogether during the summer, but something went wrong with the schedule. A good number of ultra-fashionable women are wearing this coat at the moment and it looks just as smart as the day it was first seen. Being in the fashion picture as it is thus late in this season, it is probable that it will be worn also in early fall. The coat shown is made of light beige cheviotlike woolen. It has a straight, wrap around body, and over this an elbow deep cape is placed, bordered with a band of beige fox fur. The cape is tucked to fit on top of the shoulders, and for a collar it has a cartridge plaited roll that stands away from the neck at the sides. Two short, broad tabs of the wool serve to fasten the coat at the neck.

I saw this coat at Longchamps, at the Ritz and at the Polo, worn by women of distinction. In each case the sleevelessness was not apparent, for long beige suede gloves were pulled up on the arms to meet the cape.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

After witnessing a corset fashion review, recently, there could be no doubt left in one's mind as to what our corset manufacturers are accomplishing in the way of beautiful silhouette making. If our current corset makers aren't God's gift to women in a season in which the silhouette is taking on more importance than ever, then there ain't any such gift to women.

Woman's figures have been studied, from the silhouette of slightest mold to figures of considerable weight, and such shaping and boning and molding has been accomplished that it is an unusual type of figure that can't appear better proportioned in one kind of garment or another.

I've always had a theory that for one woman, usually young and slender and very graceful, who can get by without a corset there are fifty thousand who never should be seen without one. And in the foundation garments, as they are presented today, you see an advantage even as the slender person in letting her figure conform to molding with some light foundation garment.

There's something devastatingly and grossly ugly about an uncorseted figure of a certain weight. I can't name the weight in pounds, of course, but it might be known as a "wobbly figure" weight. And each pound added to that certain weight contributes just so much more ugliness.

There are perfectly good medical reasons why women whose abdominal muscles are not in good exercise form should rely on some sort of abdominal support. But, of course, it is the looks we are more concerned with here. And my object in introducing the subject today is to suggest that women do not just go in and buy a corset off a counter or bargain pile.

The month of June has too long been hailed as the year's bridal month, and not enough attention has been given to breezy, golden September. To those of you now planning on "life's best adventure," I offer sincere good wishes.

Last week's mail brought me a charming letter from a young bride who wanted to know where and how to purchase a cook book. First of all let me say that any general book store carries quite a complete stock of cook books. But don't, if you are an amateur, select the first one which is suggested or shown to you. There are cook books and cook books, and you will want to choose the one best adapted to your own needs.

The prime requisite of the book for you is that it be one which you are able to interpret in terms of your experience and the likes or dislikes of your husband. Take time to read the given recipes while you are in the store. Then buy the book which sounds the easiest to you. We all start from the beginning, so if you are a beginner ask the clerk for that type of book.

Tomorrow's recipes are easy to make—do try them. If you run into cooking snags of any sort or variety, come to me for help. I'm glad to be of assistance.

1 can of peas
1 slice of onion
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon sugar
1 pint of cold water
2 tablespoons of flour
1 pint of milk
1 teaspoon of salt
⅛ teaspoon of pepper

Drain the peas and add the sugar, onion, and cold water. Simmer for 20 minutes. Remove from the fire and rub through a sieve. Reheat and then thicken with the butter and flour cooked together. Add the scalded milk, salt, and pepper. Serve with or without croutons.

BROWN BETTY.
2 cups of chopped apples
2 cups of soft bread crumbs
¼ cup of sugar
Juice and grated rind of 1 lemon
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons butter
¼ cup of water

Melt the butter and add the crumbs. Mix the sugar, spice, and lemon rind. Put one-fourth of the crumbs in the bottom of a buttered baking dish, then one-half of the apples on top of the crumbs. Sprinkle with one-half of the sugar mixture and add another fourth of the crumbs, the rest of the apples, and the remaining sugar mixture. Sprinkle the lemon juice and water over this. Put the rest of the crumbs over the top. Cover closely and bake in a moderate oven (325 degrees F.) for 45 minutes. Uncover and brown quickly. Serve with sweetened cream.

BY PAUL POTTER

Two thistle spraying demonstrations to be conducted with the cooperation of the state department of agriculture are scheduled for Cook county, Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 2 and 3. Plans for the public display for the control of Canadian thistle were announced yesterday by O. G. Barrett, farm adviser for the Cook County Farm bureau.

The demonstration Wednesday will be at 95th street and Wolf road in the southern portion of the county, while the one Thursday will be just east of the Des Plaines river between Ballard road and Dempster street. Each will begin at 2 p. m.

F. H. Haner of the state department of agriculture will attend and has promised the use of state power spraying equipment in which both calcium and sodium chlorate will be used. Three officials of the Cook county forest preserve are also coöperating. They are Charles G. Sauers, superintendent; James Brown, assistant superintendent; and George Olcese, divisional superintendent. In addition to the truck equipment.

CINCINNATI'S RALLY IN EIGHTH UPSETS CUBS, 4 TO 3

MALONE YIELDS TWO HITS UNTIL 4 RUN BLOWUP

Double by Heathcote Jolts Old Mates.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Cliff Heathcote is one of those fellows who refuses to mix sentiment with business. The Cubs paid his salary for years, but he had a chance yesterday to bite the hand that once fed him. Summoned in a pinch, he bit off a two base hit, thereby precipitating a four run rally that let the meek Cincinnati Reds triumph by 4 to 3 in a struggle which for seven innings looked like a romp for Pat Malone. It was the Rhinelanders' third win in seventeen starts against the Cubs this season.

CLIFF HEATHCOTE.

The manner in which Malone conducted his affairs prior to the blowoff led 18,000 spectators to believe he was headed for his 13th victory of the season. In seven innings he permitted only two singles. Meanwhile his mates had presented him with a one run advantage off the skilled Red Lucas. But Malone, probably annoyed considerably when Capt. Grimm made a bad throw on a long shot play, fell apart in the eighth. That hit of Heathcote's, as well as a couple of others, followed. There also followed a brilliant Cub bid to tie it up in the home half, but with the tying run on third Hack Wilson grounded into a double play.

Herman Earns Praise.

Despite the reverse, there was some consolation furnished by the deeds of Billy Herman, the new second sacker who refused to stay dizzy as the result of being hit on the head in his début the day previous. As a fielder, the $50,000 recruit did about everything asked of him. As a batter he walked twice, singled once to start the Cubs' first run and fouled out in the ninth after a single by Grimm had opened the inning. He also showed that there is nothing slow about his running ability.

Before the Cubs reached the point of destroying the continuity of goose eggs on the score board, they had found Lucas a very elusive worker. He confined them to two hits and one pass in the first three innings. One of the hits was a scratch by English with one out in the first. He was doubled up on Cuyler's tap to the pitcher. The other hit rattled off Grimm's bat with two gone in the second.

Cubs Score in Fifth.

Preceding the process of picking up a lone run in the Cub fifth, Grimm hoisted a fly to Douthit. Herman worked himself to the limit of 3 and 2. The next pitch he spanked in a rakish manner over Cuccinello for a single. A head on wind, which incidentally was slightly chilly, wasn't sufficient to prevent Hartnett from landing on one hard enough to send it to the fence in right center for a double. Herman tore around to the plate on the hit. Gabby went to third on the throw in, but Malone popped to Beck and the latter kept another run from scoring when he made a one handed reach for Adair's hard grounder.

What Mr. Malone did to the Reds before they finally crashed through in the eighth deserves honorable mention even though it didn't mean anything in the long run. Douthit opened the battle with a single to center and went as far as third on two outs. Crabtree led off with a hit in the fourth and immediately died steal-

Cards Defeat Pirates Twice; P. Waner Hurt

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Behind fine pitching of Paul Derringer and Bill Hallahan, the Cardinals took both ends of a double header from the Pirates here today, 5 to 0, and 4 to 1.

Derringer, in blanking the Pirates in the opener, ran his string of consecutive scoreless innings to twenty-one. Hallahan fanned thirteen batters in the second game.

The double victory increased the Cardinals lead to eleven games.

SOX BEAT TIGERS IN WILD 12 INNING BATTLE, 10 TO 8

Hose Commit 8 Errors; Pitchers Walk 13.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 30. — Four White Sox pitchers walked thirteen and hit one batsman, and five White Sox fielders committed eight errors in this afternoon's final with the Detroit Tigers, yet the Chicagoans were able to eke out a 10 to 8 victory in twelve innings.

JOHNNY WATWOOD.

The victory, which placed the Sox in a cellar tie with the Tigers, only one percentage point out of sixth place and 2½ games out of fifth place, is to be credited to some nice, though tardy, pitching by Ted Lyons and some nicer and later pitching by Vic Frasier, who registered his eleventh win of the season.

Watwood, Appling Lead at Bat.

There was some swell hitting also, as witness the fact that the Chicagoans made 16 smacks, including two doubles and a single each by Watwood and Appling, the latter's being most important, for it produced the winning run after two were out in the twelfth.

Still more important were two singles each by Jeffries and Grube, who weren't in the game at the start. Jeff and Frank furnished the heavy work in tying the score in the eighth and it was Jeffries' single that drove in Appling with the winning run. Grube sent in Jeff with the extra marker with his single.

In the light of these events, it scarcely would be pleasant to mention that three of the Sox's errors were committed by Jeffries and another was the fault of Grube.

Tigers Threaten in 12th.

The turmoil didn't end after the Sox made the score 10 to 8 in the final session. A walk, a single by Rogell and an error by Reynolds had Tigers on third and second with two out. Then Frasier ended the game by striking out Richardson, who previously had made a triple and two singles.

It was the 50th victory of the season for the Sox and they now have 12 games to win out of their remaining 28 to be as good as they were last year, when they finished in seventh place. The win today brought their season standing with the Tigers to the same ratio as the score today, 10 to 8.

The Sox will be home tomorrow to launch a three game series with the fourth place Cleveland Indians.

Sox Score One in Second.

The White Sox in the second inning scored the first run of the afternoon's contest, despite the devastating effects of a strikeout and a double play. After Fonseca had fanned Watwood doubled to left and scored when Appling knocked Uhle's first pitch for a single to center. Kerr then hit into the double play.

The Sox went into the double play business themselves in the latter half of the inning. Alexander was hit in the head with a pitched ball; then G. Walker hit into a double play, Sullivan to Kerr to Blue. Rogell walked, but Thomas threw out Richardson.

The Sox added a pair of runs in the third. The inning started auspiciously because Tate singled and went to second on Thomas' single. The enterprise sagged while Blue and Sullivan flied out, but Reynolds tripled to right center, scoring Benny and Tommy. It looked as if Carl would get home, too, when Fonseca drove one toward right. But Alexander made

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

The Cubs-Sox situation is getting no better fast. And it seems that the conductor of this column has had something to do with it. Dear me, we always are stepping on the bunions of the aristocracy or getting mixed up in petty altercations with the peasantry.

Read this from Bob Burns, who lives at 4404 North Mozart street, in answer to a letter from M. C., who said Luke Appling would "show up" Woody English as an infielder in Chicago's 100 per cent charity game Sept. 9:

"I was feeling great Wednesday morning, the sun was shining nicely and I was on my way to work. The world was a wonderful place to be in when—bang! My contentment and peace had vanished completely. The reason? Your column on the sport page of my favorite paper. How in the name of all that is holy did you ever print such a letter? The contributor who signs himself M. C. certainly must have meant, 'Merely Chump.'

"I have seen perhaps a thousand ball games since 1906 and I don't believe I have ever ducked an argument on the merits of ball players. I surely hate to dignify M. C.'s statement, but for fear some of your poor, unenlightened readers might believe him, shucks, it's a shame to waste time, but here goes!

"Appling will never see the day he will equal English in any department for this simple reason—his temperament. He is a highly strung, inexperienced lad who could not even land a regular job on a class A club. Any man in the National league will tell you that English is one of the best infielders in the league. Just let M. C. look in the record book. As for Jolley making us forget all about Hack—well, Hack's record is made. MOST RUNS—MOST HOMERS IN 1930—ALL TIME NATIONAL LEAGUE RECORD! Big Smead has yet to show us a thing his ten years on the coast promised.

"If any club owner in the American league thought Jolley was a big leaguer, he would have been up in his prime eight years ago. I am surprised the Sox passed Buzz Arlett, but then on the other hand, they only buy one class A man every five years. They would rather bring up men from the class C outfits and make us suffer while they develop, if they ever do. Here's a list of recruits from which poor Sox managers have to pick:

Watwood—Three years away.
Caswell—An erratic boy, if there ever was one, but a great fighter.
Sullivan—Two years in the association, then watch him!
Walsh Jr.—A true lesson on what rushing a kid too fast will do.
McKain—Three years away.
Moore—Class A in two years.
Caraway—One year in the Association.
Weiland—Nix! Just a thrower.
Kerr—A real man, and a player who could go anywhere and make good—a Coast league boy.
Grube—Class A ordinary.
Fothergill—Same as Jolley.
Blue—His best years behind him.
Fonseca—A swindle trade—pins and wing gone, and I guess that's enough to convey what I mean.

"The main trouble with the Sox, and Ed Burns, Harvey Woodruff, Irving Vaughan and your whole staff will vouch for this, is the fact that they reach too low for players. They depend on class B and C men to come up and burn the league up just because they picked a couple of raw ones once who did. The men they have let go would really make a ball club today. Look at:

Bill Kamm and Bib Falk—Chicago's gift to Cleveland.
Art Shires—A few bucks lost, eh?
Hunnefield—McGraw likes him.
Sheely—O, could we use him.

"There are several more, but I think you understand. I am not going to be a wild-eyed Cub partisan and claim a victory for them before the game with the Sox as anything can happen in baseball. Witness the defeat of the Yanks the other day and Mack's outfit did get beat by Bush's men—so we will let that be decided by the scoreboard Sept. 9.

"But don't insult the intelligence of the baseball fans by printing such dribble as M. C.'s ravings. I don't care whether either team wins as they are both Chicago teams, that is during the season but in the fall I am out there yelling: 'Come on, you Cubs!'"

"I have seen Appling play many times in the Southern association and I believe he has what it takes to make good in the majors. As soon as he overcomes nervousness in fielding grounders he will make the best all-around player in Chicago, Kiki Cuyler excepted. Watch his smoke with a first division Sox outfit next year."

And this from Slick of Streator, Ill.:

"Just a line concerning that bone head who said Appling is going to show up English in the charity game Sept. 9. I have seen both play and believe me if Luke compares with Woody, you gotta show me.

"Another thing, these birds give me a laugh when they razz Hornsby because he didn't grab off a pennant for them. He has done well to keep in the first division. He has four players, Cuyler, English, Grimm and Hartnett. The rest of the team isn't any better than Cincinnati. Give him some players like Ott, Vergez, Walker and Critz and he'll give you a pennant."

CARDINAL PRO ELEVEN TO USE WRIGLEY FIELD

Wrigley field this fall will be the home of the Chicago Cardinals, professional football team. Dr. David J. Jones, Cardinal owner, yesterday completed arrangements for his eleven to share the north side gridiron with the Chicago Bears.

The Cardinals, who have been a south side organization throughout their affiliation with the National Professional Football league, have five home games scheduled, two of which are with the Bears. The other three contests will be played while the Bears are on the road.

Dr. Jones' club will start practice tomorrow at Mills stadium for its first conflict, an exhibition game with the Pullman Panthers at Normal park on Sept. 20.

FANS WILL MISS UNCLE WILBERT WHEN HE'S GONE

Contract with Brooklyn Winds Up This Year.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 30.—This is the last year of Uncle Wilbert Robinson's current contract to manage the Brooklyn daffiness boys and if he should happen to lose his job in spite of the most insistent newspaper claque that ever befriended a man beset by small troubles, he will have to admit that press and public gave him a long hearing and square deal.

WILBERT ROBINSON.

Uncle Wilbert has been enjoying for some years an old man's quarrel with old Steve McKeever, a Brooklyn politician, who represents a one-fourth interest in the ownership of the club. This has been a very funny quarrel, as both old parties are fat and more or less bald, and naturally more disposed toward tolerance than hatred. They are of the type which you might describe as the nice old guy type.

Just a Beautiful Hatred.

But here they have developed one of the most beautiful hatreds back and forth that has ever been seen in the sport industry, a hatred more amusing than the one that existed between Ban Johnson and Charlie Comiskey because both old boys are still healthy.

Now that Uncle Wilbert has had a very punk year with the daffiness boys, old Steve will be sure to rage around the directors' meetings next winter yelling for the rest of them to help him throw that doddering old hypocrite and so forth out of there. Uncle Wilbert will call Steve a few old whatnots on his part and the pot will be calling the kettle old, each with rising scorn for the other's antiquity, until the directors reach their decision, which is certain to be a great blow and rebuke to one or the other.

It is a favorite fallacy that old people grow mellow and forgiving, but if you ever get a chance to interview the director of an old people's home you will learn that they can take more offense for less cause than people in the flower of their youth, and exploit the smallest provocations into implacable hatreds.

Newspaper Aids McKeever.

Involved in this row on McKeever's side is one of the great old New York newspapers whose sports editor seems to have injured Uncle Wilbert's feelings a few years ago. Uncle Wilbert then did as he shouldn't have done, telephoning the sports editor's boss in an attempt to have him fired for something which he had kept in his memory book for a long time. The boss told Uncle Wilbert he was running that newspaper and also told him what he thought about people who blab to square a grievance.

Ever since then Uncle Wilbert's name has been barred from this newspaper and when the baseball reporter with the Brooklyn daffiness boys feels compelled to refer to Uncle Wilbert he calls him simply the manager of the Brooklyn baseball club, which is a small way of doing, but consistent with the general character of the whole row. The sports editor is fairly full of years himself and, while it is easy enough to dislike him on hearsay, I have discovered on acquaintance that he is as easy to like as old Uncle Wilbert and old Steve.

When Uncle Wilbert's name was barred out of one paper, the baseball writers and sport columnists with the other papers, liking Uncle Wilbert, began to give him a little extra mention, generally in praise, and if not in

Armour Heads Largest Field in Pro Tourney

Providence, R. I., Aug. 30.—(AP)—One hundred and four professionals, comprising the largest field in the history of the Professional Golf association, are eligible to battle for the national professional golf championship at the Wannamoisett Country club here next month. The draw and starting times for the 36 hole qualifying round were announced tonight.

Tommy Armour of Detroit, defending title holder and also the British open champion, heads the list. All except Armour had to earn their places in the field through sectional qualifying rounds.

Hagen Back in Fold.

Walter Hagen, five times Professional Golf association champion, who failed to qualify for the 1930 tournament, is back in the fold. Billy Burke of Greenwich, Conn., national open champion; Leo Diegel and Gene Sarazen, two more former P. G. A. title holders; Johnny Farrell, Willie MacFarlane and Cyril Walker, all former national open champions, are among the other "big shots" on the starting list.

As a result of increasing the field from 64 to 104 this season, the 36 hole qualifying round on Sept. 14 must start at 8:15 a. m. in order to make provision for a possible playoff before dark. Players will tee off in threesomes at five minute intervals.

Burke, Espinosa Grouped.

Armour will tee off in company with Wiffy Cox of Brooklyn and Johnny Golden of Weeburn, Conn. Burke is teamed with Al Espinosa of Chicago and Arthur Gusa of Point Judith, Rhode Island open champion. Hagen will leave the first tee with MacFarlane and Tom Jones, the latter of the Rhode Island Country club.

FANS RIOT WHEN UMPIRE FORFEITS SEATTLE GAME

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Police reserves and firemen today were called to a baseball park here when several thousand fans rioted after a Los Angeles-Seattle Coast league game was forfeited to the home club.

Umpire Perle Casey awarded the game to Seattle on the ground Los Angeles players were holding up play in the second of two games so that four and half innings would not be played before an agreed time limit expired.

The fans then rushed from the stands and surrounded the Los Angeles players. Fred Haney, third baseman, was struck on the head. When the riot continued the visiting club was secretly hurried from a back entrance of the park. Extra police on duty had difficulty in controlling the crowd, but the fans had quieted when reserves arrived.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The 35th annual conflict for the amateur golf championship of the United States will begin this morning at the Beverly Country club, 87th street and Western avenue, with a field of 142 competing for the title Bobby Jones vacated by his retirement from competitive golf.

BOBBY JONES.

Today will see the first 18 holes of the qualifying round decided. Another 18 will be played tomorrow, with the 32 low medal scorers for the 36 holes entering the match play rounds, which begins Wednesday. One 18 hole round will be played Wednesday morning, and another in the afternoon. The quarter finals Thursday will be at 36 holes, as will the semi-finals Friday and the title match Saturday.

Bobby Will Be in Gallery.

The original field of 153 was depleted by eleven withdrawals, including Dexter Cummings, Onwentsia; John and Alaric De Forest, the English brothers; Jesse Guilford, Auburndale, national champion in 1921; J. Wood Platt, Chestnut Hill, Pa.; James Bush, Dayton, O.; F. D. Ross, Hartford, Conn.; Emory Stratton and Clark Hodder, West Newton, Mass.; Lewis Bredin, Detroit, Mich.; and Lee Chase, Buffalo, N. Y.

Jones, the champion of them all, will be present, but only as a galleryite, and there's many a golfer in the field at Beverly who is resting easy with the knowledge that Bobby will not swing a club. Thus this tournament shapes up as one of the best in years from a competitive standpoint, for hitherto it has been a fight only to finish second to Jones.

Dolp Shoots Par.

It is Chicago's first national amateur since 1923 when Max Marston defeated Jesse Sweetzer at Flossmoor. The Beverly course is fit and ready for the week's play.

A steady stream of contestants paraded over the course in trial rounds yesterday, but it remained for young Frank Dolp, Portland, Ore., star, to furnish the best card of all the practice efforts to date, a par 71. His card:

Par—Out	453	443	344—36
Par—In	353	444	435—35—71
Dolp—Out	453	344	544—36
Dolp—In	253	344	535 53—71

Dolp took a birdie on the 10th with a 25 foot putt, and dropped one from eight feet out on the 12th for another under par effort. Among other practice scores turned in yesterday were the following:

Roland Mackenzie, Hollywood, Cal., 73.
Dr. O. F. Willing, Portland, Ore., 74.
Gus Moreland, Dallas, Tex., 74.
Jack Westland, Sunset Ridge, Chicago district champion, 75.
Jack Mackie Jr., Inwood, N. Y., 75.
George Voigt, Mamaroneck, N. Y., 75.
Bob Kepler, Dayton, O., national intercollegiate runner-up, 78.
T. Philip Perkins, Fox Hills, N. Y., 78.
Douglas Casey, Riverside, 79.
Waite Gunn, Atlanta, Ga., 80.
Charley Seaver, Los Angeles, Cal., 80.
Jack Ahern, Buffalo, N. Y., 80.

There is no standout favorite for the championship, but both Voight and Perkins appear to have attracted equally strong support. Then there

Von Elm Picks Perkins to Win Amateur Title

New York, Aug. 30.—[Special.]—Speaking over a country-wide radio network tonight, George von Elm, business man golfer, predicted T. Philip Perkins will win the United States amateur champion tournament, which gets under way at the Beverly Country club, Chicago, tomorrow. Von Elm's other choices to finish, in the order named, were C. Ross Somerville, William Lawson Little Jr., and Francis Ouimet.

New York Wins 1st, 8-2; Loses Second, 3-0.

New York, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Phil Collins' one hit pitching gave the Phillies an even break with the Giants today. The Giants won the first game, 8 to 2, and the Phils the second, 3 to 0. Shanty Hogan's single in the second inning robbed Collins of a no hit game.

All the Philly runs scored off Bill Walker in the second game were unearned. Jackson's error with two out in the third allowed them to score a pair of runs, while Terry's error let in the third run in the seventh.

The two leading National league batters made but one hit, Klein going hitless in four times up, striking out three times, while Davis made one hit in three trips to the plate. Scores:

BRAVES AND ROBINS SPLIT.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 30.—(AP)—The Braves and Robins divided a double header here today. Boston beat Dazzy Vance, 3 to 2, in the first game, but Brooklyn rallied to win the second for Hollis Thurston, 4 to 2.

A flurry of Robin errors in the sixth ruined an effort in which Dazzy fanned nine hitters. His rival, Ed Brandt, pitched shutout ball until the ninth, when O'Doul's single and Herman's home run gave Brooklyn its two runs. Score:

GEHRIG ADVANCES TO THIRD PLACE IN HITTING RACE

Lou Gehrig, Yankee first baseman, crowded into third place in the American league batting race yesterday when he collected four hits in six attempts against the Boston Red Sox, including his 37th home run of the year. His teammate, Babe Ruth, tightened his hold on second place by hitting two out of four, leaving him six points behind Al Simmons.

Virgil Davis, Phil catcher, made only one hit in seven attempts against the Giants and, as a result, retained the National league lead by a bare two points over Bill Terry. Leaders:

Washington, D. C., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Washington defeated Philadelphia today, 5 to 1, in the series opener, but the champions' lead remains 15½ games over the Senators.

Connie Mack put in a secondary battery, Rommel and Heving, and the Senators made the best of the opportunity. Pitching another victory over the Athletics, the veteran Al Crowder was in trouble only in the fifth, when Dykes scored the lone run for the losers. YANKS BEAT RED SOX.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 30.—(AP)—The Yankees, led by Ben Chapman and Lou Gehrig, collected 21 hits off four Red Sox pitchers today to win, 14 to 4, before 22,000 fans.

Chapman made four hits, two of them homers, and drove in five runs. Gehrig got as many hits, including his 37th home run.

Babe Ruth turned his ankle in the eighth and retired in favor of Sammy Byrd. The injury, however, will not keep the slugger out of the lineup. Score:

HELEN FINALLY LOSES A SET, BUT IT'S A NEXHIBITION

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody was on the winning side in three of four exhibition sets in which she participated today on the courts of the Detroit Tennis club.

Playing against Horace Bruce Barton, Detroit star, in singles, she lost the first set, 4-6, but won the second, 6-1. Teaming in doubles with Cranston Holman, another Californian, against Barton and George Reindel, Michigan closed champion, the westerners won easily, 6-0, 6-2. Holman defeated Reindel, 6-0, 6-4, in another contest.

Indians Top Week's Play with 5 Wins, No Defeats

New York, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Although it is too late for them to do anything about the pennant race proper, the clouting Cleveland Indians have hit another winning streak that has carried them above the .500 mark and put them into position to make a belated try for third place in the American League race.

Roger Peckingpaugh's athletes were the only ones to maintain a perfect average during the last week, their five straight victories giving them a record of 12 triumphs in their last 15 starts. Their closest rivals for the week were the St. Louis Cardinals, who strengthened their hold on the top of the National League by winning six out of seven games.

Averill, Morgan Set Pace.

Led by their two star sluggers, Earl Averill, and Eddie Morgan, the Indians pounded out 62 hits during the week, good for 44 runs, while their pitching staff yielded only 15 runs in five games. Wes Ferrell and Mel Harder turned in brilliant performances, each holding the St. Louis Browns to four hits and one run on successive days.

Despite the fact that their ace of aces, Lefty Grove, was defeated in his first start of the week, thereby failing to break the American league record for consecutive victories and was knocked from the box by the Yankees in his second, the Philadelphia Athletics managed to compile the week's second best American league mark for the week with five wins and two losses.

Braves Have Bad Week.

Bill McKechnie's Boston Braves suffered their most disastrous week of the year when they lost five straight to the Cardinals, two of them in extra innings. As a result they held fifth place in the National league by a scant game margin over the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Braves made only seven runs in five contests, and committed 11 errors.

The St. Louis Browns had an unhappy week, winning only two of their eight starts. Bill Killifer's crew displayed a woeful lack of punch, making only 16 runs, or an average of two a game.

Scoring 14 runs in one game and 11 in another, the Chicago Cubs proved themselves the heaviest scorers of the week, they crossed the plate 51 times in nine games, while the Yankees posted 48 runs in seven contests. The Cubs also collected 85 hits to 81 for the Cardinals and 80 for the Yankees.

Macks Lead in Field.

The Athletics turned in the week's niftiest fielding record when they committed only two errors in seven engagements. The Detroit Tigers went to the other extreme with 14 errors in six games. The Chicago White Sox were guilty of 13.

Brooklyn's pitching staff held opponents to fewer runs than any in either league, allowing only 13 in four games, but the Cardinals mound corps hung up an even better average, opponents scoring only 19 times in seven games. The Athletics' staff had a similar record.

The Chicago Cubs distanced all rivals in the matter of home runs for the period, collecting 11 four baggers, while their nearest rivals, the New York Giants, banged nine. Following are the records of major league teams for the week ending Aug. 29, giving games won and lost, runs, hits, errors, opponents' runs and home runs:

They'll Miss Uncle Wilbert If He's Fired

praise, then anyway in extenuation of his mistakes. They were fond of the old boy with his faceful of sucking tobacco and his disposition to live by the way as he traveled through life.

Revives Old Derelicts.

Throughout his career with the Daffiness boy, which began in 1914, which would be nearly 18 years ago, Uncle Wilbert has been a hit-or-miss manager, but he has always had an odd way of coming up to the league in the spring with two or three bobbling derelicts, picked up in the deep bushes, or at the winter rummage sales, who would suddenly begin to play marvelous baseball for him.

Dazzy Vance is now about through, but for a few years recently he was once of the greatest pitchers in the game and a good boxoffice character, too. Uncle Wilbert salvaged Dazzy from New Orleans in 1921 after he had been sold, traded and released up and down the scale 19 times.

In the course of these wanderings Dazzy had been looked over by the New York Yankees six times and the Pirates once, but Uncle Wilbert was the first major league manager who recognized him as a pitcher. Possibly he helped him unlearn his faults and improve his virtues, because Uncle Wilbert had been a good coach of pitchers for the Giants in years gone by, and I have read that he was the one who enabled Rube Marquard to make good.

Rediscovers Quinn, Luque.

Last year he wheedled a fine season out of Adolfo Luque, the Cuban who was at his best in the mock world series way back in 1919 and had been let go by the Cincinnati Reds. This year he gave jobs to Joe Shaute, who had checked out of Cleveland, and Fred Heimach and old Jack Quinn, age about 50, who had been pitching ball since McKinley was President and people were saying the moving pictures were just a passing fad. Many a time a club has paid $50,000 for a pitcher who couldn't do as well.

But Uncle Wilbert is not really a quick manager, and on his ability and his record alone, without his personal character to warm the cold facts, he might have been unjobbed a long time ago with only a casual so long from the press and customers.

In Brooklyn, however, he has endeared himself to the baseball community, and endeared is a very loving word. He argues with hack drivers and ordinary muggs hanging around the gate who want to know why he did not pitch some one else, and if they abuse him sometimes it is what you might call affectionate abuse, because he is one of them.

Come falltime he likes to go away and hunt and sit around and tell lies, and he is no prohibitionist in any respect. And if his ball teams have not been uniformly the best during his spell in Brooklyn they have certainly been the funniest of all time in the major leagues.

Old Man McKeever may get rid of him at last this year and get a better manager, for less money, but a serious, hustling manager would make the Daffiness boys play straight face baseball, and then where would the Brooklyn people go for their laughs?

Wheelbarrow Pushers Roll Merrily Along

New London, Wis., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Three aspirants to the championship of the "world's greatest wheelbarrow race," being staged on highway 26 from Waupun to Eagle river, were forced out of the running today while Marcus Dammeier of Tigerton set a pace that netted him first place.

As Dammeier trundled his barrow into New London tonight official checkers credited him with coming the distance from Waupun in 13 hours and one minute. Edwin Wahlers, Birnamwood, was six minutes behind in second place, outstripping by 18 minutes the previous leader, Herbert Anklam, Rosendale. The 50-year-old Picketts, Wis., cattle dealer, Erwin Kloehn, was still in last place, having pushed his barrow for 17 hours and 17 minutes.

Earl Petts, an Eagle River trapper and woodsman, was the first to quit. He complained of sore hips.

Tomorrow's lap of the journey, scheduled to end in Eagle River on Sept. 6, will take the barrow pushers to Marion. From Marion to Eagle River the highway is graveled.

Sox Battle 12 Innings; Whip Tigers, 10-8

Thomas usually blows up when given the responsibility of maintaining a neat lead and this afternoon's third inning afforded no exception. Grabowski opened the riot with a Texas league single which Appling should have caught. Then Uhle fanned. Johnson doupled to left to drive in Grabowski. Thomas walked Gehringer, Stone and Alexander on 13 pitches, the pass to Alexander forcing Johnson home.

Weiland relieved Thomas and it appeared that the panic had ended when G. Walker sent a made to order double play ball to Appling. Luke threw to Kerr to get Alexander and Kerr got the ball to Blue in time to have G. Walker called out. But the decision was reversed, of course, when the ball got away from Blue. Gehringer had run home during the successful part of the maneuver and Stone scored also while Blue was chasing the ball.

G. Walker stole second and also stole third as Rogell drew a pass. Richardson also walked, again filling the bases, but Grabowski, up the second time in the inning, obliged by striking out. The score at this point was Tigers, 4; Sox, 3.

Double Steal Gives Sox Lead.

The Sox resumed the lead in the first of the fourth, 5 to 4. Watwood singled, went to third on Appling's double and scored while Gehringer was throwing out Kerr, Appling taking third. Weiland was hit by a pitched ball. Appling and Weiland staged a double steal, Appling scoring and Weiland went to third when Grabowski threw the ball into center field. Blue then filed to Johnson.

The Tigers tied the score in the last of the fourth on Uhle's double, a sacrifice and an infield out.

In the first of the fifth the Sox took a 7 to 5 lead. Two runs were accomplished on a single by Sullivan, a single by Fonseca, a double by Watwood, a walk to Appling, which filled the bases, and the fact that Jolley was hit by a pitched ball. A double play which nipped Watwood at the plate on Fothergill's fly to Stone halted the activity.

Three More for Tigers.

In the last of the fifth the Tigers scored three runs to take the lead again. Richardson tripled with one out and scored on Grabowski's single to center. Uhle walked and Johnson got credit for a single, filling the bases, when nobody covered first while Blue was capturing his grounder. Grube tried to catch Grabowski napping off third and threw the ball away, Grabowski scoring and the other runners moving up.

H. Walker, running for Uhle, then scored on Gehringer's fly to Reynolds. Weiland issued his sixth pass to Stone and Lyons went in to pitch. The bases were full when Appling fumbled Alexander's grounder, but G. Walker fouled to Sullivan.

The 8 to 7 Tiger advantage prevailed till the eighth, when the Sox tied the score. After Appling had fanned Jeffries singled to left and went to third on Grube's single to center. Norman batted for Lyons and his fly to Johnson scored Jeffries with the tying run. Grube was out trying to steal second.

Blue Gets as Far as Third.

The Sox had a man on third with one out in the ninth but couldn't produce. Blue was safe on Rogell's error, went to second on Sullivan's sacrifice, and to third on a wild pitch. Reynolds fanned, but Fonseca was given an intentional pass and stole second. Gehringer threw out Watwood.

Frasier went in to pitch for the Sox in the ninth. The Tigers had a man on second with two out as a result of two errors by Jeffries and in the tenth they had men on third and first with two out as a result of two singles.

In the eleventh Sullivan doubled with two out, but Reynolds filed to G. Walker. The Tiger eleventh opened with Jeffries' third error, but Frasier refused to let a runner get to second.

CAMPOLO, SCHAAF FIGHT TONIGHT IS BEST OF WEEK

Retzlaff Meets Seykra in New York.

New York, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Outstanding on this week's national boxing program is the heavyweight clash at Ebbet's field, Brooklyn, tomorrow between Ernie Schaaf of Boston and Victorio Campolo from Argentina. The bout, originally scheduled for last Wednesday, was postponed because of threatening weather.

The meeting will give the Argentine, who has frequently disappointed, a final chance to redeem himself. For Schaaf a victory may be a stepping stone toward real heavyweight contendership. The distance is twelve rounds.

Wolgast Defends Title.

Another postponed heavyweight battle takes secondary interest. Charley Retzlaff of Duluth is to face Joe Sekyra of Dayton, O., in a ten round bout at the Queensboro stadium, New York, Tuesday night, a week after the bout was originally scheduled. Retzlaff, who won his first two New York battles by knockouts, faces the hardest opposition he has met in the east.

Jack Boxes Thrice.

Jack Dempsey's program of exhibition bouts continues with three appearances on the west coast—tomorrow at Spokane, Wash., Wednesday, at Aberdeen, Wash., and Friday at Eugene, Ore. He is to go four rounds each time. His only opponent named to date is Jimmie Byrnes of Coos Bay, Ore., who is to face the ex-champ Friday. Bouts for the week include:

Monday—at New York: Victorio Campolo vs. Ernie Schaaf, 12; Steve Hamas vs. Mike Tesanic; Ernest Guhring vs. Pat Redmond, both 8. At Louisville: Pete Lacrosse vs. Billy Roederer, 10. At St. Louis: Clyde Chastain vs. Al Stillman, 10; Johnny [Peewee] Kaiser vs. Johnny Nichols, 10. At Spokane: Dempsey exhibition, Eatin Hunter vs. Del King, 6.

RESUME PLAY IN U. S. DOUBLES NET TOURNEY TODAY

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 30.—(AP)—After the three minor national doubles events are decided tomorrow afternoon, Johnny Doeg and George Lott, defending champions, will enter the Longwood grand stand court to finish their deadlocked quarter finals match, interrupted by rain last Thursday, with the United States Davis cup stars, Sidney Wood and Frank X. Shields of New York.

The winners will be given 24 hours rest before meeting Gregory Mangin, Newark, N. J., and Berkeley Bell, New York. The other semi-final also has been scheduled for Tuesday with Wilmer Allison, Austin, Tex., and Johnny Van Ryn, Philadelphia, opposing Clifford Sutter, New Orleans, and Bruce Barnes, Austin, Tex.

Before Lott joins Doeg, it is likely that he and Betty Nuthall of England will appear in the national mixed doubles final against the survivors of the semi-final involving Mrs. L. A. Harper, Oakland, Cal., and Allison with the British American team of Mrs. Elsie Goldsack, Pittman and Keith Gledhill of Santa Barbara, Cal.

Miss Nuthall and Lott won this title in 1929 and last year it went to Allison and Edith Cross of San Francisco, who has played but little tennis this season.

KAYE DON'S BOAT MAKES 90 M. P. H. IN TRIAL DASH

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Gar Wood realizes now what sort of task confronts him in defense of the Harmsworth trophy on the Detroit river Saturday afternoon.

Wood held a watch on Miss England II., the challenger, as Kaye Don put it through a trial run this morning and clocked the British boat at a speed of better than 80 miles an hour. The record for one lap of the Harmsworth course is 79.082 miles an hour, set last year by Miss America IX.

Wood refused to make any comment, but later in the day took Miss America IX. out for its first run since it was equipped with superchargers. He was well pleased with the performance of the craft.

"Our motors performed better than they ever have in the past," Wood said, "we have to make a few adjustments to obtain a more perfect balance, but that is natural with a rebuilt boat. We didn't make any attempt to step up the speed."

And he winked when he added: "That will come later."

Amateurs End Drills Today for Tourney

Twenty-four boxers, survivors of an original entry of 165, will wind up light training today for their final tests tomorrow night in the Coliseum, north hall, where 16 bouts will be held to determine the eight champions of the Central A. A. U. district.

Eight boys already have qualified for the finals, while the other 16 will clash in the semi-final round. Finalists have been determined in the heavyweight, flyweight, light heavyweight, and middleweight classes.

One of the best matches of the evening is expected to be between Duffy Dvonch of the Navy and Rudy Sterbenz, a heavyweight from Brown's gym. Dvonch, a slow starter, won his last two bouts in an overtime round, his two victims being Adam Smith and Gene Klopack.

Nick Scialaba, international Golden Gloves bantamweight champion, must get by two more opponents to win the title. He meets Vic Petraca, a busy little bantam, in the semi-finals.

Jimmy Eliopoulos, wearing the colors of the Greek-American A. C., will be out to add the outdoor Central A. A. U. title to his indoor flyweight championship. Jimmy clashes with Billy Petraca in the finals.

There is little to choose between the four lightweights. Tony Stone of Meniffs' gym is paired against Laddie Tonelli of Streator, while Ernest Kratochvil, Racine, meets Joe Luppino, Biggerstaff A. C.

Two European Boxing Titles Change Hands

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—(AP)—Two European boxing championships changed hands today in a big Sunday boxing program. Another champion retained his title.

The climax of the show came when Hein Mueller, German heavyweight, outpointed the Belgian veteran, Pierre Charles, to capture the heavyweight title. Poldi Steinbach of Vienna, who only recently won the light heavyweight championship of Europe by beating the Italian, Bosision, lost his crown to Hein Domgoergen of Cologne on another decision.

Gustave Roth, Belgian welterweight, retained his title, outpointing Gustav Eder.

PURPLE MARTINS GO SOUTH, BUT FEW LINGER ON

BY BOB BECKER.

Although the majority of the purple martins which make Chicagoland their summer home have started on their long journey to South America, not all of these popular birds are on their way. A few days ago when we were checking up on the bird life south and west of Lake Forest, Ill., we saw a few disconsolate individuals in a flock of swallows. They looked as if they had missed a train and were wondering how to make the next one.

During our jaunt through the country we found a large flock of swallows on some telephone wires near a large estate. The birds were active and noisy, constantly leaving their perches on the wire to sail around for a few minutes and then returning to the accompaniment of a lot of chirping from the "sitters."

Martins Are Silent.

While counting the swallows we looked along the wires and there was one lonesome looking pair of martins. They sat all hunched up on the wire, heads down into their feathers. These birds were not taking part in the flying stunts, nor did they raise their voices, although the swallows, their first cousins, were having a great time.

If the main bodies of martins have left earlier than usual this year it is more likely that the food problem has been responsible for the early departure rather than some unknown power to "feel" the approach of an early autumn. This has been a dry year with few rains.

Rain Produces Insects.

During the summer season a spell of warm weather followed by a shower, and then more warm weather produces dandy crops of insects, many species of which hatch out due to the combination of rainfall and heat. Moreover, abundant insect life for members of the swallow family always is found around a patch of water.

With so little water on the landscape this year and so few showers we are pretty sure that the martins and other swallows will want to check out for new hunting grounds earlier than in former years. Birds which have nested away from streams will probably want to start their migration by going to rivers and then follow them southward. Along this waterway they will have a better chance to find insect life.

That birds cannot tell what the weather is going to be is definitely proven by the death of thousands caught in storms every spring and fall. If the migrants had the power to sense the approach of bad weather they wouldn't get caught in these storms.

SUN BEAU'S OFF AGAIN; HE TAKES FAST TRAIN EAST

"Thanks for Week-End Party," Says Champ.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Sun Beau, the busiest horse the American turf has ever known, was up bright and early at Lincoln Fields yesterday morning after winning the $25,000 added Lincoln handicap on Saturday.

He had to listen to the chimes of the alarm clock at dawn, partake of a hurried breakfast, and then board a train at 7 o'clock which carried him back half way across the continent to Saratoga Springs, N. Y., where he meets Twenty Grand in the Saratoga Cup next Saturday afternoon.

The world's greatest money winning horse came out of the Lincoln in fine condition. He looked more and more like a busy traveling man as he stepped lively into his private express car for the trip back east. His traveling companion, Sun Memory, was with him; also a pony which is a constant companion of Sun Beau.

He'll Be Back Later.

The horse that has won $355,044 will remain in New York for two engagements, the Saratoga Cup on Saturday and the Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont park three weeks later. Then he is scheduled to return to Chicago for the last race of his record smashing career in the Hawthorne Gold Cup on Oct. 3.

This is speed week at Lincoln Fields with all the crack sprinters in the west competing in the Crete Handicap on Saturday afternoon. There will be numerous events earlier in the week in which eligibles to the $5,000 race will tune up.

Fansy Walker, No More, Epithet, Oswego, Nellie Custis, Don Leon, Hot Shot, Kari Eitel, Martha Jones, Knight Commander, Voltagreen Zacawelsta, Uncle Henry, Weideleen, and a score of other flyers are eligible, and it is expected most of them will parade to the post. Sprinters do not get a chance to run for so much money very often.

Burning Blaze Out.

At the same time the crack western two year olds will be getting ready for the $5,000 Joliet stakes, to be run on Labor day afternoon. Hygro, Liberty Limited and other stars may get a race some time early this week which will be a final conditioner for their battle on the holiday.

It is likely the debate as to whether Hygro or Burning Blaze is the better western colt may have to go over until next spring.

The injuries Burning Blaze suffered during the running of the Hawthorne Juvenile handicap have not responded to treatment as readily as was expected and the speedy youngster, owned by the Nash brothers of Chicago, may not race again this season.

The Nash brothers expect great things of him in the rich three year old stakes of next season, and they do not care to take a chance of his sustaining further injuries during the autumn and late fall racing.

Manos Purse Today.

Another Chicago favorite that is to race no more this season is Spanish Play, owned jointly by Pat Knebelkamp and Dick Morris of Chicago. He has been about the busiest three year old in the country for ten months, and during his hard campaign picked up hurts and bruises which are not likely to disappear until Spanish Play rests for a long period. He will be back to the races next spring and should occupy a prominent place in the ranks of the older handicap division.

The best race on the Lincoln Fields program today is the Manos purse at a mile. It engages No More, Battleship, Nellie Custis, Mad Career, Calf Roper, Uncommon Gold, and several other leaders in the overnight handicap division.

SUN BEAU GETS 126 POUNDS

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 30.—[Special.]—The final week of Saratoga racing will begin tomorrow and its climax, next Saturday, promises to be one of the most memorable in the long history of this course. The expected meeting between Twenty Grand and Sun Beau in the $5,000 added Saratoga cup race is set for that day, and for once the long test of a mile and three-quarters promises to eclipse in interest the short dash in the Hopeful for the prize of approximately $50,000, which is the richest of the meeting.

Sun Beau is due back here tomorrow and Willis Sharpe Kilmer has had a conference with George H. Bull, president of the Saratoga association, relative to the final preparations of Sun Beau over this course for Saturday's race.

Extraordinary interest has been evidenced here over the meeting of the three year old Twenty Grand, and the six year old Sun Beau. The latter is regarded as the champion of the handicap division, placing Twenty Grand at the top of the three year old heap finds few dissenters.

Sun Beau will have 126 pounds to carry in the cup, scale weight for a six year old in the month of September, and he has been running and winning under much heavier imposts. His task is made formidable by the fact that he will have to concede eight pounds to Twenty Grand, which will run under the three year old scale impost of 118 pounds.

SPARTA SOCCER TEAM TROUNCES MACCABEES, 6-0

Seize $75,000 in Legal Attack on Race Track

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 30.—(AP)—Attorney General J. W. Cammack, crusader against race track betting in the state that gives the world most of its thoroughbreds, has filed another suit against a race track which probably will keep him busy during the last four months of his term of office.

Secret operations last night by Sheriff R. C. Soaper of Henderson county, who with 16 deputies armed with machine guns stormed the parimutuel betting sheds at Dade Park, revealed another legal attack was under way against another jockey club. The machine guns, however, were to protect the track's money, not to frighten embattled employés.

Enforces Tax Judgment.

The latest legal maneuver ordered by the attorney general was not designed to stop betting, however. He was taking steps to enforce a four year old judgment for back taxes of $64,000, plus interest, which brought the amount to $80,000, against the Dade Park Jockey club.

The attorney general waited until Dade Park's race meeting was well under way, when he knew a large sum of money would be stored at the track, to enforce the judgment. When the first attachment order was issued in 1927, Henderson county's sheriff, then a woman, Mrs. Francis Holt, was forced to report "no visible property" since racing was not in progress and no money was found.

Bond Posted, Cash Is Released.

After Sheriff Soaper had seized $75,000 in cash last night, James C. Ellis, president of the Dade Park Jockey club, posted a personal forthcoming bond for the amount and the cash was released. An attachment for $65,000 against the club's bank account previously had been served at Owensboro. Mr. Ellis, a millionaire oil operator, announced the suit would not interfere with the race meeting now in progress.

The lateness of the attempt to enforce the judgment may be laid to the fact that Attorney General Cammack hitherto had been occupied with a weightier suit, in which he attempted to collect $1,000,000 from operators of race tracks at Churchill Downs and Latonia, and sought forfeiture of their charters.

This action charged violation of the state's anti-gambling laws, but the court of appeals upheld the pari-mutuel betting law and recently denied the attorney general's plea for a rehearing. Hence Dade Park's late summer meeting was the first opportunity Cammack had to try to collect when the collecting was good.

BILL CUMMINGS WINS ROBY RACE; SAULSPAUGH 2D

Bill Cummings of Indianapolis won the 100 mile automobile race yesterday at the Roby Speedway, finishing two miles ahead of Bryan Saulspaugh of Chicago. In driving his Howe Special to victory in 78 minutes and 19 seconds, Cummings just missed setting a record. The Hoosier took the lead at the start and never was headed. Gus Schrader of Cedar Rapids was only three cars' length behind for 65 miles when a broken steering knuckle put him out of the race.

Saulspaugh, driving a Krasek Special, took second position after Schrader's mishap and went on to capture second prize from Gene Haustein, Indianapolis, who finished third with his Fronty Ford. About 6,000 witnessed the race.

TRADE HOPEFUL OF BETTER DAYS IN GRAIN MARTS

World Conditions Favor Wheat.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Speculators and grain traders in general are more hopeful of better markets in the future, particularly in coarse grain, in which there are no restrictions on trading, while wheat is controlled largely by farm board interests.

The week ending Aug. 29 may go down into history with a record for lowest prices in many years, wheat the lowest since 1852, corn the lowest in ten years, oats and rye the lowest since 1896.

Prices are so low that there is no money for the farmer, and yet consumers and speculators have little courage to buy in sufficient volume to create a better market. There is a belief, however, the worst has been seen in the grain markets, that while improvement will be slow, all breaks will run into good support.

Trading Volume Rises.

The volume of trading in all grains was materially enlarged for the week, with an increase of 28,000,000 bu in sales of wheat, although they were 104,000,000 bu less than last year, while corn sales, although increased 12,000,000 bu for the week, fell 9,000,000 bu below last year.

Oats sales of 11,802,000 bu compared with 7,492,000 bu the previous week and 28,441,000 bu last year. Rye sales of 5,336,000 bu, compared with 17,172,000 bu for the same time in 1930. Total sales of all grain futures were 219,126,000 bu, compared with 173,030,000 bu the previous week and 370,633,000 bu last year.

The open interest in wheat at the close was 99,627,000 bu, compared with 99,279,000 bu the previous week. There was a heavy reduction in open trades in September wheat and increase in other deliveries, particularly in May, the latter enlarging nearly 9,000,000 bu. September corn interest was cut down over 3,000,000 bu, but the reduction in total open interest of all deliveries was a little over 1,000,000 bu, while interest in other grains was small.

Crop Damage in Europe.

World conditions in wheat are working more in favor of holders. There has been heavy damage to crops in Europe, due to a rainy harvest. Russian crop prospects and estimates are being reduced. At the same time Russia surprised the world toward the last of the week by shipping 5,854,000 bu, and making large charters. Russia is selling its wheat at extremely low prices, a cargo having been sold to Japan at 39c.

Wheat traders are looking for help from the farm board, which is negotiating with China for the sale of 15,000,000 bu of wheat, and probably more. It would not be surprising to see importing Europe buy more high grade wheat from the United States, Canada and the southern hemisphere, for mixing with its damp grain. European consumers, however, are not in position to buy largely even at low prices, but indications are that financial conditions abroad are to improve slowly.

Wheat traders in all are inclined more to the buying side, particularly in the May delivery, the low price being attractive to investors, and a little more export business has been closed of late, and millers continue to take cash wheat.

A large part of the week's trading was in spreading between September and the deferred months' markets, particularly in the northwest and Winnipeg, and buying of September and selling of December and May, who were turning over their hedges. New hedge sales against cash purchases have fallen off.

The situation, as viewed by a leading exporter, is that wheat prices must decline to a world parity, where our surplus can be disposed of. Until present conitions are changed he does not look for any permanent advance.

Wheat Acreage Cut.

Farmers' intentions to plant winter wheat in the United States for the 1932 harvest, indicate a reduction in acreage of 12 per cent, which on a yield of 15 bu per acre would suggest 500,000,000 bu. Should we raise 300,000,000 bu of spring wheat, there would be 700,000,000 bu for the United States.

September wheat closed Saturday at 46⅛@46⅝c, December, 50¼@50¼c; March, 53½c; May, 55¼@55⅝c, with net losses of 2@2½c for the week. Prices follow:

CORN DAMAGED IN WEST

Drought and heat have lowered condition of the corn crop in Nebraska, Iowa, the northwest and in parts of the middle west. In Nebraska the loss, as indicated by the midmonth report, is 24 per cent from the previous returns. The period for frost is at hand, but a majority of the corn crop is further advanced than usual and it is said that low temperatures will be necessary to materially damage the corn, bullish crop reports, however, while scaring in the shorts, failed to bring in large outside buying support.

Liquidation by scattered holders of September corn carried it down to the lowest of the season, developing an oversold condition, from which there was a sharp rally. Traders are uncertain as to the intentions of leading holders of deliveries of cash corn on

Berlin Starts Mapping Way to Recovery

BERLIN, Aug. 30.—Now that the storm which shook Germany's largest financial institutions is over, the government and private business are proceeding to map a path by which Germany can proceed to economic recovery.

A special meeting of the stockholders of the Dresdner bank has approved the government's underwriting of 300,000,000 marks [about $72,000,000] of new preferred stock with which Germany's second largest bank has braced against threatened collapse. Some objected that this deal gave the Reich virtual control over the bank.

Dr. Alfred Friedmann, leader of the stockholders' opposition, charged the deal was "immoral" as the Reich used th. bank's plight to acquire a majority of common and preferred stock. German law holds that an "immoral" deal is void.

Seven Members on Board.

Dr. Friedmann is a member of Chancellor Bruening's Centrist party and financial circles believe Dr. Bruening does not fully agree with the Reich's Dresdner bank deal which was based upon ideas of Finance Minister Dietrich.

The Reich will send seven new members into the bank's supervisory board both as bankers and as functionaries of the ministry. Director Goetz of the Commerz bank will be a new director of the Dresdner bank, probably replacing Herbert Gumann, son of the man responsible for the spectacular rise of the bank. Rumors of a merger of the Dresdner and Commerz banks were said today to be without foundation.

The Reichsbank is considering a reduction of the discount rate from 10 per cent to 8 per cent and perhaps to 7 per cent by Monday or Tuesday, thereby complying with the wishes of private business and economists who say the high rate is strangling business. The Reichsbank does not expect to lose by reducing the rate because withdrawals of foreign funds are virtually barred by the Basle agreements.

What Advocates Say.

Advocates of the rate reduction say there is no need to maintain safeguards against the removal of belongings when Germany is stripped and, moreover, the rate can be easily raised within a short time.

Following the session of the economic committee of the cabinet it was learned the government would refrain from fundamentally changing the German banking law and confine itself to changes in the directorates of the Danat and Dresdner banks, introducing only moderate supervision of banks without resorting to the Anglo-American system. Chancellor Bruening is opposed to state socialism, but the large interest the Reich has been forced to take in the banking system has made such a development possible.

Germany's reduced funds have brought forth a great number of plans to stretch the available capital to the utmost length through extension of the domestic credit system. One plan under consideration is to enlarge the recently founded acceptance guarantee bank and make it an acceptance bank on the British model, to be a central institution for the private discounting of bills.

German mortgage banks have formed a Lombard bank for granting advances on collateral.

FESS SUGGESTS ROADS ENGAGE IN TRUCK BUSINESS

Washington, Aug. 30.—(AP)—A suggestion that railroads be allowed to go into the trucking business has been made by Senator Fess, Republican, of Ohio, as one means of aiding the roads.

"It is certain that something must be done," said the senator, who is a member of the interstate commerce committee, "but I am not certain that the advance in rates asked by the carriers on freight is the solution.

"I am apprehensive that an increase in rates might defeat the ends sought by the railroads of increasing their revenue production. But I do realize that the railroads must have some chance to get into better financial condition."

Senator Fess believed that legislation would be required to permit the railroads to engage in motor trucking operations. He emphasized, however, that he would want careful provision made to prevent any monopolies by the railroads in this field. Also he believes legislation imperative for regulation of bus transportation.

BANKERS FEEL WORST OVER IN STERLING RAIDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 30.—Last week's developments in the British financial crisis, culminating in the opening of a one year $400,000,000 credit for the defense of sterling exchange by private bankers in Paris and New York constituted, in the view of bankers here, the most important events witnessed during the entire two years of the depression.

The difficulties of the Bank of England have been a source of deep concern to bankers here for months and it is recognized that they are not yet completely overcome; but with $650,000,000 of credits mobilized here and in France in the shape of this week's private banking credit and the $250,000,000 credit secured Aug. 1 by the Bank of England from the federal reserve banks and the Bank of France, it is felt that sterling has been fortified against the worst attacks conceivable.

In addition, the formation this week of a national government, pledged to effect far-reaching financial reforms, gives assurance, bankers feel, that the causes of Great Britain's financial difficulties are to be attacked at the roots. Although the events of the week brought to light the critical position of the British market they were in themselves, according to leading bankers here, the most promising developments in the direction of world-wide recovery that have yet appeared.

Problem of Readjustment.

The causes of Great Britain's financial troubles are both immediate and remote. They go back to the disturbances arising out of the war, but they were brought to a head by the central European financial breakdown.

Changes in world economy, growing out of the war, have set the United Kingdom a difficult problem of readjustment that was rendered more difficult by the heavy tax burden left in the wake of the European conflict.

British industry has been robbed of some of its most important markets by the industrial development of other countries, notably the United States, stimulated by the wartime demand for goods. At the same time the British coal mining industry and shipping, two important sources of revenue before the war, have been suffering a prolonged depression.

Currency Stabilization.

More important still, in the view of some bankers, Great Britain is suffering from the effects of the revalorization of the pound sterling at its pre-war parity. Other European countries, after the war, stabilized their currencies at a small fraction of their old values. Germany wiped her old currency out completely. But the British restored the pound to parity and have been struggling ever since to keep it there.

Despite these troubles, it should be borne in mind, bankers here emphasized this week, that Great Britain is still a tremendously rich country with enormous foreign resources upon which to draw. Estimates of British foreign investments are placed at about $20,000,000,000, scattered throughout the world.

The present crisis in sterling exchange was precipitated by the financial difficulties of central Europe. The breakdown in the German economy served to shake confidence throughout Europe, and as is usual under such circumstances a heavy call was made upon London for the repayment of foreign balances lodged there by continental bankers.

Become Alarmed.

London has been for years the banker of Europe. Bankers in Paris, Amsterdam, and other continental centers habitually place their surplus short term funds in London, where, because of the machinery of the London money market, they can find employment in financing the commerce of the world. But with the freezing of heavy British investments in central Europe, continental bankers became alarmed.

It was feared that much of the short term money placed in London had been used for long term loans abroad, and a concerted scramble began to recall balances from the British market. This demand came at a time when, because of the German crisis, London was least able to meet it. Sterling collapsed abruptly in the middle of July and gold began to pour out of London.

During the last three weeks of July approximately $160,000,000 gold net was taken from the Bank of England and despite this movement sterling exchange continued below the gold point against dollars, francs, guilders, belgas and Swiss francs.

Faced with this serious flight from sterling and with its gold stocks depleted, the bank of England sought and secured from the bank of France and the federal reserve banks here a credit of $250,000,000, which was opened on Aug. 1.

Bank Holds Situation in Europe Clouds U. S. Trade

Sentiment in this country would be brighter as regards domestic business conditions if it had not been overshadowed by the recent developments in Europe, is the opinion expressed by the Bank of America National Association, in the current issue of its review. Improvement in Great Britain and Germany, the bank believes, will go a long way to better the situation in the United States.

Forecasts Fall Business in Rayon Will Be Good

There is every indication that the fall business in rayon will be at one of the highest levels in the history of the industry, the current issue of Textile Organon, published by the Tubize Chatillon corporation, says. The review expresses the belief that the worst of the cotton price situation has been seen.

N. Y. Bond Market Interest Centers on U. S. Financing

New York, Aug. 30.—(AP)—The question of most immediate interest in the bond market is the terms of the treasury's financing expected to be announced tomorrow morning.

Treasury certificates of indebtedness maturing on Sept. 15 total 634 million dollars and maturities of certificates and notes on Dec. 15 total 994 million.

Thus the treasury will have to refund some $1,628,000,000 within the next three and a half months, all of which is short term debt. However, a substantial deficit, estimated at about one billion dollars, is in prospect for the current fiscal year, as it would be difficult to meet such a deficit with increased taxes because of the depression, and offering of some long term issues would not be surprising at this time.

Would Involve Change.

Such an operation would involve an important, if technical, change. The bulk of the maturing obligations, because of their short terms, ultra gilt edge security and high marketability, are held largely by banks and institutions to whom such qualities especially appeal.

Probably a substantial portion of any longer term offering would be subscribed for by these investors also, but such a result would depend upon the fact that the banks, because of the extreme easiness in the money market, would have difficulty in finding other employment for their funds.

The prospective deficit makes it desirable for the treasury to reduce its volume of outstanding short term debt at this time in order that the way may be open for future flotations, if desired. Some extraordinary demands on the treasury for unemployment relief and similar legislation may be expected when congress convenes, which would create additional needs for capital by the government.

Rails Hit Lows, Then Rebound.

The bond market last week provided some of the most interesting price movements in months, principally among railroad issues.

New low prices in recent years were reached in a large number of rail loans on Monday and Tuesday, but the trend was reversed on the succeeding day and continued upward until the close Saturday. A halting of the decline in rail issues, in view of its extent and duration, was not surprising, but no definite reason for the upturn, especially as it was so inclusive, developed.

Aside from the rails outstanding changes were few. United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland 5½s of 1937 reached a new low for this year at 104⅝ on Monday, but they strengthened gradually thereafter and closed firm. The $400,000,000 Franco-American private banking credit extended to the British treasury on Friday may be followed by a long term British bond issue when conditions favor. Argentine obligations broke sharply on Wednesday but recovered their losses the following day.

Banks More Particular.

For the most part fluctuations in other foreign, public utility and industrial issues were of a routine character.

There was little evidence of any important change in the character of the market as a whole. Issues of gilt edge rating continued steady or firm, but interest in loans of secondary standing remained limited.

The highly selective demand is indicated to some extent by the fact that banks are more particular nowadays about accepting municipal issues as collateral than formerly. The list of such obligations not regarded as suitable collateral has increased materially in recent months.

COMMERCE BODY SEES ENCOURAGING SIGNS OF BETTER BUSINESS

Definite, encouraging signs of increasing business activity in certain industries featured the Chicago market during the past week, according to trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Local candy manufacturers, past the warm weather season, are speeding production to meet the demand created by increasing sales. State department of labor figures showed employment in Chicago candy factories to be 2.8 per cent greater than during the same period in the peak year of 1929.

Prevailing low prices for copper have brought many orders for finished products into the market, and local plants are operating on near capacity schedules. Increasing activity also was noted among paper companies, with several local concerns working full time or better.

The wholesale merchandise field maintained good volume on orders from out of town merchants laying in their fall and winter stocks. Activity in retail stores, however, was quiet.

PUBLIC FEELING ANTITHESIS OF THAT IN 1928-'29

Prosperity's Yard Sticks Still Used.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 30.—The market for investment bonds—which is the only financial market that seems just now to be moving—is an illustration of the extent to which stock exchange prices in such days as these may represent, not the close measurement of intrinsic values, but the influence of vague apprehension and extraneous causes.

It is no secret that a long series of valuations, in the railway list especially, reflects the forcing of bonds on the market, not because of doubt as to their soundness, but of fear that, in this period of reduced railway earnings, the bonds may fail to meet the rigid exactions of savings bank investment.

When prices of good bonds fall for such a cause to prices which sometimes represent 8 or 10 per cent return on the investment, and when even purchases by judicious investors fail to stem the current of depreciation, the conclusion must be that it is the machinery of finance which is out of order.

Change in Attitude.

But, beyond even this consideration, the action of the market has again presented an exact antithesis to the public's attitude in 1929 and 1928. Whereas financial sentiment of that period was governed by absolute belief that prosperity and earning power were assured of indefinite continuance, and that good times and stock exchange prices were destined only to spectacular betterment, the attitude of today has come to be that prosperity is ended permanently, that earning power will henceforth find it difficult or impossible to cover "overhead," and that a thoroughly bad existing situation is bound to grow perpetually worse.

PUBLIC FEELING ANTITHESIS OF THAT IN 1928-'29

Prosperity's Yardsticks Still Being Used.

Just as the trade reports, the car loadings, the railway earnings and the company dividends seemed to the public to confirm the current views of 1929, so the same indications are accepted as convincing ground for today's position of despair.

It has been pointed out many times that this extraordinary alternation of sentiment from the heights to the depths has been a part of the picture in all of our numerous earlier periods of reckoning for an overdone economic "boom." Even among serious economic "thinkers, the contrast of attitude has possibly been more complete in this three-year period than on any previous occasion of the kind. Yet with them, as with the bewildered multitude, the shift of opinion from one extreme to the other gives at least a suggestion that neither judgment can be depended on, since both were out of line with past experience and since one has been notoriously discountenanced.

Linked to World Affairs.

One illusion of the "boom period" may be said to have been shattered permanently; the obstinate belief of the period from 1924 to 1929, that American prosperity had no relation to vicissitudes of the outside world. The truth has now been taught with the greatest possible severity by events of the last three months, in which the difficulties of Berlin and London visibly superseded, in our own market's financial preoccupation, even the falling earnings of our transportation industry.

The first effect of this discovery of past mistakes concerning our own relations to disturbing foreign developments has been one of consternation; the next, another readjustment of values to the supposition that the damage was irreparable, that nothing can restore to a normal condition this foreign financial structure, and that our financial interests must inevitably be dragged down with it. It is part of the prevalent financial mood that only the dark side of the situation should be looked on.

Foreshadows Improvement.

Yet, if the recent course of events at Berlin and London has proved that Europe made its own grave mistakes in the period of speculation and that we, as well as Europe, have had to suffer for them, it also shows the solidarity of the whole financial world in a movement to avert the consequences, and the readiness of the countries where the blunder had been committed to reverse the policies that had made the recent situation possible. Perhaps such reversal could have been effected in no other way. If the storm is weathered by the drastic reform of German and British policies which is in sight already, the world's economic situation will be unquestionably strengthened. Such a change does not happen over night, but the fact that it is even foreshadowed means that the process of economic betterment has begun.

It used to be a saying of experienced Wall street oracles who had personally passed through other periods of severe financial depression that real recovery never comes until the worst of the unsettling news is "out" and the financial mind is at the lowest level of despondency. No doubt it is difficult to determine when such a state of things has arrived.

Seeks Reorganization for Shamrock Oil and Gas Co.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 30.—Holders of the debenture notes of the Shamrock Oil and Gas company have been asked to agree to a reorganization plan to save the company from liquidation and the loss of a portion of its gas holdings. The request was made by John J. Sheerin, president, in letters to the debenture holders. The plan would provide for payment of indebtedness to officials of the company with securities and for raising additional cash.

AUGUST REACHES CLOSE WITH POOR TRADE SHOWING

Increase in Wholesale Activity Is Noted.

Although early signs of autumn stimulus to general business activity have been somewhat tardy, a distinct pickup in wholesale trade during the last week seems to indicate that merchants have at last decided that consumer inquiry is promising enough to warrant some replenishment of their stocks of merchandise.

It is widely felt that September must show some improvement over August, regardless of degree. Statistics for much of the latter part of August are not yet available, but a general business a little below July seems indicated, and it appears that most statistical indices will indicate a level somewhere around last December.

In Between Season.

It is the between-seasons period for retail trade and the late date of Labor day this year has undoubtedly delayed the preparations for autumn. Regardless of the depths of depression that have been reached, however, the ending of the vacation season, the opening of schools, and the cooler weather, combine to send the consumer shopping. Merchants are already selling some volume of school merchandise.

This is the twenty-second month since general business, as measured by most statistical indices, dropped below normal. Certain items of consumers' goods long ago turned upward. Depression or no depression, clothes fray and shoes scuff through to the uppers. Cotton textiles have been on the mend for about a year, woolen textiles and boot and shoe production for eight months. A few of the smaller woolen mills are now reported running on a 24 hour basis. Some of the silk mills were reported to have called back more workers during the past week.

The Pepperell Manufacturing company, one of the leading cotton textile producers, in placing an order for 194 spinning frames carrying 50,000 spindles for its Lindale, Ga., plant, publicly announced its opinion that the bottom of the depression has been seen.

Still Dragging Along.

Despite the gratifying progress made by certain isolated lines serving essential consumers' needs, however, the heavier industries, furnishing producers and capital goods, continue to wallow in the mire. The steel industry has been dragging along between 30 and 32 per cent of capacity for several weeks and as Iron Age said this week, demand still fails to foreshadow a seasonal rise in production. The automobile industry drags along at sharply curtailed levels and is taking its time about the introduction of new models.

Engineers Public Service Reports $22,474,545 Net

The Engineers Public Service company reports consolidated gross earnings for the twelve months ending July 31, 1931, of $52,567,867 and net earnings of $22,474,545, which compares with $52,445,744 and $22,429,663, respectively, for the twelve months ending July 31, 1930. The earnings applicable to reserves and to Engineers Public Service company was $10,848,426, equivalent after deduction of retirement reserve and Engineers preferred dividends to $2.09 per share on the 1,909,716 common shares outstanding. This compares with $11,774,417, or $2.72 per share for the twelve months ending July 31, 1930, on the 1,866,970 shares then outstanding.

Two National Banks on Long Island Are Merged

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 30.—Acquisition of the National bank of Ridgewood, L. I., by the Richmond National bank was announced today. The consolidation makes the Richmond National bank the largest in Queens county. Combined resources of the merged banks total $6,585,430 and combined deposits $5,339,703. Depositors of the two institutions number more than 35,000.

JULY SHIPMENTS OF FURNITURE GAIN 12 PER CENT OVER JUNE

"Shipments of furniture during the month of July, 1931, exceeded the June shipments by more than 12 per cent," according to the monthly bulletin issued by Seidman & Seidman, certified public accountants. "This increase in shipments was due chiefly to the orders taken during the June market. No great number of employés were added to the pay rolls during the month, but the average furniture plant worked longer hours during July than in any month since January, 1930."

According to the accountants, "the average furniture plant for many months has been working only about 70 per cent of normal time with a greatly reduced force. During July the number of employés was increased by approximately 1 per cent and the operating time was increased to 79 per cent of normal. In terms of dollars and cents the pay rolls during July exceeded the June pay rolls by approximately 9 per cent.

"Following every market month there is always a decided reaction in connection with the amount of new orders booked. This reaction was manifested during July, 1931, but not as severely as during the months immediately following the markets in 1929 or 1930. New business booked by the furniture manufacturers in July was equal to approximately 56 per cent of that booked in June. Thus far in 1931 the industry has booked approximately 74 per cent as much business as during the same period in 1930," the bulletin concludes.

DISCUSSES STEPS TAKEN TO REDUCE AUSTRALIAN DEBT

Increased taxation, curtailment of federal expenditures, and reduction of the internal debt should go far towards rehabilitating Australian finance, according to a review published by Dominick & Dominick.

"Rapid economic expansion in Australia during the post-war period 1918-'29 was largely artificial, arising from unwarranted government expenditures and excessive borrowing from abroad," the review states. "On June 30 of this year, the total public debt amounted to roughly $5,600,000,000, while the accumulated budget deficit now exceeds $100,000,000. The situation has been made more critical by declining world prices for wheat and wool, the country's leading exports.

"Australia has awakened to its own difficulties, and is taking immediate steps towards retrenchment. Reductions of 20 per cent in almost every department are listed in 1931-'32 budget figures; income taxes and duty on most imports are to be increased; and Australia's internal indebtedness of $2,600,000,000 will be voluntarily converted at interest rates 22½ per cent lower.

"With the economies the treasury estimates a budget deficit of about $25,350,000 for the current year, which, if Great Britain suspends the war obligations of its colonies under the Hoover plan, will be reduced to only $5,500,000."

New York, Aug. 30.—Two large flotations—by Orleans levee district of Louisiana and Cook county, Illinois—account for more than a half of the $15,092,248 in new bond offerings scheduled for award this week, the Bond Buyer reports. The weekly average of new offerings for the year to date is $37,672,098. Financing by the Orleans levee district, scheduled for Tuesday, consists of $4,200,000 4¾ or 5 per cent obligations, and the Cook county offerings on Friday consists of $2,150,000 nurses' dormitory bonds and $2,000,000 poor relief bonds.

MEASURE OF SEASONAL RECOVERY IS AHEAD, GUARANTY TRUST SAYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 30—The economic readjustments of prices, wages, taxes, production and consumption have obviously not been completed, or even reached a point of stabilization where recovery may begin, says the current issue of the guaranty survey, published by the Guaranty Trust company. Some seasonal recovery, at least, may be expected, it is stated.

"Although commodity prices in this country have failed to maintain the strength reported last month," the survey says, "their recent behavior has continued to indicate that the influences making for price recession have spent most of their force, for the time being at least.

"Another encouraging feature of the situation in the United States is the activity reported in retail trade. While sales, measured in dollar values, are somewhat smaller than a year ago, the decrease appears to be considerably less than would be expected as a result of the decline in prices. This comparison indicates that the physical volume of business has increased and strengthens the view that consumers' supplies have been depleted to a point where more liberal buying is necessary, despite the contagious and, to a certain extent, unreasonable habits of extreme economy that have been adopted since the advent of depression.

"This opinion is further confirmed by the continued recovery reported in certain industries turning out consumers' goods. The textile industries and the boot and shoe industry are conspicuous examples of this improvement. Both of these branches of manufacture depend for their demand mainly on consumers' purchases of strictly necessary commodities."
